BIG MILK BOYCOTT GROWING AS STATE MOVES IN INQUIRY

Distributers and Producers Offer Futile Concessions and Accuse Each Other.

HEARS THE LAW IS VIOLATED

SHIPMENTS HERE DECREASE

Dairymen's League Members Stop Many Farmers Amid Raids and Rioting.

Less milk was delivered in New York yesterday than on any day since the contracts between milk producers and distributers expired on last Sept. 30, and the day's developments made it clear that no action as yet contemplated could prevent a milk famine if producers and distributers chose to permit it.

Attorney General Egburt E. Woodbury's investigation will begin in this city tomorrow. No plans to relieve the milk shortage until this gets under way have been formulated, and it is realized by all the officials, State and municipal, who have interested themselves in the situation that even the Attorney General's inquiry will be of the sort which, though it eventually may fix the blame for existing conditions, meantime cannot prevent these same conditions from becoming increasingly serious.

The single hope of speedy relief was held out in the rumor, partly substantiated, that the Borden Condensed Milk Company was trying to make a separate peace with the producers.

Offers of compromise were advanced by both sides yesterday and by both sides declined. The producers waived their demand that their Dairymen's League represent them in all dealings with the distributers, but insisted that the distributers meet their increased price for milk. The distributers offered an increase in price, but declined to meet the full rise demanded by the producers. Mayor Mitchel, who conducted these negotiations, announced finally that he had done all in his power and had failed. The situation was still deadlocked.

In this situation officials of the big distributing companies again made hopeful predictions for today. H. N. Hallock, Vice President of the Borden Condensed Milk Company, said his reports indicated that his company would have about 52 per cent. of its normal supply for distribution today. Officials of the Sheffield Farms-Slawson-Decker and Mutual-McDermott Companies estimated that they would receive about 70 per cent. of their usual supply, but reports of milk-producing centres indicated that no more milk was being shipped last night than had been shipped on the night before.

Rioting and Raids in Country.

From up-State counties and from Connecticut and New Jersey, the sources of New York's milk supply, came word of raids and rioting. Milk belonging to farmers who had taken no sides in the fight was dumped into ditches by roadside pickets, and raids were made by masked night riders on large milk supplies in transport to railroad stations. Hundreds of new members were reported to have joined the Dairymen's League, and the farmers asserted their position was stronger than ever.

In this city Mayor Mitchel took the only immediate step to better conditions when he conducted his conference of producers and distributers. At this meeting the larger distributing companies made the offer, which they put in writing in the form of a letter to the Mayor, to grant 70 per cent. of the Dairymen's League demands as far as prices to be paid to the farmers for their milk was concerned, but they remained determined in their refusal not to deal with the farmers through their league. They offered to pay 31 cents more than they are now paying for every 100 pounds of milk, that is, for every forty-seven quarts. The farmers demanded 45 cents more for each 100 pounds and recognition of their league.

Representatives of the farmers made an offer which amounted to an abandonment of their demand that all dealings between the distributers and the farmers be conducted through the Dairymen's League. The officials of the league told the Mayor that if the distributers would agree to pay the price demanded they would immediately telegraph to the 17,000 members of the league in New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut that the fight was off without further dickering about recognition of the league.

State Commissioner of Foods and Markets John J. Dillon, general agent and spokesman for the league, who attended the conference, insisted afterward that the league had not abandoned its position in this matter, but admitted that under the proposed arrangement the distributers would make their checks payable to the individual farmers instead of to the league, as was originally intended. Each side, however, refused to accept the terms offered by the other.

All the distributers represented at the Mayor's conference agreed to the thirty-one-cent increase except the Borden Company. H. N. Hallock, Vice President of this company, was present and said that his company's offer toward a compromise would be sent to the Mayor later. A conference was held at the Borden offices, and it was decided to offer a greater increase than the rest of the distributers had offered, and consequently a letter was sent to the Mayor announcing that this company would pay the farmers 35 cents more for each 100 pounds.

Only a Third of Supply Received.

The Borden Company was hit harder by the dairymen's boycott yesterday than any of the other big companies, it was said. At the Borden offices it was admitted that the officials had been surprised when their morning milk trains began to arrive yesterday. They had estimated that they would be able to distribute about 60 per cent. of their

French Wrecked a Zeppelin in a Raid on Mannheim

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Oct. 4, (via London.)—The newspaper Les Nouvelles says that in the air raids on Mannheim, Germany, on Sept. 27 a Zeppelin 750 feet in length was destroyed, and much other damage was done. Twenty-six workmen were killed and forty wounded.

A French official statement on Sept. 23 reported that French aviators had dropped bombs on Mannheim.

CARLSTROM TRAINS FOR 900-MILE FLIGHT

AIRMEN PREDICT SUCCESS

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Unexpected delays in the Curtiss factory made it necessary to postpone until tomorrow the first trial of the aeroplane in which Victor Carlstrom will try next week to make a non-stop flight from Chicago to New York.

The machine was assembled in the factory yard yesterday, but a series of minor difficulties made it impossible to get it out to the Curtiss aerodrome, eight miles north of town, until nearly sunset this evening. There the work of reassembling will be completed early tomorrow morning, and after the engine has been tested and everything overhauled Carlstrom will mount into the sky in the afternoon for the first trial of the machine in which he hopes to break all records known in America.

In view of the delay in getting the aeroplane ready, Carlstrom went today to the Curtiss field at Hammondsport, on Lake Keuka, where he spent the afternoon in trying out another new Curtiss model. He returned this evening, and will probably fly the Chicago machine for several hours tomorrow, making no flights at great distances, but merely circling about the Curtiss field here to look out for the inconvenient habits that new machines inevitably develop and that must be cured before the long flight can be attempted.

One of the things which may be decided by tomorrow's flights is whether or not the extra twelve feet added to the wings will be retained. As it stands the aeroplane has wings sixty feet from tip to tip with a dihedral angle of 4½ degrees. As originally built they were only 48 feet with a dihedral angle of one degree. On the machine's behavior under tomorrow's test will depend very largely the decision of the experts as to whether the additional expanse of wing will be of much value for the conditions of THE NEW YORK TIMES flight from Chicago to New York.

Curtiss Explains Machine.

Glenn H. Curtiss, head of the Curtiss Aeroplane Company, is enthusiastic about the possibilities of aerial navigation which will be illustrated by a successful flight between the two largest cities of the country.

"One notable thing about this machine," he said today, "is that at a height of six or eight thousand feet, although it has an eight-cylinder motor, it will travel six or seven miles on a gallon of gasoline. Not many six-cylinder automobiles are able to do that. Moreover, this engine will cover the entire distance and that this is something of an improvement over other means of rapid transit can be seen from the fact that the express trains between Chicago and New York are compelled to change engines several times.

"This flight should demonstrate the great potential value of an aerial mail route for certain classes of mail. So far there has been no practical demonstration of this in America. Two aerial routes have been authorized, one in Alaska and one from the mainland to the Island of Nantucket, but, as no satisfactory bids were presented, the service has never been opened. Weather conditions in Alaska, of course, would be extremely difficult at certain seasons, and there would be heavy depreciation and considerable risk of loss of aeroplanes from accident. But in sections where the weather conditions are a little better there are great possibilities for such a service. Much time could obviously be saved, both by the greater speed of the aeroplane and by its ability to travel in an air line rather than follow the tortuous course often required by railroads.

Good Training for Fliers.

"Moreover, the establishment of mail routes in the air, even experimentally, would be of great value in training aviators, who would be especially useful in time of war. There are aviation schools at present, of course, but an aviator who was compelled to fly on a regular route the year round and keep up on every trip to a regular schedule so far as possible would be compelled to learn the movements of the air and would acquire an experience under conditions that could hardly be gained in any other way.

"The difficulties that Carlstrom will face must not be underestimated. For instance, if a regular aeroplane mail route between Chicago and New York were to be established it is likely that there would be at least one stop on the way. Carlstrom will try to go through in a continuous flight. Weather conditions may impede him. At the same time it must be remembered that the weather bureau's information service should make it possible to foresee the coming of any general storms and to time the flight so as to avoid any but possible local disturbances. Besides, Carlstrom is used to storms.

"The cold undoubtedly will be severe at the height at which he will travel, but the motor will help to keep him

TERAUCHI HEADS JAPAN'S CABINET

VICTORY FOR ARMY PARTY

SOME UNEASINESS CAUSED

Resignation of Count Okuma Brings About Two Party System in Japan.

TOKIO, Oct. 4.—The Emperor has requested Lieutenant General Count Seiki Terauchi, former Minister of War and also formerly Resident General in Korea, to organize a Cabinet, in succession to the Ministry of Marquis Okuma.

The resignation of Premier Okuma brought to a head the intense struggle between the bureaucratic forces and the advocates of a representative Government, and which culminated in the victory of the bureaucrats by the Emperor's designation of Count Terauchi to form a Cabinet.

Premier Okuma aided Baron Kato in his efforts to form a new Ministry and thus succeeded in amalgamating the three groups composing the Government's majority in the House of Representatives into one great party. By this move the new amalgamation has only the Seiyukai or Conservative Party in opposition, and brings about a two-party political system in Japan similar to that in the United States and Great Britain.

The movement displeased the statesmen of the old school, who feared that it would be undesirably progressive, and was opposed by Count Terauchi, who favors a no-party form of government.

Baron Kato was recommended to the Emperor by Premier Okuma, who called attention to the fact that Kato was a leader of the majority groups in the House of Representatives and had supported loyally the policies of the present Cabinet. Prince Yamagata, Marquis Matsukata, Prince Oyama, and Marquis Eaoinji recommended to the Emperor the appointment of Count Terauchi.

The selection of Count Terauchi is believed to be a victory for the army party. Viscount Ichiro Motono, the Ambassador to Russia, is being considered as Foreign Minister in the new Cabinet. It is learned that Count Terauchi will ask Baron Kato to support the new party and thus effect a compromise.

TERAUCHI FOR BIG ARMY.

Washington Believes He Also Will Build Up the Navy Power.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The appointment of Count Terauchi to succeed Count Okuma as Premier of Japan is expected here to be followed by the development of a firmer foreign policy, especially with reference to China. It is believed that he will have the support of all Japanese leaders who favor increase of the army and navy.

The age of Premier Okuma (he is 78 years old) has been given as a reason for his resignation, but it is probable that opposition to his policies in the Japanese upper house was responsible for his retirement. He has been assailed by the Opposition for a year for not having adopted a more vigorous attitude toward China.

Naval and military men in Japan have urged a rapid development of the army and navy, insisting that the question of military preparedness be considered in the next Diet, which will convene in December. They have contended that Japan has been falling behind in naval construction, especially in comparison with the United States.

SEES NO CHANGE IN POLICY.

Dr. Iyenaga Says Late Emperor of Japan Settled Foreign Question.

Count Terauchi's appointment as Premier was regarded with uneasiness yesterday by some students of Japanese affairs in this city, although none of them would speak for publication until he had named the members of his Cabinet. He was spoken of as a "swashbuckler" and "expansionist" on one hand, and on the other as a cautious man who was not likely to change Japan's foreign relations.

Baron Yoshiro Sakatani, delegate to the recent Economic Conference in Paris, who is at the Hotel Astor, would not be interviewed on the appointment yesterday. Baron Sakatani, in an interview in THE TIMES last week, declared that the status of Japanese in the United States must be settled after the war, although he believed that there would be an amicable understanding between the two nations. Baron Sakatani's assertions, the change of ambassadors at Washington and Count Terauchi's succession to the Premiership, were regarded by some as steps toward a firmer policy of Japan toward the United States in regard to the "open door" in China as well as the treatment of the Japanese in California.

Dr. T. Iyenaga, Director of the East and West News Bureau, said that Japan's foreign policy had been so well settled by the late Emperor that the change in Premiers would probably have little effect on it.

"I must correct a wrong impression created by some linguistic statesmen that Count Terauchi, being a military man, will pursue a strong policy toward China and the United States," he said. "Japan only wishes to stand on her own feet and maintain her rights. She wishes to do so in the most amicable terms with the United States. It is a great mistake to suppose that the foreign policy will be changed by a change in Cabinets."

The chief reason for the fall of Marquis Okuma's Cabinet, he said, was the failure of the upper house to support the former Premier's internal policies. The budget was carried through with difficulty, although Okuma's party predominated in the lower house. He asserted that it was probable that Count Terauchi would appoint a compromise Cabinet, acceptable to both houses. The fact that he was a soldier and not too strongly identified with either faction might have been responsible for the appointment.

Count Terauchi will not be Premier, Dr. Iyenaga explained, until he has appointed his Cabinet and they are ratified by the Emperor. The Emperor may re-

COLONEL TO SPEAK ON MEXICO BORDER

YIELDS TO HUGHES PLEA

Texas and the Southwest Had Hoped to Hear Wilson at Elephant Butte Dam Dedication.

Colonel Roosevelt will carry his war on President Wilson to the Mexican border. Strongly urged by persons actively identified with the Hughes campaign, the Colonel has agreed to address a meeting at El Paso, Texas, within the next two weeks.

It was not until Charles E. Hughes had supplemented with a personal plea the request of the Republican leaders that the Colonel consented. According to a report at National Committee headquarters, it was when they met at the Union League Club reception on Tuesday night that Colonel Roosevelt told Chairman Willcox he might go ahead with his arrangements for the meeting.

Texas is so strongly Democratic that even such a forceful campaigner as Colonel Roosevelt could not expect to make it budge from the Democratic column. If the talk at Republican headquarters counts for anything, the principal object in view is "to give the boys on the border a treat." It is expected that by far the larger part of Colonel Roosevelt's prospective audience at El Paso will wear Uncle Sam's uniform, and that the Colonel will receive a reception after his own heart, one to make his blood tingle.

There are some 23,000 National Guardsmen, sworn into the Federal service, encamped about El Paso, drafted largely from Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Michigan. All these States are making preparations to poll the soldier vote on the border.

Republican leaders who heard of the Colonel's promise yesterday expressed great satisfaction and said no other speaker than the Colonel could better stir a soldier audience. It is taken for granted that the bulk of his speech will deal with the Mexican policy of President Wilson, military and naval preparedness, and Americanism.

It was said last night that, aside from the effect Colonel Roosevelt's speech at El Paso might have on the soldier vote, the Republican leaders were hopeful that it would do good in the border States, and particularly in Arizona, where the Republicans are very anxious to elect their candidate for United States Senator to succeed Senator Henry F. Ashhurst, a Democrat.

The visit of Colonel Roosevelt will come at about the time Texas and the entire Southwest had been led to expect a visit from President Wilson. The occasion for the President's visit, which had been widely heralded though never with the President's authority, was the dedication of the Elephant Butte dam on the Rio Grande.

President Wilson, according to Chairman Vance C. McCormick of the Democratic National Committee, had never given definite promise to officiate at the dedication of the dam, but merely a tentative promise that if the pressure of official business should permit, he would come. Since then the President and his advisers had reached the conclusion that he had better not go because of the inevitable demand for speeches en route, which not only would cause delay, but might give such a trip, with the election coming on, the appearance of a campaign tour.

RAILROAD MEN'S VOTE ALARMS REPUBLICANS

Canvasses Indicate 90 Per Cent. in Brotherhoods Are For the President.

Disturbed by reports from a canvass among members of the railroad brotherhoods, the managers of the Republican national campaign are preparing for missionary work on an unprecedented scale among railroad workers. According to announcement made yesterday, there will be distributed 200,000 pamphlets among members of the brotherhoods, to supplement the work of special field agents from the Chicago headquarters in an effort to prove that the Adamson eight-hour law is less of a boon than might appear at first. It was said the reports of the canvassers showed 90 per cent. of the "brotherhood" vote for Wilson.

Reports from agents who have been feeling out sentiment among the unorganized railroad workers at terminals and in car shops whose hours were not shortened or working conditions improved by the eight-hour law were said to be much more hopeful. The Republican leaders say there are 1,600,000 of these in the country, and that they have been told that some 80 per cent. of them who feel they have been discriminated against would vote the Republican ticket.

BIG CROWDS CHEER WILSON ON HIS TRIP

Boundless Enthusiasm Shown for President at Stops in Ohio and Indiana.

HE JOKES WITH THE PEOPLE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Although President Wilson steadily adhered to his decision to make no rear-platform speeches, his journey through Ohio and Indiana today on his way to Omaha was a succession of appearances before large and enthusiastic crowds. The people knew they could not expect a speech, but everywhere they swarmed to the stations for a sight of the President.

At some of the stops Mr. Wilson briefly expressed his gratification at the reception. Usually, however, he was kept busy shaking the hands extended to him as he stood on the observation platform of his car, and the train would pull out before he could say a word. The thing that seemed to move the President more than anything else was the large number of elderly people, many of them declaring themselves Republicans, who crowded up to shake hands, with a "God bless you" that sounded as if it came from the heart.

The train made fourteen stops in Ohio, most of them at towns of not more than 15,000 inhabitants. A conservative estimate placed the number of persons who greeted the President at 30,000 in Ohio alone. Indiana was as generous. Fort Wayne, Ind., probably had the record crowd, with close to 10,000, but Alliance, Ohio, and Valparaiso, Ind., with a large delegation of college boys, approached the record.

At some places the enthusiasm was so pronounced that in spite of the President's refusal to make an address the train assumed the appearance of a genuine campaign special. At many places local politicians boarded the train and rode to the next station just to give assurance to Mr. Wilson that Mr. Hughes's Western drive had by no means dimmed Democratic confidence of carrying both Ohio and Indiana.

Railroad Men Enthusiastic.

Throughout the trip one fact stood out prominently, and it caused much satisfaction among the President's advisers: All along the route the enthusiasm of the railroad employes was manifest. They stood beside the tracks between stations and waved their hats as the train passed, and at brief stops they were always among the first to rush up and seize the President's hand extended to them over the platform rail.

The President was obviously delighted with the reception. He smiled broadly, and each time as the train pulled out, leaving a cheering contingent of Wilson's supporters behind, he would remain on the platform waving his hand.

The politicians along the route did not try to conceal their pleasure at the way the people turned out. At the instance of the Democratic State Committee, the Ohio County Committees had sedulously advertised the President's coming, but they had been pessimistic about the result, because everyone knew there would be no speeches. At Alliance, a railroad town, several railroad operatives delighted the Democratic leaders by assuring them that when Mr. Hughes was there he did not get a fifth of the crowd that appeared today.

E. G. Hoffman, Democratic National Committeeman for Indiana, who boarded the train at Lima, Ohio, for a conference with the President, predicted with every show of confidence that Indiana would go Democratic.

"The world war is not finished," he said, "and a Republican victory at the polls would endanger our country's peace. The people of Indiana are overwhelmingly against the warlike implications of the Hughes-Roosevelt criticisms of the Wilson foreign policies. The President has a large personal following among Indiana Republicans, and he is assured of 35 per cent. of the Progressive vote."

Eight-Hour Issue Prominent.

The eight-hour law issue stood out prominently, and shouts of approval of his settlement of the strike greeted the President everywhere. At Orrville, Ohio, a railroad town, a voice from the crowd cried: "You were with us in the eight-hour day, and we are with you now." An outburst of cheering followed. At Lima, Ohio, also, where a big crowd had gathered, with a band and numerous flags, a shout of "Hurrah for the Eight-Hour law," brought another great outburst. At Fort Wayne, Ind., a brakeman pushed his hand up with the remark: "Right there Mr. President. She's dirty, but she's going to hit the rooster hard."

It is predicted by Ohio and Indiana politicians that the eight-hour question will prove to be the biggest factor in deciding the outcome of the campaign in those States, and the Democrats are claiming victory on that basis.

Of the hyphenate question there was little sign today. In much of the section of Ohio through which the President passed the German vote is a powerful factor, but no conclusions as to the way it would go could be drawn from the conduct of the crowds. In several places comments could be heard spoken with a marked German accent, blended with the general remarks approving the President.

The President's enjoyment of the people's enthusiasm was plainly indicated in the remarks he made. At Lima, in response to calls for a speech, he said: "My friends, I am not making a speech-making campaign, but I can say that it touches me and gratifies me very much to get the greetings I have received all along the line. Ohio has certainly shown her hospitality."

Some one in the crowd shouted: "We didn't want a speech; we wanted to see our President."

The crowd laughed as the President

GERMAN WASTAGE HEAVY

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Great Britain is in urgent need of men for her armies, and also for her munitions factories. A statement to this effect was given out today by the Man Power Distribution Board, recently appointed to comb out men eligible for military service in the United Kingdom who have not yet been enrolled in the army.

When Parliament reassembles next week the Government will be confronted with new embarrassing proposals for the application of conscription in Ireland.

The Man Power Distribution Board reported it had examined officials of the Admiralty, War Office, Ministry of Munitions and other departments, and that there was urgent need of fresh supplies of men for the armies and munition factories, in order "to maintain our forces in the field at the numbers already fixed for them, and at the same time to maintain the supply of munitions essential for their equipment and proper utilisation."

The board therefore directed that no exemption be granted certain classes heretofore exempt, and that there be a more general dilution of skilled labor in munitions factories with women and other workers heretofore untrained. It suggested conferences of employers and employes with a view to freeing skilled labor now engaged in private work for employment in munitions plants.

Laborers Must be Released.

"It is essential," the report says, "that a large part of the labor now engaged in private work shall be diverted to Government orders or released for the army."

The board also has under consideration the extended use of women and of men over the military age, and also the release of men of military age now employed in Government offices. This is the only means, the board says, whereby extension of the age for compulsory service can be avoided.

The Times and other newspapers recently have been conducting a strong campaign for conscription in Ireland, and decisions announced today by the Man Power Distribution Board and by General Sir William Robertson, Chief of the Imperial Staff, that more men are urgently needed, will, it is believed, strengthen the hands of the agitators, who have been joined by Sir Edward Carson.

Sir Edward asserts that the situation is such that without conscription in Ireland it will be impossible even to maintain the Irish regiments at the front in their proper strength. He contends that Ireland could provide another half million men of military age, and asks what the colonies, which have made such sacrifices for the empire, will think of the shirking of Ireland.

While most of the responsible politicians are agreed that it would be inexpedient to attempt to apply compulsion to Ireland while Home Rule is withheld from it, undoubtedly in the present phase of the European war those who are demanding conscription hold a strong hand and the Government may find it difficult to resist their demand.

The Nationalists, in reply to Sir Edward Carson, point out that the colonies already have self-government and hence there is no analogy with the position of Ireland. They assert that Ireland will be found to be a united nation in resistance to compulsion.

The Liberal newspapers consider the agitation another attempt to unseat Premier Asquith, and contend that while compulsion in Ireland would provide a few men it would provoke another first-class Irish crisis and throw Ireland into the hands of the Sinn Feiners.

Robertson Sounds Warning.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—General Sir William Robertson, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, spoke in confident terms of coming victory today when unveiling a village cross erected at Dalderby, Lincolnshire, to commemorate services of its manhood in the fighting forces of the empire. He said:

From whatever point of view you look at the situation today, you can do so without anxiety. Not only have we got men—I do not say enough—but, thanks to the men and women of this country, we have artillery and ammunition and plenty of big ammunition that is known at the front as Lloyd George's special. I think we can look forward with every confidence. I say that also because of the splendid spirit that prevails at the front, where you must go for the best judges of our prospects of winning.

"Notwithstanding this I would like to add a serious note of warning. The end is not yet. How long we must be prepared to go on is impossible to estimate. 'Prepare for the worst and hope for the best.' That is a good motto. We have yet a long way to go and we must be ready to go all the way. 'Fight to a finish' is the order.

"There must be no slacking; there must be great tightening up. We have adopted the principle of national service in theory; we must see that we put that principle into practice. We want more men. We want them now, and in due course we shall want all men who

BOY BREAKS HIS NECK IN FOOTBALL TACKLE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—R. F. Waldonian, a freshman at the University of Pennsylvania, is dying at the university hospital from injuries received on Monday, when his neck was broken in football practice.

Waldonian, when the accident occurred, was tackling the dummy. He sprang at it swiftly, but missed, and struck headfirst the wooden framework from which it was suspended.

Waldonian's father was sent for, and is watching at his bedside. A pulmotor is used frequently to prolong his life. Death, it is believed, is only a matter of hours.

All the football candidates are examined by physicians, and are not permitted to compete for the teams unless they meet certain physical requirements. Waldonian was graduated in 1915 from the Vineland High School, where he was regarded as a fine football player. He attended Syracuse University last year and was a substitute player on the eleven there.

ITALIAN SHIP ON FIRE PUTS IN AT AZORES

New York Agent Sure that Bombs Started Flames in the Milazzo's Cargo.

FAYAL, Azores, Oct. 4.—The Italian steamer Milazzo, from New York, Sept. 24, for Genoa, arrived at this port with fire in three of her holds.

The Milazzo sailed from this port on Sept. 24, for Genoa, with 10,000 tons of cargo, consisting chiefly of steel, silk and 3,000 tons of sugar, for the Italian Government. William Hartfield, agent for the steamship, said he had no doubt that incendiary bombs that had been hidden among the sugar in the cargo, before the vessel left New York, had started the blaze. Several vessels have been set on fire in this manner, including the Sant' Anna, of the Fabre Line, which had to put in at Fayal and transfer her passengers. The bombs are believed to have been put in the sugar bags on the lighters while in transit from the refinery to the steamship at the pier.

FIGHT ON CHANCELLOR CARRIED TO REICHSTAG

BERLIN, Oct. 3, (via London, Oct. 4.)—The campaign against the Imperial Chancellor, von Bethmann Hollweg, which in its latest development has taken the form of a circular distributed among the members of the Reichstag urging them to demand the Chancellor's retirement, is daily assuming a more tangible form.

The indictment contained in the circular covers almost everything in the Chancellor's conduct of foreign affairs before and during the war. Attacks are made in particular on his attempts to reach an agreement his policy in the submarine issue.

Meanwhile the Chancellor and the Reichstag leaders continue to discuss the points at issue behind closed doors. The discussion is being conducted on an even more confidential basis than before. It is being no longer held before the full committee on ways and means to which all members of the Reichstag are admitted as auditors, but in a smaller select committee of party leaders who are especially bound to secrecy. Such reports as come out say that, while the antagonism between the Chancellor and his opponents has not disappeared, the discussion is now being conducted on the basis of reason and not of passion. It is believed that there is a good prospect that an agreement will be reached which will avoid the open discussion of issues before the Reichstag. The friends of the Chancellor appear to be satisfied with the situation, and assert that he has it well in hand.

Another factor, which is disturbing the political situation, is a breach of the political truce proclaimed at the outset of the war which has been made by the Saxon Socialists. The faction has determined to run a candidate for the seat in the Reichstag vacated by the death of the Conservative, Ernst Eduard Giese. This determination violates the general agreement between the political parties that all vacant seats shall be resigned without contest to the party holding them at the outset of the war.

TAKE A GERMAN SHIP FOR EVERY ONE SUNK

British Figuring on Ton-for-Ton Policy as One of the Clauses of the Peace Treaty.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—In naval circles it is generally felt that the German submarine campaign has again assumed serious proportions. In these circles the opinion is expressed that Germany has after-war as well as present conditions in view in her destruction of tonnage, and the feeling is growing that Great Britain soon will be compelled publicly to announce a ton-for-ton policy as one of the clauses in the peace treaty unless Germany desists in sinking merchant tonnage.

The naval authorities are manifesting great interest in the fate of the German submarine Bremen, which some time ago was reported to have sailed for the United States and which they say is now greatly overdue.

It is known here that the Bremen was reported while on her way to the United States, but the last report of her showed her to be a considerable distance from the American coast.

MACKENSEN COUP DRIVES RUMANIAN ARMY OVER DANUBE

TEUTON DEFEAT IN NORTH

WAR CABINET FOR GREECE

King Will Ask Three Adherents of Venizelos to Join Entirely New Ministry.

LONDON, Thursday, Oct. 5.—The Rumanian invasion of Bulgaria has proved abortive, according to an official announcement from Berlin, which says that as the result of encircling movements put in operation by Field Marshal Mackensen, the force which flanked him by crossing the Danube between the fortress of Rustchuk and Tutrakan has retreated back into Rumania.

The Russo-Rumanian attack on Mackensen's line across Dobrudja, however, continues to make progress in the center and on the left, where 1,000 men and seven guns have been captured. In Transylvania, too, the Rumanians are pushing a successful offensive, and have taken 2,000 prisoners. The German report shows that the Rumanian army which was defeated at Hermannstadt has rallied and is in action again.

Following is the German Army Headquarters statement issued yesterday:

German and Bulgarian troops of the army of Field Marshal von Mackensen delivered an encircling attack, with the result that the Rumanian forces which crossed the Danube near Rjabovo, south of Bucharest, withdrew in hasty flight.

In the Georgeny Valley (Transylvania) the Rumanians made several vain attacks. West of Parajd they gained advantages. We are before Fogaras.

Battle South of Rothanthurm.

West of Canani, at the southern exit of Rothenthurm Pass, fighting took place with Rumanian troops, the latter having been dispersed during the battle of Hermannstadt. Enemy attacks in the Hatzag Mountains were unsuccessful. West of Oboro Height our allies gained ground.

The report made public yesterday by the Rumanian War Office reads:

On the northern and western fronts, in the Kaliman and Ghurghiui mountains, small engagements occurred.

In the region of Odorkim there were engagements in which the enemy was repulsed. We took prisoner fourteen officers and 1,228 men.

Between Fogaras and Sighisoara our forces were engaged against German and Austrian troops, which were defeated. We took 800 Germans prisoner and captured eight machine guns.

In the mountains west of the River Alt we made progress. In the Jiul Valley our troops have been slightly withdrawn by reason of the violent attacks of the enemy. Before falling back they destroyed the coal mines of Petroseny, which constituted the enemy's objective.

At Orsova (on the Danube near the Hungarian-Rumanian frontier) we repulsed three enemy attacks.

On the southern fronts in Dobrudja, in spite of the stubborn resistance of the enemy and the violent fire of his heavy artillery, our attack continues to make progress in the centre. On our left wing we conquered a position at Amzacea, where we took seven guns, more than 1,000 prisoners and much material.

Russian Gunboats in Action.

Petrograd yesterday issued a report of operations in Dobrudja. It says:

VIENNA, Oct. 4, (via London, Oct. 5.)—The official statement from General Headquarters issued today reads:

South of Hermannstadt a Rumanian battalion which was still wandering about has been annihilated. East of the Rothenthurm defile the frontier crest has been reached at several places. Further eastward the Austro-Hungarian and German forces are pushing toward Fogaras.

On several sectors in Transylvania on the east front Rumanian attacks have been repulsed. Only on the Little Kukel could the enemy advance his position.

SOFIA, Oct. 3, (via London, Oct. 4.)—The Rumanians who have crossed the Danube and invaded Bulgaria are described as "considerable units of troops" in an official statement issued by the War Office today, which, however, does not report any clash between the Bulgarians and the invaders. The text of the statement follows:

Danube Front—We occupied the island of Malakalafat on the Danube, opposite Widin. We bombarded with success the post and barracks at Kalafat, near the village of Gludicin, and dispersed by artillery fire a detachment which was preparing to intrench. Near the village of Rahovo the enemy succeeded in throwing a bridge over the river by which he was able to convey across considerable units of troops. Austrian monitors destroyed the bridge at the Dobrudja side.

In the Dobrudja the enemy's offensive on the Resihaul-Amzatzia-Perveti line was stopped by our fire. Counterattacks on the right wing ended in the repulse of the enemy, who was driven back to his former positions. An enemy battalion was practically annihilated and two officers and 100 men who survived were taken prisoner.

Black Sea Coast—A hostile torpedo boat unsuccessfully bombarded the town of Mamgalia on Sunday.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—General Falkenhayn, Commander in Chief of the Austro-Hungarian-German troops, fighting in Transylvania, issued the following army order after the victorious battle of Hermannstadt:

"I express my full recognition of the splendid performance of troops that participated in the battle before Hermannstadt. Forward, then, to new deeds and new victories for all that is dear to us."

The importance of Falkenhayn's victory, which is still being exploited, overshadows the legend that the former Chief of Staff had fallen into the Kaiser's disfavor. It has produced a strong moral effect both at home and in the field. I found that it was the talk of the day on the Somme front during my recent visit and exceeding joy prevailed, increasing if possible the confidence and determination to hold out of these German Somme fighters, from General Gollwitz down. The battle of Hermannstadt, despite the small number of prisoners and guns taken, has the importance of almost a decisive victory because of its moral effect.

The well-informed Budapest Azest learns the following additional details:

"The Rumanians took up a semi-circular position before Hermannstadt, with their right wing at Oria, their left at Scolemeny, and their centre standing at Sellehberk. Our troops, too, were lined up in a semi-circle north of Hermannstadt, which thus lay between the two fronts. In our centre north of Hermannstadt and in the region of St. Elizabeth stood the Honveds and on both wings the German troops.

"For two days smaller artillery and infantry engagements took place, during which a Bavarian army column left our positions and after unbelievable efforts reached the Red Tower Pass. As soon as the Bavarians had appeared there our entire front began to stir and took up battle against the Rumanian line, the Rumanians being thus compelled to fight simultaneously against four fronts.

"At their backs stood the Bavarians. From the north came the Hungarian Honveds and from both wings pressed the German troops. This strategic situation would have been critical for any army, particularly if it still had to undergo its baptism of fire. All reports agree, however, that the Rumanians fought surprisingly well."

CONSTANTINE TO CREATE A GREEK WAR CABINET

Will Call on Three Venizelists to Join It—French Suppress Riot in Athens.

ATHENS, Oct. 4.—King Constantine presided over the Crown Council held at the palace this morning to consider written opinions of the situation submitted by each minister, to which the minister's resignation was appended, to be accepted in case the opinions were unsatisfactory to the monarch.

The Minister of the Interior, Loucas Roufas, the Minister of Communications, Lysandre Kaftand Joglow, and the Minister of Justice, M. Vokotopoulos, opposed Grece's entry into the war.

The king promptly accepted the resignation of the entire ministry for the purpose of forming a national war Cabinet, which will include three of the adherents of former Premier Venizelos.

Demetrios Diamantidis, Minister of Communications in the Venizelos Cabinet, was called to the palace to advise the king respecting the Venizelists to be chosen. The former President of the Chamber, Constantine Zavitsanos, and the former Minister of the Interior, M. Kafandaris, are under consideration in addition to M. Diamantidis.

The Government not having succeeded in getting into touch with the representatives of the Entente powers, and considering that the situation hinders progress in national questions, has begged the King to accept its resignation. The King has accepted the resignation of the Government.

Venizelos Ready to Co-operate.

LONDON, Thursday, Oct. 5.—"Former Premier Venizelos," says The Daily Mail's Canea (Crete) correspondent, "has been sounded from Athens by a personage close to King Constantine as to whether, in the event of war being declared on Bulgaria, M. Venizelos would demand the Premiership in a Cabinet of his own choosing or be content to support a coalition Cabinet in which his party would be represented, or whether he would support a Cabinet which, though not containing members of his party, would declare war and act generally along the lines of his policy.

"M. Venizelos answered that he was ready to support any Cabinet which would put Greece's forces in the field beside those of the Entente Powers. The former Premier said he wanted no Cabinet post for himself or for his followers."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Oct. 4, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—The resignation of the whole Cabinet has been accepted by the King. The document placed before him by the Cabinet, giving its final views of the situation, consisted of a majority and minority opinion. Premier Kalgeropoulos and four of his colleagues declared in favor of the abandonment of neutrality. The minority consisted of M. Roufas and M. Vokotopoulos, who were strongly against war.

The King is said to favor M. Stratos as the next Prime Minister. Stratos hitherto has been a strong pro-German, but lately he announced that he had "found salvation," and since then has been engaged in forming a neo-Entente party, so as to give the policy of intervention a majority in the Chamber should the King decide eventually to throw in his lot with the Allies. As his reward Stratos claims, if not the Premiership, at least the post of Minister of War. So far his success is not very pronounced. The Neon Asty, the organ of the Gounarists, announces tonight that Stratos has been removed from the Entente blacklist.

During last evening members of the reservists' leagues were busy creating disturbances in Athens. About 8 o'clock a gang of these roughs attacked with stones several French motor cars, the windows of which were smashed. A detachment of French marines had to be called. They fixed bayonets and drove off the mob. In one of the theatres later the rioters created a scene, but the most serious incident occurred outside the residence of M. Gounaris.

There is always a band of reservists loitering about that spot, and this evening they heard a number of people discussing the situation and expressing themselves in favor of Venizelos. Some of the reservists drew revolvers and fired. Two of the Venizelists were wounded seriously enough to require being taken to a hospital.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The steady, persistent offense of the Serbs in Macedonia is reaching a most interesting phase. This campaign is generally a puzzle due to lack of familiarity with the country, and the fact that not as yet has the hand of the Entente Powers been shown. The great army which Sarrail has been welding together and building up for the past year has not yet been in action. We have seen only spasmodic efforts here and there as a rule, with the exceptions of the Serbian offense in Macedonia and a frequently interrupted British pressure along the Struma Valley.

As a campaign it does not seem to have yet begun. We have seen no general attempt to advance, no concerted action by the various forces in the different parts of the line. When this will come, if at all, what Sarrail is waiting for, what will happen when it does come, these are questions that all of the world is waiting to have answered. But even while our minds are in this undecided, chaotic state in regard to the happenings on the Saloniki front, we can see clearly what the Serbians are doing and what their accomplishments are to date.

It will be recalled that for some time the official reports of Bulgaria and Serbia have been full of reference to the height of Kaimakcalan. This is an eminence which rises from a range of mountains, the main ridge of which curves generally with the course of the Cerna River, overlooking for nearly twenty miles the valley of this stream. From a point north from Monastir the river flows south until it reaches a point about east of the Kenali Station on the Monastir-Saloniki Railroad, after which the river reverses and flows north. It is about the loop thus formed that the hardest fighting is going on. The height of Kaimakcalan dominates this loop and exposes practically all of the Bulgarian positions as far west as the railroad.

The Bulgarians, after their retreat of several weeks ago, took up positions just north of Florina, stretching across what might be termed the Florina plain, an avenue of open, level country between the heavily buttressed valley of the Cerna and the hills which frame the eastern coast of Lake Presba. It was the defense of their positions on this plain that forced the Bulgarians to make their determined fight for Kaimakcalan. But this height fell into the hands of the Serbians after a series of most bitterly contested efforts. From then on the Serbian problem was simple. As they advanced down the western slope of Kaimakcalan their forces were brought dangerously near the Bulgarian line of communications, which consists of the railroad to Monastir and the metaled road which parallels the railroad. In other words, the Bulgarians are being clearly flanked out of their position on the Florina plain.

It is not made perfectly clear by the reports of the fighting in this section whether the Serbians have crossed the Cerna and taken possession of this loop. It appears that they have. The official report of yesterday would indicate that the line runs from Negochani, a small town on the Rakowa River, west of Kenali, across the loop to the village of Petalino, about five miles northwest of Kaimakcalan. If this is the true state of affairs it means that on a front of about twenty miles the Serbs have advanced somewhat over five miles and are now only ten miles from Monastir. The Serbs are already on their own soil, for the first time since their defeat of last Winter. The border has been crossed, and the field of battle is shifting to the north. How far it will go before the remainder of the line swings into action will depend, naturally, on what line has been selected as the main line of advance.

In spite of the fact that all of the fighting so far has been as far away from the valley of the Vardar as it is possible to get (the British have been fighting along the Struma far to the east and the Serbs in Macedonia far to the west) it is still not apparent that the line of the Vardar is not to be the main effort. If this is the intention what could be more logical than that every possible effort would be made before the attack is launched to draw from that line every possible force that might oppose them? And what would be better calculated to effect just this than a more or less vigorous and sustained offensive at distant points? Is it not entirely consistent with all of the great attacks which have been hurled at the Teutonic Allies since the early Summer?

It is needless to recapitulate. We see the sequence, Russia, Italy, the French and British, the Rumanians, and now the combined efforts of all at Saloniki. The last link in the iron chain is being forged. Soon it will be welded into place and the pressure will be complete at every point.

On the Struma front, as I have noted, the British are also maintaining more or less consistent pressure on the Teutonic left flank. They have an immediate object in the railroad which runs from Demir Hissar to Seres, all of which is in the hands of the Bulgarians. Railroads in this wild mountainous country have an importance far greater than in any of the other war theatres. There are no roads here, no other means of communications. An army must hold the railroads in order to operate with any chance of success. In the region between these two towns there are really two valleys, that of the Struma and that of its tributary the Valovishka. These valleys form a plain some eighteen miles long and on an average about seven miles wide. Through this plain runs the railroad. At Seres, the British are but a mile from the railroad. In the northern end of the plain they are about five miles distant.

Once this stretch of railroad is in British hands, the Bulgarians will be to a great extent thrust back into the heavy mountains to the east, and will be cut off from their main line of supplies. Dependence will have to be placed then on the meager mountain trails which lead down from the Strumnitza valley. This will bring about a rather curious situation. These trails might be sufficient to bring forward the necessary food, but, as the fighting proceeds, the demand for shell will grow heavier with each day's fighting. Then will Bulgaria feel the pinch.

It may not be apparent to the world for some time. It will never be admitted by Sofia, needless to say, whose reports dilate only on how successfully they are resisting attacks while at the same time they are being thrust back from absolutely vital positions. But the need will exist and the Bulgarian leaders will feel it just as the Russian leaders felt it over a year ago, although it was not published to the world. It will be revealed just as it was in the case of the Russians, by the necessity of retreat.

ALLIES ON SOMME GAIN MORE GROUND

British Take All of Eaucourt Village, While French Advance Near Morval.

RAIN HINDERS FIGHTING

But the Day's Total of Prisoners Is 350, General Foch's Troops Capturing 300.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The British troops north of the Somme have completed the capture of the village of Eaucourt l'Abbaye (southeast of Le Sais), according to the British official report issued this afternoon.

Rain is still falling on the front, and, consequently, there has been little fighting in the last 24 hours. The Germans, however, keep up their continuous shelling of the new British positions.

The French have pushed forward their lines a short distance on the front extending from the village of Norval to the St. Pierre-Vaast Wood. Here the French, in the course of the day, took 300 prisoners.

The British afternoon report reads:

Eaucourt l' Abbaye has been cleared of the enemy and is entirely in our hands.

During the night there was considerable shelling on our front south of the Ancre. Otherwise there was no change. A heavy rain has fallen since morning.

The British official communication issued tonight says:

South of the Ancre hostile artillery has been active, especially against the neighborhood of the Zollern redoubt and between Gueudecourt and Eaucourt l'Abbaye. Halfway between the last named points the enemy attempted a bombing attack, but was driven off leaving wounded outside our line.

There has been considerable shelling south of Ypres of men in the roads. Elsewhere on our front the day was quiet. Rain continued throughout most of the day.

The French communiqué issued this afternoon says:

North of the Somme we completed the capture of a powerful line of German trenches between Morval and the St. Pierre-Vaast Wood. We made about 300 prisoners, including ten officers.

South of the Somme there was a lively enemy bombardment of the region of Belloy-en-Santerre. The night was calm on the rest of the front.

The French night report adds:

There was no event of importance on the whole front.

In the Somme region the customary cannonade occurred, more intense in the environs of Belloy and Assevillers. Our infantry advanced east of Morval.

In Alsace there was a duel with trench weapons at Barrenkopf and Reichackerkopf.

British Repulsed, Says Berlin.

BERLIN, Oct. 4, (via London.)—The allied attack along the Somme front resulted yesterday in further fighting near Thiepval and Mouquet Farm. The repulse of the British is reported in today's official announcement. Following is the statement:

Army Group of Prince Rupprecht—On the battle front north of the Somme during the day the artillery engagement increased steadily in intensity, attaining its greatest height during the afternoon, in the Morval-Bouchavesnes sector. Strong French attacks against our positions on the Sailly-Rancourt road, at St. Pierre-Vaast Wood and in adjacent parts of the wood on the southeast thereof were repulsed, partly in hand grenade engagements. One officer, 128 men and two machine guns fell into our hands.

British attacks near Thiepval and and Mouquet Farm were repulsed easily.

Near Germans' Fourth Line.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—An official statement issued here today gives details of the fighting on the Somme front after the advance of Sept. 15, describing the capture of villages, including Combles, Gueudecourt, and Thiepval, and proceeds: "These victories brought our front line at more than one point within a mile of the German fourth position west of the Bapaume-Transloy road."

AUSTRIAN ATTACKS FAIL.

Italians Report Repulse of Foe in Travignolo-Avisio Valley.

ROME, Oct. 4.—The War Office today issued the following statement on military operations:

On the entire front the artillery has been active. Enemy batteries were notably active in the Gorizia area and on the Carso. In the Travignolo-Avisio Valley, after intense artillery preparation, the enemy launched determined and repeated attacks on all our positions on the heights on the southern side. Everywhere they were driven off with heavy losses.

On the northern slopes of Val Bricon our troops made a vigorous counterattack and succeeded in gaining new ground toward the mountain called Col Bricon Piccolo (Little Col Bricon).

Heavy Attacks on Carso Plateau.

On the Carso Plateau the enemy carried out artillery and mining operations during the afternoon, which increased to great strength at night. The activity in this sector is considerably more lively than usual.

Early today the enemy attacked astride Oppachiasella and penetrated our foremost trenches, but was immediately ejected.

Carinthian front: The enemy bombed several localities in the Gail Valley. Our artillery replied. In the Fleims Valley there was artillery firing. A hostile attack in the Col Bricon region resulted in no advance owing to our fire. On Monte Cimone we dug out six machine guns.

TIRPITZ NOT A CANDIDATE.

Will Run for No Office While the War Lasts.

BERLIN, Oct. 4, (via London.)—Admiral von Tirpitz, former head of the German Admiralty, received the offer of the Conservative nomination for a Reichstag seat vacancy to be filled at a bye-election in Saxony, but declined, replying that he had reached a decision in the interests of Germany's cause to accept no candidacy while the war lasted.

GERMANS LACK GUNS AND OTHER SUPPLIES

ADMITS MANY FAILURES

Counterattacks, Too Hastily Organized, He Says, Have Proved Only Costly Setbacks.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Oct. 4.—Germany is short of guns, aeroplanes, and war material of all sorts, but not of food, according to a sensational document captured by the British, which is called "the experiences of the Fourth German Corps in the battle of the Somme."

The document was written as instructions to the troops. It was drawn from the lessons of the battle by General Count Sixt von Arnim, Corps Commander, who has been fighting opposite the British throughout the offensive. This document discusses the shortcomings of every branch of the German Army in view of the unexpected power and organization which the British have shown. The document starts out by paying a tribute to the British infantry, "which undoubtedly has learned much since last Autumn's offensive."

"It shows great dash in attack," the document says. "The Englishman also has physique and training in his favor. One must acknowledge the skill of the English in rapidly consolidating captured positions and their great tenacity in the defense of them."

Artillery Easily Hit.

Because the breech actions of so many German rifles have been clogged with dirt, General von Arnim suggests in the document that it would be advisable to fit a cover over the breech of the rifles, like that used in the British Army, which can be easily unfastened and then hangs from the rifle.

Explicit instructions are given in the document to artillery to change their methods of placing batteries in villages and behind steep slopes, because of the British method of distribution of their artillery fire, which prodigally searches all obvious shelters. Owing to the terrific concentration of the British artillery fire, says the document, front lines of trenches should be thinly held and dependence placed on small groups of machine gunners. Once the British lay a curtain of fire on a trench, it adds, the men had better evacuate it and lie down in the open.

Most interesting to the officers, in view of the fact that the British have so consistently held ground they have taken against counterattack, is what General von Arnim says on the subject.

"If counterattacks, which on account of the situation ought to be methodically prepared, are hurried, they cost much blood, because the troops lose their trust in the leaders if they fail, which nearly always happens," says General von Arnim.

Signal System Broke Down.

He then complains that the "existing telephone system has proved totally inadequate in consequence of the development of the fighting," and says the artillery signal system broke down. The commander asserts that he has discovered that British aeroplanes use sound signals to tell gunners where their shells are falling, and says the Fourth Corps already has started an experiment on the same kind of method as a complement to the wireless, which is frequently interrupted.

"The numerical superiority of the British airmen and the fact that their machines are better made is disagreeably apparent to us," General von Arnim says, and he speaks of the surprisingly bold procedure of British airmen, who were often "able to fire successfully on our troops with machine guns by descending to within a few hundred feet of the ground."

He adds that the German anti-aircraft guns could not continue firing at that height "without exposing their own troops to the serious danger of shell fragments." Before the battle of the Somme airmen kept at anywhere from 6,000 to 12,000 feet over the lines on account of anti-aircraft gunfire.

General von Arnim, in the document, warns his infantry to use their rifles against these daring British aviators. He says that the ammunition supply and the artillery are inadequate and that maps were insufficient in quantity and as regards details. Also the supply of horses has reaced the utmost limit.

Food in Sufficient Quantities.

Of the food supply General von Arnim says:

"No special difficulties arose. The supply columns proved sufficient."

But he emphasizes the importance of mineral waters and beverages, which the British have always found plentiful in captured German trenches, and says that the troops cannot have too much of all kinds of sausages and meat when fighting. Dried herring are unsatisfactory, as they increase thirst. Alcoholic drinks need not be served out to the troops in dry, warm weather, but solidified alcohol, for cooking warm meals has proved useful.

Fresh troops, says the document, should always be used for attack. They should avoid sunken roads and natural cover, as the British, with their plentiful gunfire, are sure to have these points registered by their guns and turn loose on them immediately the attack starts.

General von Arnim emphasizes the value of the steel helmets, which the French first introduced, and with which the Germans are not yet fully supplied.

As an idea of the amount of ammunition such battle conditions as those of the Somme require, General von Arnim says that a battery of four field guns should have 2,200 rounds at the battery itself, aside from its reserve supply.

MONASTIR RAILROAD REACHED BY SERBS

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The Entente Allies in Western Macedonia continue to make progress along the entire front, it is announced in the official bulletins today.

Unofficial advices received in Paris say the Serbians have crossed the Cerna River and defeated their adversary on the Nize Mountain in Serbia and also captured the Kenali Railroad station. The Serbian territory recaptured, it is added, now embraces 230 square kilometers, including seven towns.

The statement made by the French War Office says.

Following is the British War Office report:

Early yesterday our troops advanced from our new positions near the Karajakeui villages and captured the part of Yenikeui which lies to the south of the Seres road.

The Bulgarians attacked immediately, but their first counterattack was broken up by our artillery fire. The second attack had no more success than the first and never approached closer than 1,000 yards. During the evening a third attack, preceded by a heavy bombardment, was made with fresh troops and fighting continues. Severe casualties were inflicted on the enemy.

BERLIN, Oct. 4, (via London.)—German and Bulgarian forces on the western end of the Macedonian front, where heavy fighting with the Serbians has been in progress for several weeks, have again fallen back. Today's official statement reports the withdrawal of troops near Presba Lake to prepared positions. The statement follows:

Between Presba Lake and the Nize Hill, north of Kaimakcalan Height, our troops have withdrawn to new positions in accordance with orders. Fighting continues on the Nize Hill.

SOFIA, Oct. 3, (via London, Oct. 4.)—Concerning the operations on the Macedonian front the War Office today gave out the following:

East and west of Florina there was lively artillery activity without any infantry action. In the Moglena Valley there was artillery, infantry, and machine-gun fire. On both sides of the Vardar there was weak artillery activity, which became more violent south of Lake Doiran. At the foot of the Belaschitza Mountains there was quiet. On the Struma front there was violent artillery fire on both sides, and the fighting near Karajakeui continues with stubbornness.

SANK 50 ALLIED CRAFT.

German Report Covers Ten Days—38 Were British Trawlers.

BERLIN, Oct. 4, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—Thirty-five vessels of countries at war with Germany, with a total tonnage of 14,000, were sunk by German submarines in the North Sea or the English Channel between Sept. 20 and Sept. 29, the Overseas News Agency announces. This is in addition to eleven British fishing steamers and four Belgian lighters whose sinking has already been reported.

Twenty-seven of the thirty-five were fishing steamers. Thirty-one prisoners were brought in by the submarines.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Lloyd's reports that the Norwegian steamer Ada has been sunk. The crew was landed.

The Ada, of 1,111 tons gross, was last reported as having sailed from the Clyde on Sept. 15 for Bayonne, France.

Pope Glad of Peace Efforts.

BERLIN, Oct. 4, (via London.)—Pope Benedict, according to Germania, recently wrote to Cardinal von Bettinger, Archbishop of Munich, saying that he had done everything possible in the past two years to restore peace and diminish the horrors of war, and that he thanked God something had been accomplished.

RUSSIANS SHELL BRZEZANY SUBURBS

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Russian forces driving at Lemberg are attacking the important railroad town of Brzezany, fifty miles southeast of the Galician capital, according to unofficial news from Petrograd. Reuter's correspondent there wires that after three days of incessant and furious fighting the Russians, under cover of artillery fire, forced their way across the Zlota Lipa River south of Brzezany, driving the Austro-German forces from the heights. The Russian artillery then advanced and began a bombardment of the camps, military establishments and suburbs of the town.

On the River Yeniuvka and at the source of the Zlota Lipa, (in Galicia) the enemy stubbornly holds his position.

During battles in the region of Dorna Watra (Rumanian frontier) our brave brigade commander, General Khoranov, who participated in the campaigns of 1877 and 1904, was seriously wounded.

Berlin Tells of Russian Defeats.

BERLIN, Oct. 4, (via London.)—The Russians continued yesterday their heavy assaults on the Austro-German lines. Today's official announcement reports the defeat of the Russians by the troops of Prince Leopold. The statement follows:

Army Group of Prince Leopold—After the sanguinary breaking down of their attacks before the positions under the army of General Tersztansky, west of Lutsk, (Volhynia,) Monday, the Russians suffered a fresh heavy defeat yesterday, when the troops under Lieut. Gen. Schmidt von Knobelsdorf and General von der Marwitz received the storming enemy, who attacked several times with the assurance of calm victors. Not a foot of ground was lost. The Russian dead number thousands.

Southwest of Rovno First Lieut. von Cossel was landed by Pilot Windisch and brought back by him twenty-four hours later, after he had severed the Rovno-Brody railway line by the use of explosives.

Army Group of Archduke Charles Francis—There is nothing new to report.

Front of Prince Leopold.—The Russian attacks against the army of General Tersztansky became more spirited in the afternoon. The battlefield extends from Sviniusky to Kiselin. The battle was as violent as on the previous day, and with similar result, namely, complete failure for the enemy, whose losses were extraordinarily heavy. The report of the battle emphasizes the brilliant conduct of the tried Austrian Landwehr Infantry Regiment 24.

Advancing Along Lemberg Railroad.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 2, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—Brusiloff's armies are moving again. From Brody, the frontier station on the way to Lemberg, the railway creeps through a low-lying, rather swampy plain dotted with patches of wood, with here and there a gray village clustered round the squat gray cupola of a church. For weeks past the Russian front has lain perpendicular to this railway, and while progress has been made to the north and south there has been little advance along the railway itself, which is the most direct route to Lemberg.

Now, after several days' hard fighting, General Sakharoff's army has succeeded in bending back the Teuton line, and in advancing along the railway and to the south of it. Krasne, which is its immediate objective, is the one considerable station between Brody and Lemberg, and is the junction of a branch line leading southeast to Tarnopol. Beyond Krasne the plain breaks into low hills which further west form the watershed between the basins of the Bug and Dniester, and shelter and defend Lemberg, only twenty-two miles from Krasne.

To Lemberg is merely a trifle in an express train, but for an army whose movements are bound up with the strategy of a 250-mile front and with still broader plans and calculations distances cannot be measured in terms of express trains, and for the present one must be content with the fact that Sakharoff's centre and left, in conjunction with Scherbatchoff's right, are again advancing; that Sakharoff in the Brody-Krasne direction has taken over 2,000 German prisoners, for the enemy force here is exclusively German, and that south of Brzezany in the direction of Rogatin Scherbatchoff has taken nearly 2,400 prisoners belonging to a mixed force, composed of Germans, Turks, and Austrians.

Whether or not the advance continues and develops into a bigger operation, as it probably will, it is certain to have one immediate useful effect, and that is prevent reinforcements being sent to Transylvania.

can be spared. But we are not justified in expecting to win this war unless the services of every man and woman in this country are utilized to the fullest extent."

No official figures have been given recently as to the number of men serving with the British Army. On May 25 King George, in signing the Military Service bill, placed the number raised up to that time at 5,041,000. In July, August and September the British casualties were 307,169.

SAYS GERMANS HAVE ONLY 60,000 RESERVES

Paris Temps Asserts That Great Wastage in Last Few Months Has Had Telling Effect.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Relative calm, broken here and there by local engagements, reigns on the Somme front, due largely to the rainy weather of the last few days. The local attacks of the Germans against the French lines, which were nowhere successful, indicate their anxiety regarding the important Mont St. Quentin position, which the French advance threatens. It is the big key to Péronne.

The Allies' position is everywhere excellent, the line having been straightened out after the capture of Combles and Thiepval, and, contrary to German reports, has been extended, not shortened.

The extent to which German forces are being used up by the unremitting hammering of the Allies east and west is revealed by statistics which the Temps is authorized to publish.

"According to these figures," the Temps says, "the Central Powers have no longer at their disposal an accumulation of strategic reserves which they can throw into the line wherever decisive actions are intended to be fought. The only manoeuvre now possible for the German General Staff is to take portions of the regular reserves from points not threatened to where they are most needed, relying on the strength of their defenses and the difficulty for their adversary to start offensives without the Germans being apprised.

"This system, however, entails risks, as shown by the surprise blow of the Russians last June. By dint of scraping the Germans have drummed up ten divisions, which they have now sent traipsing from Verdun to the Somme, to Galicia and back. Proof of the non-existence of strategic reserves is the fact that these divisions are constantly on the move, hurried from one battlefield to the other practically without rest. An example is the Forty-third Reserve Division, which was withdrawn on June 10 from the Verdun front and was identified June 24 in the Lutsk region of the eastern front. When the Franco-British drive of Sept. 12 began one division about to entrain for Russia and another already on the way were hurried back to the Somme.

"A list of the regiments identified in the different sectors to the west and east with dates furnishes further ample proof. If strategic reserves were forthcoming, the same division would not be met within five months at Verdun, the Somme and Galicia. The 900 kilometers added to the German battlefront by the entry of Rumania into the conflict reduces the Central Empires to the expedient of forming new divisions with three regiments or nine battalions only. From the records of prisoners, the killed or deserters identified on the various fronts, it transpires that Germany and Austria-Hungary have now only three divisions (60,000 men) each in reserve, whereas at the beginning of the Verdun attack Germany alone had eight reserve divisions on the western front.

"An examination of the conditions in which the last two classes were called up by Germany reveals the interesting facts that the 1915 class was called up six months earlier than the previous class, that the latter only had three to six months' training and that unprecedented calls have been made on the older class in the matter of recuperations, all of which proves that the drain on German resources during the last four months has been much heavier than was foreseen."

To protect depositors
How must a Trust Company or Bank invest its capital?

THE State Law is explicit. For the protection of depositors it requires that the capital of a Trust Company or Bank be invested in:

1. United States or New York State Bonds, or
2. Municipal Bonds in New York State, or
3. Mortgages on Real Estate not exceeding 60% of valuation.

The Columbia Trust Company's capital of $2,000,000 is so invested.

For the furture protection of its depositors the Company holds a surplus and undivided profit fund of over $8,000,000.

ROOSEVELT ADMITS LANE MISQUOTATION

Then Attacks His Indorsement of Administration's Note-Sending Policy.

NO DIPLOMATIC TRIUMPH

Says While We Continued to Write Notes Germans Sank Ships on Which Were Americans.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Oct. 4.—Colonel Roosevelt sent a letter today to Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, in reply to the Secretary's denial that he had admitted that the note-sending policy of the Wilson Administration had been a failure. In his Battle Creek speech, the Colonel quoted Secretary Lane as so saying, and the Secretary quickly informed Mr. Roosevelt that he had not expressed such sentiments.

In his denial, however, Mr. Lane asserted that by the note-sending policy the United States had "achieved the greatest diplomatic triumph of a half century," and the Colonel uses this assertion as a basis for an attack on the Administration. The letter in part is as follows:

In your final paragraph you say that Chief Justice White has been quoted as saying that by our notes to Germany we have achieved the greatest diplomatic triumph of a half century, and you say that you agree with this view, and that we have achieved more by this note-sending than years of war could have accomplished.

I trust for the sake of my esteemed friend, Chief Justice White, that he has been as erroneously quoted in this statement as you were in yours. I remember when the statement was made. It was not at the end of the note-sending episode; it was nearer the beginning, just prior to the sinking of a ship by a German submarine, on which occasion some hundreds of lives were lost. The sinking of this ship, following immediately upon the alleged statement of Chief Justice White, served as a curious commentary thereon.

You are now yourself, my dear Mr. Secretary, in a diplomatic position, conducting negotiations apparently with the object of seeing what we can do to placate the Mexicans for our having permitted them to murder hundreds of our men, women and children, and to settle as to how much money we shall pay them for having forced us already to incur an expenditure of between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000. We incurred this expenditure in taking Vera Cruz and then abandoning it without achieving any results, and in sending the Pershing expedition into Mexico to have our soldiers murdered without exacting any atonement, and in gathering 100,000 National Guardsmen on the border without saying whether they are to wage peace or to wage war.

You say in regard to our note-sending to Germany as having "achieved the greatest diplomatic triumph of a half century":

In February, 1915, in our first note, we informed Germany that if her submarines caused the death of any of our people by sinking ships on which they were traveling we would hold her to strict accountability.

For over a year thereafter we continued to write notes, and the Germans continued to sink the ships on which our citizens were traveling. They killed, all told, some 2,300 noncombatants, between 100 and 200 babies under 2 years of age, fifty of whom were under 1 year of age. There were several hundred women among the persons killed.

We did not hold Germany to "strict accountability." We did not hold her to any accountability, strict or loose. For one year we permitted the killings to go on unchecked. No atonement has been given us by Germany for our people who were killed. It has been announced in the public press that several of the Captains of German submarines have been decorated for the very acts for which we informed Germany that we would hold her to strict accountability. The other day, in the Reichstag, the Chancellor threatened to renew the submarine warfare. Within the last month we have seen notices of several ships of neutrals being torpedoed and sunk with loss of life. It appears that the stoppage was primarily due to the fact that the British, by their vigorous patrol, captured or destroyed most of the submarines.

My dear Mr. Lane, if you regard this record as constituting the "greatest diplomatic triumph of a full half century," and that thereby we achieved more than years of war could have accomplished, you must pardon my saying that you show more easy optimism of nature than soundness of historic judgment.

QUESTIONED HUGHES STAND

Kansas Woman Wants Record Before She'll Contribute.

A copy of a letter written by a Kansas woman, Mrs. Caroline Drennan, replying to a call for funds for the Hughes campaign made by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont of this city was issued from Democratic Headquarters yesterday. Mrs. Drennan writes to Mrs. Belmont that she could make no answer in regard to funds until she learned something of Mr. Hughes's record.

"Did he cast his vote in favor of suffrage when in the Fall of 1915 the women of New York were working so hard in his home State for the Constitutional amendment? Or has his enthusiasm for suffrage been awakened merely to get votes—women's votes to help make him President of the United States?" she says. "The women of Kansas have the suffrage and it is valuable to them only as it is used to gain for humanity the things most needed. We wish to know Mr. Hughes's attitude on questions regarding the child labor law, universal compulsory service, taxes on incomes, inheritances and munitions."

One woman of Massachusetts who has just come out in the support of President Wilson is Miss Mary E. Woolley, President of Mount Holyoke College, Democratic Women's Headquarters announced.

SULZER OUT FOR WHITMAN.

American Party to Support Hughes Also, ex-Governor Says.

William Sulzer and his followers, who organized the American Party in 1914, will campaign actively for Hughes and Whitman. Mr. Sulzer believes his party will poll 50,000 votes and swing the balance if the vote is close.

He said yesterday his party was "double-crossed" in the primary campaign. It had definitely decided to support the entire Democratic ticket. Signed petitions were sent to John H. McCooey in Brooklyn for him to file. The petitions, said Mr. Sulzer, were taken to National Democratic headquarters and sidetracked. At the eleventh hour, he said, the followers of the American Party were told to write in the names of those they favored on the primary ballots. The result was 38 votes for Whitman and 37 for Seabury in the entire State.

Governor Whitman is to be supported, Mr. Sulzer said, not so much because he has made a good Governor as because of his opposition to Tammany, and he believes that the tiger must be driven out of politics.

FINDS TAFT DID NOT SLAP COLONEL'S BACK

Republicans Had Rejoiced All Yesterday in a Tale of Buried Enmity.

Did Colonel Roosevelt and ex-President William H. Taft speak at all during the harmony reception at the Union League Club on Tuesday? That was perhaps the question asked most frequently yesterday when two Republicans met. At midnight no one had been able to find a person who had heard a word beyond the formal "How d'y do?" pass between the two as long as the reception and supper lasted.

Chairman William R. Willcox of the Republican National Committee, to be sure, when reporters asked him yesterday morning what he thought of the reception and the meeting between the Colonel and his rival for the Presidential nomination in 1912, said that he had been told by some one—he did not remember who—that the two principals had met in the club elevator after supper and that one—the informant of Mr. Willcox did not know which—had slapped the other on the back, and, speaking of some point in some speech, had said:

"You were right—that was fine—you just touched the point."

Mr. Willcox said he could not recall which of the speeches of the evening was the subject of this laudatory comment. George W. Perkins said later that if any such comment was passed it must have been on the speech Colonel Roosevelt delivered, and so it must have been Mr. Taft who slapped Colonel Roosevelt on the back.

Thus matters stood at a late hour last night when the following official statement was forthcoming from the headquarters of the Republican National Committee:

"The information given to Chairman William R. Willcox relative to a conversation on Tuesday evening at the Union League Club between former Presidents Roosevelt and Taft in the elevator was incorrect. Mr. Willcox stated early in the day that he had been told of a short conversation between the two men after the Union League Club supper, but it was learned later that such a conversation did not take place."

TRY TO AGREE ON ELECTORS

Perkins and Tanner to Discuss Demands of Bull Moosers Today.

George W. Perkins, Executive Chairman of the Progressive Party, and Frederick C. Tanner, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, will hold a final conference today with a view to reaching some agreement regarding Progressive representation among the Presidential Electors whose names are to appear in the Republican column on the ballot. The Progressives have demanded eight places, but it was learned yesterday that only six vacancies remain.

"Is the demand of the Progressives to be regarded as an ultimatum?" Mr. Perkins was asked.

"No, I would not call it that," was his reply. "It was merely a demand that they do something that they ought to do if they know what is good for them."

Many of the Republican leaders, among them men like George W. Aldridge of Monroe and William L. Ward of Westchester, who have been closely affiliated with Governor Whitman, have urged that no attention be paid to the Bull Moose demands. As the Republican Committee meets tomorrow, the issue must be decided at once.

COLBY VS. COLBY.

Howard Sends to Wilson Fund the Bet He Expects from Everett.

Politics has split many families, but at least the break between the Colby brothers of New Jersey, Howard of Plainfield and Everett, member of the Republican National Campaign Committee, is a friendly one. Howard sent his check for $100 yesterday to Wilbur W. Marsh, Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, explaining:

"The incloses represents the amount I expect to win from my brother on President Wilson's re-election. Please accept it as a campaign contribution."

Said Everett, hearing of this:

"So Howard expects me to pay his contribution does he? Do you know why that brother of mine is for Wilson? I'll tell you. He flunked every examination he ever took at Princeton, but Wilson passed him. That's the reason. But he won't get my money. The election won't turn out that way."

The Pinchot brothers, Amos and Gifford, represent another divided family. The former Chief Forester is working hard for Hughes and Amos is supporting Wilson.

answered: "I don't think much of my speechmaking, but I rather think it is better than I am to look at."

The crowd then asked to see Mrs. Wilson, and the President said: "I'll admit she is better worth looking at than I am."

Mrs. Wilson then joined him on the platform and was heartily cheered.

At Fort Wayne, Ind., where 10,000 people had gathered, Mr. Wilson said: "I haven't anything to say, my fellow-citizens, except that it is exceedingly refreshing to get away from official duties and out among the folks again, and this sort of greeting you are giving me fills my heart with a great deal of gratitude. I am heartily obliged to you."

Among the cheers could be distinguished one remark: "I'm glad he don't wear whiskers."

Another reference to Mr. Hughes's facial adornment came at Valparaiso, Ind., and Mr. Wilson delighted his audience, largely composed of college boys, by saying: "Well, I see you're a clean-shaven crowd yourselves."

At Mansfield, Ohio, the President got another laugh. A man in the crowd cried: "I heard a Republican today say that he was going to vote for you."

"He must be a good man," replied Mr. Wilson.

At Orrville, Ohio, the President excused himself for refusing to make a speech by saying: "I am before the jury, and I can't say anything."

Upon his arrival here the President was met by Senator Walsh of Montana and a group of other Democratic leaders stationed at Western headquarters, who called to pay their respects. A big crowd was waiting for him at the railroad station. He showed himself for a few minutes. His special car was attached to a train for Omaha. Mr. Wilson will reach there at 11:40 A. M. tomorrow. He will go to the Commercial Club for luncheon, review a pageant in the afternoon and in the evening make the main address of the day at a big public gathering.

It was announced today that the commission for the observation of the effects of the Adamson eight-hour law had virtually been decided upon and that its membership would be announced shortly. It is understood that two of its members have accepted and that the acceptance of the third man is expected very soon

TOLEDOANS HECKLE WOMANSPELLBINDER

WELCOMED BY THE ELITE

Indoor Meetings Successful in Both Toledo and Detroit—Latter City Provides Police Protection.

Special to The New York Times.

ON WOMEN'S HUGHES CAMPAIGN TRAIN, DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 4.—Toledo and Detroit, automobile manufacturing centres which have shared to a marked extent in the Wilson Administration's reign of national prosperity, were invaded today by the women campaigners for Hughes. In both places the socially prominent turned out in great style to greet "the billionaire special," as it has been called. The meeting held at the Overland automobile plant in Toledo was a tempestuous affair. In Detroit the women had police protection.

When Toledo was reached this morning it was found that the city which gave Mr. Hughes so cold a reception was heartily welcoming his fair supporters. A brass band perched in a flag-hung motor truck blared, and a reception committee of ten leading Toledo women, headed by Mrs. E. E. Scott, had eighty-five automobiles, strung in a line, for the use of the visiting campaigners.

The first meeting was held in the Valentine Theatre, where 500 men and women heard speeches by Mrs. Rheta Child Dorr, Miss Mary Antin, Mrs. Nelson O'Shaughnessy, Dr. Katharine Bement Davis, Mrs. William Curtis Demorest, and Mrs. E. E. Scott, Chairman of the local committee. The meeting was held in co-operation with the Republican County Committee, and U. G. Denman, Chairman of that organization, presided.

Crowd Anything but Friendly.

At noon Miss Frances Kellor, who was appointed to membership on a State Industrial Commission by Governor Hughes, and who now has charge of the campaign train, motored three miles out to the Overland plant, where there are 16,000 shop workers. Miss Kellor spoke from the same spot that Mr. Hughes chose when he visited the plant. About 200 men clustered about the automobile, while others filled the windows in the big factory across the street, within hearing distance.

The crowd was anything but friendly. Some time was required to quiet the boisterous ones, who kept shouting, "You represent Wall Street." "The Republicans never did anything for labor," and so on.

The belief that the campaigners represented the big money interests was understood to have originated in an article published in a Toledo newspaper this morning listing the wealth of the husbands of the members of the Train Committee. Miss Kellor procured a copy of the paper and, in pronouncing the story untrue, stated that not one of the women traveling in the Hughes Special had "more than $50,000 in her own name." The black-shirted, disheveled workers apparently thought that a modest enough sum and permitted Miss Kellor to start her speech.

She led off with a resumé of Hughes's labor record. She took up the Danbury Hatters' decision, and declared that the Republican nominee had been unfair to unionism. In answering the storm of protest this provoked, Miss Kellor assailed Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, for his support of President Wilson.

"Mr. Gompers did not tell the whole truth about Mr. Hughes," she was resuming.

"Oh, then, Mr. Gompers is a liar, is he?" demanded a man standing in front of the speaker.

"No," replied Miss Kellor, "he is not that; he simply tells half truths. You know the difference between a liar and one who misrepresents, don't you?"

The man evidently didn't know the difference, for he turned away and shouted as a parting shot: "Don't you forget, lady, Mr. Gompers ain't no liar; he's our International President."

Unanimous for Wilson.

Miss Kellor took up the question of the Arizona anti-alien measure and severely criticised Mr. Wilson for sanctioning the law. Then she boldly asked the crowd whether its choice was Mr. Hughes or President Wilson. The answer was for Wilson—unanimously and mightily.

Miss Kellor mentioned Theodore Roosevelt as a friend of labor. The crowd disagreed. A statement that their present prosperity was of Republican origin drew a heated injunction from the men to remember "the 1907 prosperity."

The workers had only thirty minutes for luncheon, hence the meeting was short. When the recall whistle blew, Miss Kellor dashed away to the Toledo Club, where she and the other campaigners were guests at luncheon. In the afternoon the entire party attended a public reception held in the Toledo Art Institute. Twenty speakers from the train gave their reasons for supporting Hughes and then mapped out, in conjunction with the Toledo committee, a plan of campaign to be pursued until election day.

For the first time a committee composed exclusively of men greeted the women upon their arrival in Detroit. These men escorted the campaigners to the Board of Commerce Building, where Miss Kellor, Miss Antin, Mrs. O'Shaughnessy, Miss Maude E. Miner, Mrs. Demorest, and Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott, a daughter of Julia Ward Howe, were the speakers. At the auditorium, a committee of 200 women welcomed the orators to Detroit. All of the arrangements, however, had been made by men, and another non-femininistic touch was the fact that the informal reception that followed the speechmaking was held in the Detroit Athletic Club.

Though they had to compete with Billy Sunday, who has been in Detroit for the last seven weeks in the interest of soul-reclamation, Dr. Davis and Mrs. Jacob Bauer held a large crowd at the single street meeting scheduled. There were few interruptions, a large force of policemen having been detailed to check heckling.

Tomorrow's program includes a short meeting at South Bend, Ind., and in the evening a big demonstration in Chicago.

KING HONORS FLIERS WHO BAGGED ZEPPELINS

LONDON, Oct. 4.—King George, it was officially announced today, has appointed Second Lieutenant Frederick Sowrey and Lieutenant Alfred de Bath Brandon, both officers of the Royal Flying Corps, to be Companions of the Distinguished Service Order "in connection with their successful attacks upon enemy airships."

It is understood that Lieutenants Sowrey and Brandon participated in the attacks on Zeppelin raiders on the night of Sept. 23-24, when two Zeppelins were brought down.

It has been known for several days that Lieutenant Sowrey had brought down the Zeppelin which fell in Essex, but Lieutenant Brandon had not been mentioned heretofore. Lieutenant Brandon received the Military Cross for bombing the Zeppelin which came down in the Thames Estuary last April.

Official evidence presented at the inquest into the death of the members of the German crew of the Zeppelin which was destroyed near Potter's Bar showed that nineteen bodies were recovered. The jury's verdict was that death had been caused by injuries received while traveling in a hostile airship which was brought down by the anti-aircraft organization.

MORE ATROCITY CHARGES.

Story of Crimes Alleged to Have Been Committed by Rumanians.

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (By Wireless to Sayville—Further details of alleged Rumanian atrocities in Dobrudja, says the Overseas News Agency, are contained in a report from the Sofia correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung, who, with several other correspondents and William Warfield, the American Chargé d'Affaires at Sofia, investigated reports in Dobric, Silistria and surrounding towns and villages. The correspondent writes:

"Everywhere we followed traces of assassination and incendiarism and everywhere there was the same complaint about the loss of life and property. Entire villages were destroyed by fire and large quantities of corn, as well as people of all classes, were carried away, partly by violence and partly by false promises.

"The prettiest girls were driven into the Rumanian trenches, where they were assaulted and then murdered, especially in the neighborhood of Silistria. Women and children were locked up in houses and then burned to death or shot. It has been proved that the Rumanians ravaged the country in an indescribable fashion on the direct command of their superiors.

"Before the declaration of war 25,000 people and the same number of carts filled with food were taken from Dobrudja. In a village north of Dobric, Rumanians assassinated 38 Bulgarians and 30 Turks and carried off 60 other men. A village south of Dobric is a heap of ruins and only 20 of 150 houses remain undamaged.

"Conditions also were bad around Silistria, where the villages of Kalipretovo, Aldemi, Sreberna and Babuk were destroyed. The number of civilians killed, wounded and transported from Dobrudja is estimated at about 60,000."

SAYS BERLIN HIDES TRUTH.

Lord Derby Declares German Official Reports Are False.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The Earl of Derby, in conversation with The Associated Press correspondent, today expressed the keenest satisfaction with the progress of the western campaign, which, he declared, was good weather to show substantial progress. He added:

"One of the most striking features of the present phase of the war is the notable decline in the accuracy of the official German reports, which, over a considerable period, I am inclined to believe, were reasonably accurate. Now they are evidently written for home and neutral consumption. They are notoriously false in what they relate and strikingly significant in what they minimize or conceal. The best example of this in their delay in admitting the fall of Thiepval and Combles.

"The Germans absolutely believed Thiepval to be impregnable and never made the slightest arrangements for withdrawal, and when the British made their final assault a regiment which had asked the privilege of holding the place without relief fought to a finish."

JEWS PROTEST TO BRITAIN.

Assail the Plan to Deport Russian and Rumanian Refugees.

A mass meeting under the auspices of the National Workmen's Committee on Jewish Rights, said to represent a half million workers, was held last night in Cooper Union to protest against the proposed plan of Great Britain to deport all Russian and Rumanian refugees unless they immediately join the British Army. Assemblyman A. J. Shiplacoff presided, and the speakers included Representative Meyer London, Dr. Henry Moskowitz, President of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, and Morris Hillquit.

At the close of the meeting this cable dispatch was sent to the Home Secretary:

"The Jews are victimized practically now in all the warring countries, in Russia and in Austria, in Rumania, and in Turkey. It would be a great misfortune to the cause of humanity if England, the traditional land of freedom and democracy, should join the forces oppressing the Jews."

PASTOR AIDS WILSON FUND.

The Rev. Percy Stickney Grant Joins State Finance Committee.

The Rev. Percy Stickney Grant of this city has become a member of the State Finance Committee of the Democratic National Committee, which is obtaining funds in New York State to help re-elect President Wilson. Mr. Grant was a guest yesterday at a luncheon given by Thomas L. Chadbourne, Chairman of the committee, and made a substantial contribution. A large sum was realized for the campaign fund, although many of those present had previously made contributions.

Among those present at the luncheon, all of whom will be members of Mr. Chadbourne's committee, were John R. Dunlap, Calvin Tomkins, Lawrence E. Sexton, Lorenzo Semple, Robert Grier Monroe, Edwin G. Parish, Joseph P. Day, Joseph Hartfield, Morgan J. O'Brien, L. Laflin Kellogg, John G. Agar, Frank M. Patterson, George Gordon Battle, William Church Osborn, Thomas F. Conway, William Rand, Jr., William Solomon, and S. R. Bertron. Another luncheon will be given by Mr. Chadbourne this week.

warm. To aid in conserving the warmth of the engine we shall probably close the cockpit ahead of Carlstrom, which is used to carry the passenger when this type is used as a two-man machine."

Carlstrom, however, entered a protest against putting a permanent covering over this opening.

"Where am I going to carry my suitcase, if not there?" he demanded.

So it is likely that a compromise will be reached and that the forward cockpit will be closed with a lid that will be taken off when the aviator reaches New York.

The gallery of aviation fans who motor out to the Curtiss aerodrome every day to watch the evolutions of the aviation school and linger hopefully on the chance of seeing something more exceptional in the way of a demonstration flight was increased this afternoon by a number of observers who had come out to see the first trial of the machine that was to fly against all distance records, and there was much disappointment when its début was delayed.

AERO CLUB MEMBERS SAY FLIGHT IS EPOCHAL

Peary, Hawley, Post and Others Congratulate The Times and Predict Success for Carlstrom

At the Aero Club of America—the centre of aviation activities in New York—almost the sole topic of conversation yesterday was THE TIMES's proposed sunrise to sunset flight from Chicago to New York.

The project aroused great enthusiasm, and those who discussed it emphasized its importance while congratulating THE TIMES on obtaining the services of so able a flier as Victor Carlstrom to carry out the pioneer endeavor of the sort in this country.

While some of those who talked of the plan yesterday dwelt upon the impetus to military aviation that should arise from such stimulation of public interest in practical aeronautic possibilities, others urged the benefit the commercial side of the flying industry would derive from the demonstration.

Alan R. Hawley, President of the club, who flew from New York to Washington last May with Carlstrom, said:

"THE TIMES flight is a stupendous plan, perfectly feasible in every way. THE TIMES is to be commended for the substantial encouragement that it is giving to aeronautics. Such a flight will be of value from the standpoint of national defense as well as from sport. I dislike speaking of the possibility of raids over American cities, but, realizing that the only antidote for raids is a substantial air service with hundreds of good aeroplanes piloted by trained aviators, I welcome such events as THE TIMES's Chicago to New York flight for what they do to develop American aeronautics.

"I am happy to say that the United States, the country of the Wrights, Curtiss, and other pioneers, is today turning out aeroplanes and motors equal to the very best European products. The number of efficient American aeroplanes and motors has increased to the point where we can rest assured that, given a reasonable amount of encouragement from the Government, the aeronautic industry will be in a position to supply anything that may be needed in the aeronautic line for national defense.

"Carlstrom can make the Chicago to New York flight if anybody can. My only regret is that I am not to be a passenger on this trip, as I was on the trip from New York to Washington. I can almost imagine what such a trip would be like. As Carlstrom's machine will make close to 100 miles an hour, it thrills me to think of making such a trip. At that speed, and with the interesting landscape down below, it will only seem a few minutes from Chicago to Cleveland, and an instant from Cleveland to Jamestown, then to Elmira, Binghamton, Port Jervis, Paterson, and finally Governors Island. I wish THE TIMES every success."

Peary Praises the Enterprise.

"To fly from Chicago to New York in from 9 to 12 hours is a marvelous annihilation of space, and will be an epochal event and a world record," he said.

"The project is in keeping with THE TIMES's substantial methods of doing things. Chicago to New York in one flight, at a speed of close to 100 miles an hour, is a big thing; the aviator and the aeroplane and motor chosen are the best in the country; the purpose of the flight is a splendid one. I have no doubt that the flight will be a success in every way.

"This will demonstrate the value of having a chain of stations along the coasts and in the interior, a system of aerial patrol which will make it possible in the shortest time to mobilize a large number of aviators at any one point, to meet an emergency.

"Aerial defense is the line of defense in which the United States is not merely woefully deficient, but is absolutely lacking. We need a broad, comprehensive, centralized system, planned on a large scale, to meet the certain developments of the near future, and we need not tens, not hundreds, but thousands of aviators. THE TIMES's Chicago to New York flight will do much to create interest in aeronautics and thereby contribute in many ways to the upbuilding of our aerial defenses."

Henry Woodhouse, member of the Board of Governors of the Aero Club, also was enthusiastic about the proposed flight.

"It is a splendid undertaking and a fitting climax to a year of tremendous developments in American aeronautics," he said. "Also it is a drowning contribution on the part of THE NEW YORK TIMES to the fostering of American aeronautics, to which it has made such substantial contributions in the past.

"We have made great progress in aeronautics this year. The efficiency of our machines and motors has been great and the public interest, the provisions for the developing of our aerial defenses, as well as for the employment of aeroplanes for utilitarian purposes has developed in proportion.

This flight will undoubtedly be the forerunner of the establishing of an aerial mail carrying line between the two great cities, which will revolutionize mail carrying within a radius of 2,000 miles. There is no doubt that within a few years there will be hundreds of aeroplanes in use for mail carrying purposes.

"Today there is about $50,000,000 worth of business for the American aeronautical industry, out it is almost entirely for military aeroplanes and motors for military machines. The employment of aeroplanes for carrying mail and for the Coast Guard will bring about the employment of aeroplanes for general purposes and that will create a reserve of trained aviators and aeroplanes which, while being used daily for peaceful purposes, will be available for national defense.

"THE TIMES is to be congratulated and commended for what it has done in the past to foster the development of aeronautics and for its present substantial plan to demonstrate the efficiency of present-day American aeroplanes and the possibilities for employing them for utilitarian purposes. The flight is bound to be a success."

Aerial Defense Neglected.

Congressman Murray Hulburt of New York, a member of the National Aerial Coast Patrol Commission, said:

"THE NEW YORK TIMES's constructive program is of great interest to me, and I shall watch the results with interest.

"Having been interested in aeronautics for some time, I considered it my duty to bring the subject before Congress as often as possible and to urge appropriations substantial enough to foster progress in this most important branch of science. I took pleasure in introducing an amendment increasing the appropriation for aeronautics for the army, National Guard, and aerial reserves to $41,000,000. The House eventually passed the appropriation of $13,281,000, which represents an increase close to $13,000,000 over what had been allowed for military aeronautics last year.

"We have shamefully neglected this branch of our national defense in the past, and it is our duty to combine our efforts in making up for the past, so that it may not be said that the country which gave the world the first practical aeroplane ranks last among nations in aeronautics."

Post Makes a Prophecy.

"THE TIMES is to be most highly commended," said Augustus Post, "in undertaking to make a flight possible between Chicago and New York which will be an epoch-making event. Cross-country flying is just developing in this country, and commercial necessities will be even more potent than war's demands to develop the machines of the future. I look for the time when every city will have its public landing places just as they have public docks and railroad stations. When a regular mail route is established between New York and Chicago, with hundreds of machines flying back and forth in one-half the time of present mail trains, all the mail for cities west of Chicago will be brought nine hours nearer also. The tremendous military value of such a wonderful trip can hardly be fully realized.

"All success to Carlstrom, one of the best aviators in the world. May he be the forerunner of thousands who will think nothing more of such a voyage than the aviators who deliver the 'buses' that cross the English Channel to the number of sometimes fifty a day on their flight to the French front where Blériot blazed the way such a short time ago."

Chance M. Vought, consulting aeronautic engineer, designer, and widely known writer on technical matters in connection with flying, thus expressed his opinion of the project:

"Cross-country flights, such as proposed by THE TIMES become important and necessary factors in enabling us to arrive at and develop the fundamentals of our own national aviatic problems which have assumed colossal proportions since the outbreak of the European war.

"To develop machines in this country which will equal the startling performances of some of the types just recently developed abroad, and lately predominating on the western front, entails going through the self-same processes of evolution as have made Continental aircraft such winged wonders of mechanical efficiency and performance.

"The impetus toward mechanical perfection and the all-important factor of reliability was given initially by cross-country flying in the days before the war. European engineers and constructors found themselves in possession of extensive knowledge and wide experience through the startling use of aeroplanes in cross-country work, and their close co-operation with the military and civilian pilots.

"That they have profited through the processes of evolution and the simplification resulting therefrom is eloquently told in the achievements of the air services in the various theatres of war. It is solely through the slow processes of evolution by use that we attain perfection. Improvement in American aircraft can come only through extensive use and even abuse. Cross-country flying discloses with greater facility than any other medium the weaknesses—be they fault of design, construction, or material—and the undesirable attributes of machines. Long-distance flying demands reliability, stamina, and quality of product. The one begets the other and points the way to improvements in all desirable attributes."

Among others who expressed enthusiasm over the proposed flight were Henry A. Wise Wood, President of the American Society of Automatic Engineers; W. Redmond Cross, Evert Jansen Wendell, and G. D. Wardrop.

CHICAGOANS PREDICT SUCCESS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Chicago aviators are greatly interested in the proposed Chicago to New York no-stop flight which Victor Carlstrom will attempt to make for THE NEW YORK TIMES.

James S. Stephens, Vice President of the Aero Club of Illinois, praised Carlstrom's ability as an aviator today.

"If successful, the flight will establish an American record for time and distance," he said. "Carlstrom already holds a record, established several weeks ago, when he flew more than 600 miles with a passenger."

The flight can be accomplished without difficulty, according to Walter Brock, a Chicago aviator.

"Such a flight is not uncommon in Europe, and is accompanied with very little danger since the machines have been perfected," he said. "I am planning to attempt the trip myself. If Carlstrom establishes a record I'll try it."

FLIGHT INTERESTS OFFICIALS.

Washington Orders Experiment—Commended by Signal Chief.

Special to The New York Times.

The Post Office Department today designated as Route No. 635,006 the experimental aeroplane service of THE NEW YORK TIMES between Chicago and New York for the purpose of demonstrating that mail can be carried between the two cities between sunrise and sunset. The official order was issued by Otto Praeger, Second Assistant Postmaster General, who has charge of mail transportation. It will be officially promulgated in tomorrow's Daily Bulletin of Orders Affecting the Postal Service. The order read:

Form 2249.
Post Office Department.
Second Assistant Postmaster General.
Oct. 4, 1916.

State, Illinois.
Termini of route, Chicago, Ill.-New York, N. Y.
Length of route: miles. Round trips a week:
Contractor:
Pay per annum $.....

The Postmaster at Chicago, Ill., is hereby authorized to dispatch mail by aeroplane operated by the representative of THE NEW YORK TIMES on one trip, one way, between Oct. 7 and Nov. 1, 1916, from Chicago, Ill., to New York, N. Y., the mails to be carried by a sworn carrier and without expense to the department.

OTTO PRAEGER,
Second Assistant Postmaster General.

Deep interest in the undertaking was shown today at the Post Office Department, where there is a desire to establish regular aeroplane mail routes. Lieut. Col. George O. Squier, in charge of the Aviation Section of the Army Signal Corps, also showed keen interest in the experiment to be undertaken by THE TIMES.

"The Aviation Office of the Signal Corps," said Colonel Squier, "has known of the proposed long-distance, non-stop trip to be made under the auspices of THE TIMES and is highly pleased with the arrangement. Machines similar to the one to be used in the Chicago-New York flight have been tested in the United States military service in Mexico and have proved satisfactory. The carrying of mails by aeroplanes is a natural development, and already an aeroplane can deliver mail over hundreds of miles in quicker time than any other machine known to man.

Saks Can Fit You With a Suit of Clothes That Will Look Better on You Than Any Suit You Ever Had ¶ Several things combine to make a Saks Suit superior to average ready-for-service clothes, but the chief reason is that we make them ourselves.

¶ Most suits are made by out-of-town manufacturers for national distribution under many labels, and cut in units of ten fronts, ten backs, ten sleeves, and so on.

¶ Saks Suits are made by Saks right here in New York, and made one at a time—get that!—not cut in units of ten, but cut suit by suit, that their individuality shall be beyond question.

¶ You can't get style in ten-unit lots—you can't get individuality in bunches—but you can get style in Saks Suits because they are made by custom methods, and on custom lines, cut, tailored and finished one at a time, and benefiting in the process by all those creative touches which distinguish the Handiwork of Man from the Hurriwork of Machines!

¶ In grace of line, in balance, in tailoring, in finish, and in that greatest of all tests—FIT, a Saks Suit, irrespective of the price you pay for it, will look better on you than any suit you ever had!

TAFT HITS WILSON'S 8-HOUR LAW EFFORTS

POINTS TO MEXICO COURSE

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 4.—At a Republican rally here this evening to mark the opening of the Hughes campaign in New Jersey, Former President Taft charged that President Wilson's dealing with the threatened railway strike was the crowning instance of unwise subserviency to the demands of leaders of organized labor.

Representative Porter H. Dale of Vermont, John Hays Hammond of New York, President of the National League of Republican Clubs, and Isaac H. Nutter, of Atlantic City, a negro lawyer, also spoke. Joseph H. Frelinghuysen, Republican candidate for United States Senator from New Jersey, and Walter E. Edge, the gubernatorial nominee, were presented, and spoke briefly. Mr. Taft, in his speech, said that the campaign of 1916 was as important as the campaign of 1896, and that the Democratic party and its candidate were seeking a vote of power for disingenuous, unsound, but alluring reason. He assailed the Democratic party's fiscal policy, its extravagance, its free trade tariff, its claim to credit for prosperity, and its foreign policy, and he made a direct reply to President Wilson's defense of his course in settling the threatened railroad strike through the enactment of the Adamson law.

Attacks Wilson On Eight-Hour Law.

Mr. Taft said, in part:

"The great public advantage in organization and combination of capital and of wage-earners we all recognize. The one vastly increases the product of human enterprise and energy, the other puts the wage-earner on an equality with his employer in dealings with wages and the terms of his employment. Corporations and trades unions are therefore necessities of modern economic society that are permanent and necessary.

"Unwise subserviency to the demands of leaders of organized labor finds its crowning instance in Mr. Wilson's dealing with the threatened strike of the railway orders. The orders claimed to control 400,000 men, who run the freight and passenger trains of the country. These men were not in distress such as to prevent their awaiting the delay of arbitration. When the President requested Congress to pass the Adamson bill, he also requested them to adopt the Canadian law, declaring such a strike unlawful if entered upon before a submission of the issue to arbitration. The theory of that law is that after arbitration, when the public have learned the merits, the strike may proceed, and public opinion may be counted on to defeat a disregard of the judgment.

"This doubtless would have prevented a recurrence of such a cowardly exhibition of submission to a peremptory demand by the government of the United States; but the labor leaders contemptuously rejected the suggestion of the President, and their rejection was so quickly acquiesced in that it is difficult to believe that the suggestion was anything more than a mere formality.

"If humanity prompted such legislation, why has it not been projected during the last three and a half years? Why did not the Democratic Convention declare for it? Why did not Mr. Wilson refer to the necessity for such legislation in his speech of acceptance? In his defense Mr. Wilson utterly refuses to consider the question of justice of the 25 per cent. increase of pay."

Defends Hughes on His Record.

After reviewing at length the President's course on various public questions, Mr. Taft continued:

"Having intervened by threat and force in the affairs of the Mexican people, Mr. Wilson, in his Indianapolis speech, denounced intervention and declared the Mexican situation not to be our business.

"In his memorandum attached to his first sundry civil bill, Mr. Wilson protested against class legislation exempting farmers and labor organizations from the operation of the Anti-Trust act. His opposition has since melted away, and he is now claiming credit from those who are supposed to control the labor vote for having in subsequent legislation 'taught' the courts something on this subject. He took pride in the new legislation for arbitration in labor disputes and now denounces arbitration as inapplicable to the greatest labor dispute in our history.

"Other instances could be cited, but these are certainly enough to justify the conclusion that Mr. Wilson has few, if any, opinions on the issues of the day which exigency in the field of politics may not induce him to give up. He generally pursues the wise course of never explaining the reason for his change. His facility in this regard robs of special importance his public utterances as a basis for supporting him as a candidate.

"On the other hand, Mr. Hughes is a man whose avowed opinions have always been the guide of his actions. I say what the people of the United States know when I say that the chief characteristic of Mr. Hughes is the courage of his convictions in meeting the embarrassment of political opposition. He gives the reasons for the faith that is in him. He argues out his propositions, and he does not depend upon mere facility of expression, mere happiness of epigrammatic statement, mere graceful phrasing of a platitude to support his opinion. He carries conviction by his speech to his audience and he carries his own conviction into conduct. Having in view Mr. Wilson's record on nearly every political question and Mr. Hughes's course as Governor of New York, it would be difficult to find among the public men of the country one who is less like Mr. Wilson than Mr Hughes."

Notice to Advertisers

Yesterday—Wednesday, Oct. 4th—The New York Times for want of space was unable to insert over 5,000 lines (18 columns) of advertising.

This great demand for advertising space in The New York Times, it is anticipated, will continue for some time and makes it necessary to use discrimination in assigning space, i. e., preference will be given to advertisements having news value and to those for which copy and illustrations are delivered before 6 P. CIVILIAN SAILORS' DRILL.

Year-Round Instruction and Corps of 10,000 Planned.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Steps are being taken to place the civilians who participated in the recent John Paul Jones cruise of the navy on a permanent basis for instruction. The Navy Department announced today that they would have an opportunity to report on board any of the reserve battleships at various navy yards once a week throughout the year and attend drill and practice instruction.

The suggestion that a permanent office be established in Washington to handle the volunteer civilian preparedness movement is being considered by the department, and probably will be adopted. Officials believe that, with the start already made, it will be comparatively easy to enroll at least 10,000 men for next Summer's cruise. The civilians who took the training this Summer contemplate forming a national organization through which to enroll their full complement as a reserve under the new naval bill.

"If the details can be arranged," says a statement issued by the Navy Department today, "the movement will start in concrete form and on a large scale, either this Winter or early next Spring. When this shall have been accomplished a long step will have been taken both toward securing 100,000 volunteer reserves and in educating the public in the mater of thorough preparedness and an adequate navy. The plans contemplate extension of this training to the Pacific Coast and the Great Lakes, so that every section of the country may participate."

Bribing Butcher Sentenced.

Arthur Plaut, who was connected with the wholesale meat firm of Robert Plaut & Son of 352 Johnson Avenue, Brooklyn, and was convicted of bribing Dr. Frederick Schoneweg, a veterinarian of the Health Department, to pass meat unfit for food, was sentenced by Justice James C. Cropsey in the Supreme Court yesterday to serve not less than two years nor more than five in Sing Sing Prison. Herman Braunschweig, another butcher who pleaded guilty to a similar crime, was sentenced by Justice Cropsey to Sing Sing Prison for not less than one year nor more than two and a half years.

SEES SOME HOPE OF PEACE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 4.—The newspapers here comment on the interview with the German Crown Prince recently published in America. The Corriere d'Italia says it shows that an important evolution has occurred in the German mentality. The paper believes that if the Allies find a way to meet the present German tendency perhaps the end of the war might not be so far as Mr. Lloyd George believes. The Tribuna writes that the statement of the Crown Prince is merely a lament compared to his high-sounding utterances at the beginning of the war.

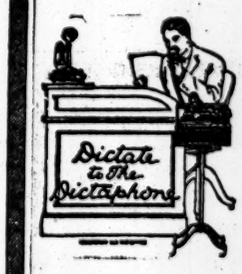
NOT to stand idle a couple of hours a day—adding dollars to overhead, while you tie-up your stenographer taking shorthand notes. She might just as well be shopping all this time as far as any good you get out of it.

You pay good money for finished typewriting. Yet you deliberately divert a big part of it to pay for the time your stenographer spends taking shorthand to get ready to typewrite.



It does seem absurd, doesn't it, this paying for having your letters written twice—once in shorthand, once on the typewriter? When by having them written once, on the typewriter, you get more of them, get better looking and more accurate letters, and at least a third less in cost. DEGNON TERMINAL
GATEWAY TO WORLD'S GREATEST MARKETS

TO BUILD GREATEST PROVING GROUND

Bethlehem Steel Corporation Will Establish It Near Cape May, N. J.

RANGE OF FOURTEEN MILES

State Agrees to Sell 300 Acres of Timber Land Needed to Complete Plant.

The world's greatest proving ground for ordnance is to be established near May's Landing, N. J., by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, of which Charles M. Schwab is the head. A statement to this effect was made yesterday at a meeting of the New Jersey State Board of Conservation and Development in Trenton following an application made by the corporation for permission to purchase from the State 300 acres of timber land which is in the heart of the proposed reservation and which is needed to make possible the realization of the project.

William E. Massey of the realty firm of Massey & Edwards of Ocean City, which conducted the negotiations for the purchase of the tract, confirmed the details of the project last night.

The site of the proposed proving plant is about 20,000 acres in extent and runs for eighteen miles along the Great Egg Harbor River. Both in size and in equipment the new proving plant will surpass the famous Krupp grounds in Germany. To a large extent the new plant will be used in the testing of ordnance of various calibres built by the Bethlehem Corporation for the United States Government. It will also be the place where the various types of ordnance built for foreign Governments will be first tested.

Negotiations for the purchase of the track have been pending for months. For the land already acquired more than 1,000 deeds have been executed. The tract needed to complete the grounds was acquired by the State several years ago for a nominal sum, and it was said yesterday the State will realize a handsome profit on the investment. After the hearing the board voted to recommend the sale of the tract to the company.

The location of the tract is ideal. It is level and bounded on two sides by the Great Egg Harbor and Tuckahoe Rivers, while a fine State boulevard runs along a third side and an electric railroad on the fourth. The tract extends from May's Landing to Tuckahoe and a railroad will be built between those two points. The length of the range will be fourteen miles, and on a clear day trees and towers are plainly visible from one end to the other.

Upward of half a million dollars have been spent in acquiring the land and another half million will have to be expended before proving can be begun. A small army of workmen will be employed, as this will be the main proving grounds for the company's various plants. Representatives from foreign Governments which use Bethlehem Steel products, it was said, will be stationed permanently at May's Landing, which was selected as headquarters largely because of its frequent train service and nearness to Atlantic City.

After a session which lasted until midnight last night the New Rochelle Common Council followed the example set by Mount Vernon and rescinded the fifteen-day anti-strikebreaker ordinance by a vote of 6 to 2. Car strikers filled the Aldermanic Chambers and hissed the Councilmen, but were held back by their counsel, Lewis Fridiger.

While Mayor Fiske and Chief of Police Silverstein of Mount Vernon prepared yesterday for the operation of street cars by strikebreakers tomorrow, business agents of the building trades met in New York and ended all talk of a sympathy strike in Manhattan by tabling the matter indefinitely, thus again centring the car strike in Westchester County, where it started.

"Mother" Jones, who has been an agitator in many strikes and who recently was brought here from the West, addressed a meeting of street car men in Lyceum Hall yesterday, telling how violence had succeeded in many strikes in which she had taken part. union official, said the strikers would not resort to intimidation. Others, however, were not so sure the introduction of strikebreakers would not cause trouble. The Mount Vernon Common Council's amendment to the so-called fifteen-day ordinance takes effect tomorrow instead of today, as had been announced.

After a period of comparative quiet, renewed violence in connection with the strike broke out in Manahttan last night. There were attacks on surface cars and elevated trains, in which more than a dozen persons, many of them women, were injured.

Several persons were trampled and bruised after someone pulled the emergency cord of a Third avenue elevated train as it was approaching the Forty-second street station.

The train jolted to a stop at the station, and the cars were emptied in the midst of wild fighting and confusion. A girl, who said she was Mary Iria of 2386 Arthur Avenue, the Bronx, was shoved through a window and badly cut by glass.

Four persons were injured later by stones and bricks thrown at a Union Railway Company car on Willis Avenue, near 136th Street. A band of about 300 strikers or sympathizers attacked the car as it was approaching the crossing.

UP-STATE CAR STRIKE ENDS.

Mayor Burns of Troy Heads Arbitration Committee.

ALBANY, Oct. 4.—The strike which tied up trolley-car service in Albany and Rensselaer since Monday and in Troy, Green Island, Cohoes, and Watervliet since yesterday, was settled today. Differences between the men and the United Traction Company will be adjusted by arbitration. Service was resumed this afternoon.

The agreement to arbitrate was reached at a conference participated in by Mayor Cornelius F. Burns of Troy, the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration, company officials, and representatives of the striking employes. The same men who successfully arbitrated the differences which caused a four-day strike thirteen months ago will adjudicate the present difficulties. They are Mayor Burns, former Judge William B. Woollard, and Lyon J. Arnold, a newspaper publisher, the latter two of Albany.

Announcement of the settlement was greeted with enthusiasm by residents of the cities and villages affected, as the company had begun preparations to house and feed strikebreakers, and it was generally feared that a long tie-up, with possible rioting, would result.

Sustains Mrs. Dunphy's Dismissal.

It was announced yesterday that the Court of Appeals had dismissed the appeal of Mrs. Mary C. Dunphy, formerly Superintendent of the Children's Hospital on Randall's Island, from the decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court sustaining her dismissal by Charities Commissioner John A. Kingsbury. The Dunphy case was one of the incidents which led to the investigation of charitable institutions in the city by Charles H. Strong, Commissioner appointed by Governor Whitman.

Society Brand Clothes

FOR YOUNG MEN and Men Who Stay Young

Society Brand Clothes are cut one at a time—by hand. Expert hand work insures perfect results—machine work is faster, but far less satisfactory. Suits cut several deep by a power machine cannot be made accurately—stretch and wrinkle cannot be avoided, and the top and bottom pieces in a pile often vary in dimensions.

That is why we cut each garment individually by hand.

The cost is no more than you pay for garments that lack their distinctive features. They have at last supplanted the finer tailor-made clothes. Ready-to-wear $20 to $50.

If you seek that extra quality of fabric, ask for "Double Service" Clothes, sold at $30 and up.

THE RISING TIDE

By MARGARET DELAND

The Boston Transcript says: "Nothing in the way of fiction could be more thoroughly of the present day and hour than Mrs. Deland's latest novel. In 'The Rising Tide' she lays bare the restless soul of the modern woman who is bound to be man's equal in all things. . . . In 'The Rising Tide' Mrs. Deland has written a novel that is very close to human nature."

Save the Children

The Sick Children's Transfer Society, with its committee of one hundred, appeals to the compassion of men and women who love little children. It is proposed to care for those convalescing from infantil paralysis and to prevent them from becoming cripples for life. The immediate need is for transportation of the patients from the homes to clinics where they are to receive scientific treatment and be provided with orthopaedic appliances. It is for the purchase of motor buses and the maintenance of chauffeurs and attendants that funds are necessary at once. Commissioner of Health Emerson emphasizes the urgency of the need which it is hoped a benevolent public will supply.

SPRECKELS IS SUED FOR SUGAR PROFITS

Stockholder Wants President's Share in Commissions Returned to Federal Company.

PARTNER OF SALES AGENT

Salary of $25,000 for Head of Refining Concern Not Reported to Stockholders, Delahunty Charges.

Claus A. Spreckels, President of the Federal Sugar Refining Company, acknowledged yesterday that he was a special partner in the firm of Smith & Schipper, selling agents of the Federal company and, since Jan. 4, 1912, had received a salary of $25,000 a year as president without the knowledge of Federal stockholders. Both admissions, which Mr. Spreckels defended as regular and proper, were made in his answer to a suit brought in the Supreme Court by John Delahunty, a lawyer and stockholder of the refining company, for an accounting of Mr. Spreckels's profits as a member of the firm of selling agents.

Mr. Delahunty brought his suit in behalf of himself and other stockholders after the company had declined to take the initiative and after its failure to conform to requests in a letter of last Aug. 21, in which Mr. Delahunty said:

"As a stockholder of your company I hereby request you to set aside the existing contract between Smith & Schipper and your company, and also to compel your President, Mr. C. A. Spreckels, who is also a Director of the company, to pay over to the company such sums of money as he has received in the past as a special partner in Smith & Schipper."

Mr. Spreckels, in his answer, says that his partnership in the selling agency is not inimical to his duties as President of the refining company and, on the contrary, by it the refining company "has been assured a closer insight into and a more intimate supervision over the company's business coming to that firm." He points out also that Pierre J. Smith, Treasurer of the refining company, and Abner H. Platt, the Secretary, are also special partners in Smith & Schipper.

As to his salary, Mr. Spreckels says this was voted to him by the Directors in his absence and asserts that the payment of a salary to a President is so customary that Mr. Delahunty should be charged with the notice of it, though he admits that no mention was made of it at a June Directors' meeting over which he presided.

ALLIES BUYING SUGAR.

Sale of $3,500,000 Worth Made by the Federal Company.

The Federal Sugar Refining Company announced yesterday the completion of negotiations for the sale of 30,000 tons of refined sugar to a foreign Government, presumably one of the Allies. The purchase involves $3,500,000. Shipments are to be made over the first three months of 1917.

The company has just finished clearing a cargo of 5,500 tons for Greece, and today will load 7,000 tons for the British Commission. Next Monday 6,000 tons will be sent to France.

FRIENDS OF WILD LIFE MEET

Game Preservation Advocates Indorse Chamberlain-Hayden Bill.

U. S. Forester Henry S. Graves and representatives of associations interested in preserving game life in the United States met at the Merchants' Association yesterday and indorsed the Chamberlain-Hayden bill, which is pending in Congress and seek to protect wild animals, especially in the West. The bill provides for game sanctuaries in Yellowstone Park and forest under Federal jurisdiction.

Statistics were offered to show the great slaughter of animals by hunters, and the confusion resulting from the conflicting laws of States into which the forest extend. The Weeks law, enacted by Congress about five years ago, to protect animals in some Federal reserves in the East, was cited as wise legislation.

The meeting yesterday was held under the auspices of the American Game Protective Association. Those present, in addition to Mr. Graves, were A. F. Potter, Associate U. S. Forester; E. W. Nelson, Assistant Chief of the Biological Survey; W. C. Barnes, Assistant Forester; H. M. Albright of the Department of the Interior; George T. Pratt, Chairman of the American Conservation Commission; George Bird Grinnell of the American Game Association; T. Albert Pearson, Secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies; John M. Gaines of the Campfire Club; Louis A. Fuertes, a writer about birds; Dr. William T. Hornaday of the Zoological Society; John B. Burnham, President of the American Game Protective Association; E. A. Quaries, editor of the bulletin issued by that organization, and others.

BURGLARS INVADE OYSTER BAY HOMES

WOMAN GUEST SCARES THIEF

Mrs. Bell, Visiting the Abbotts, Awakes to Find Intruder Ransacking Her Dressing Table.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Oct. 4.—The homes of wealthy and prominent persons in this place were entered by burglars early this morning and $10,000 in money and jewels was stolen. Those robbed were Nelson Doubleday, son of F. N. Doubleday, the publisher; H. P. Erskine, the New York architect, and Phillips Abbott, all living on the West Shore Road. The Doubledays suffered the largest loss, as the thieves took from them valuables estimated to be worth $7,000. At the Erskine home several pieces of jewelry and between $300 and $400 in cash were stolen.

The intruder was frightened away from the Abbott home by the screams of Mrs. Arthur Bell of New York, a guest, whose room he was ransacking when she awoke. The only loot taken from the Abbott home was a small sum of money belonging to Mr. Abbott.

The authorities have only a meagre description of one of the burglars to work upon. Mrs. Bell told the police that she was awakened early this morning by hearing some one moving about in the room. She switched on the light in a reading lamp beside the bed and saw a man, coatless and hatless, picking up the jewelry on the dresser. Her screams alarmed the thief, who fled from the house. She said he seemed to be a young man and was smooth-shaven. This is the second robbery in the Summer colony here within the last month. Recently the home of C. H. Theriot, a New York broker, was entered and money and jewelry valued at $8,000 was taken.

Detectives are inclined to believe that the burglaries are the work of experienced thieves. At the Doubleday and Erskine homes neither family was disturbed by thieves and the police have been unable to determine how they got into the houses unless they used skeleton keys.

TERAUCHI TO HEAD JAPANESE CABINET

fuse to ratify the Cabinet. Nothing regarding the policy of the new Premier could be said authoritatively until the appointments had been made, Dr. Iyenaga declared.

"Count Terauchi is an expansionist and the kind of a man to resent anyone's jumping on Japan's foot," another student of Japanese politics said. "There have been demands for some time for a stronger foreign policy in Japan, and that is what Terauchi will give them."

He quoted from a recent number of the Japan Magazine, published in Tokio, which said:

"There is no doubt that for some time leaders of political thought in Japan have been exceedingly dissatisfied with the inactivity of the Foreign Office, due, it has been thought, for the most part, to want of unity among the party leaders, the Cabinet, and the Elder Statesmen.

"Recently, however, Viscount Miura has been holding conferences representing political party interests and it is said, agreements have been reached binding the various elements to a united policy with regard to foreign affairs, especially with reference to the Chinese question. The fact that there has been a change of ambassadors at Washington and London shows how much truth there is in the report of a newer and firmer policy. Important problems pending between Japan and the United States yet await solution, while the attitude of both America and Britain toward the Japanese policy in China, also necessitates new blood in the Japanese elements in these countries."

STILL OPPOSES JAPANESE.

California Unions Maintain Policy Against Asiatic Workers.

EUREKA, Cal., Oct. 4.—The California Federation of Labor, in convention here today, maintained its anti-Japanese policy by passing a resolution denying employment or patronization of Japanese labor in any form. A similar resolution has been adopted by the convention annually for the last six years.

Most of the speakers favored separate Japanese labor unions in preference to admitting the Asiatics into existing organizations, and urged that such organization would go far to solve the California labor question by eliminating "cut rate" competition. Organization in Japan as a preliminary to unionization here was advocated as an educational step, better fitting the Japanese laborer to enter this country as a wage earner.

Throughout the discussion B. S. Uzoki, President of the Laborers' Friendly Society of Japanese, and seated as a fraternal delegate, was present.

NO NEW BAMBRICK TRIAL.

Appeal to Governor Now Only Hope of Condemned Man.

Justice Bartow S. Weeks in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court yesterday denied a motion for a new trial for Thomas Bambrick, convicted last December of the murder of Patrolman George Dapping at an outing of the McManus Association. Alexander Karlin, counsel for the prisoner, left later for Albany to make a final plea to Governor Whitman to commute the sentence to life imprisonment.

"I shall have a talk with Bambrick in the presence of Father Cashin, the Chaplain of Sing Sing, and plead with him to tell everything he knows," said the attorney.

One witness before Justice Weeks, Mrs. Annie Sylvander of 80 Park Avenue, Guttenberg, N. J., repudiated affidavits containing statements alleged to have been made by her to the effect that the defendant was conversing at a table with her and her husband at a considerable distance from the scene of the murder when the patrolman was shot and killed. Bambrick was taken back to Sing Sing last night. Unless the Governor intervenes he will be put to death in the electric chair on Saturday morning.

If you do not consider the lanky and laconic William Hodge a whole show in himself there is no compelling reason why you should go to the Maxine Elliott Theatre just now, for he is all there is to "Fixing Sister," which was presented there for the first time last evening. But that is a good deal, and to the enormous number who particularly enjoy this quiet and shrewd comedian his new play is to be recommended, for it is a faint but amusing copy of his greatest success, "The Man From Home."

It is the man from Kansas City this time who strolls nonchalantly to the rescue of two money-spoiled and title-dazzled American girls from the toils of some English adventurers. He naturally distrusts any one who has ever walked along Pall Mall and he seems to yearn to be back at Twelfth and Central in little old K. C. He is brave, taciturn, humorous—a man of shelter. His favorite song is not mentioned, but it is probably "Sweet Genevieve." Why, it is a part that Mr. Hodge could play with his eyes shut. In fact, he does about half the time.

"Fixing Sister," which tells a scanty story brightly, is serviceably played throughout, but, after all, it is of William Hodge and for William Hodge. For that matter, it is also by William Hodge. It is a secret of Polichinelle that the Lawrence Whitman, who wrote "The Road to Happiness" and the new play at the Maxine Elliott, is Mr. Hodge himself.

This time he has told of a bogus Lord Haggett and his aunt, Lady Wafton, who are busy fleecing John Otis's sister and John Otis's sweetheart when John strolls in from Kansas City. He finds his sister bent on advancing a hundred thousand to restore Haggett Manor and, in the meantime, losing cheerfully on Haggett's roulette wheel, which has been wired until Otis fears it is no longer neutral. He diverts himself by having his sister's bridge and roulette party raided by the police, and then, with Lord Haggett beginning already to cut a rather sorry figure, obliterates him and his fraudulent mortgage with advices from the British Consul. In fact, just before sister faints for the fourteenth time, he pronounces the arrest of Lord Haggett a public duty.

"If I don't put you behind the bars," says the quiet but valorous Otis, "you'd be liable to come across some child with a cent in his hand and kill him."

But he admits five minutes later that he was just trying to scare the Englishman into immediate flight.

"He is probably in Canada by this time," says John cheerfully as he enfolds the heroine in his arms preparatory to removing her to that cleaner, greener land, Missouri.

The climax of the third act is the bogus raid which might have been elaborated into a memorable scene, but is no more now than a long, chattering wait, followed by a brief riot. Of course, the gambling party calls for the services of many "extra ladies and gentlemen," and when this strange crew trooped on last night there was the usual snickering which always greets the ballroom scenes at a premiere. This amusement is an affectation and a peculiarly ungracious one as such stage gatherings resemble nothing quite so much as a New York first night audience.

The cast is sufficient to the occasion. Hamilton Deane, who boasts a name that Bunker Bean would have envied, plays well as Lord Haggett, and so does the veteran Ida Vernon as his partner in crime. Jane Wheatley is equal to the silly sister's rôle, although she does not look quite feeble-minded enough.

In this matter of appearances, however, pretty Miriam Collins is so triumphant that you are inclined to regard her voice and her acting leniently. But, after all, it is largely up to Mr. Hodge, and, of course, he is thoroughly entertaining as the man from Kansas City. He has something of the personal force as well as the method and the manner, if not the cosmopolitan distinction, of William Gillette. That would ill become him. William Hodge is as native a product as Will Rogers or Frank Craven, or George Ade. It is a pleasure to see him.

CENSORS APPEAL TO WILSON

National Board Gives Its Reasons for Opposing a Federal Bureau.

Copies of a statement sent by the National Board of Motion Picture Censorship to President Wilson, setting forth its reasons for opposing the movement to create a Federal board of motion picture censorship, were given out yesterday. In support of its opposition the board gave the results of a recent questionnaire conducted by it.

The opinions of Mayors of cities throughout the country on the censorship problem were sought and it was found that four-fifths of the Mayors answering the questionnaire would not be willing to shift the responsibility from the shoulders of local officials.

Another point made by the board was that the tendency of Federal bureaus was to standardize and that if films were so censored they would become standardized and lose their power to interest.

Did you read the dramatic critics yesterday?

Having had our play "UNDER SENTENCE" produced at the Harris Theatre night before last, we did. Ordinarily we do not have time to read all of their criticisms any more than you do. We did not agree with all they said yesterday any more than you would. But with the natural vanity of authors, perhaps pardonable under the circumstances, we were interested in what the critics said about "UNDER SENTENCE". We think you'll be interested too.

In the Tribune Mr. Heywood Broun said:-

"Begins like "Justice", ends like "Charley's Aunt". We feel that many who liked "Justice" would not care for "Charley's Aunt", and that many who liked "Charley's Aunt" would not care for "Justice". One was a drama, the other was a comedy. And both were hits. Whereas "UNDER SENTENCE" is a comedy-drama and a hit.

We heartily agree with Mr. Charles Darnton when he says in the Evening World:-

"Drama in the most interesting sense of the word - Human nature in its deeper and most unique aspects - Tugs strongly at the heart strings - Really big and true in its human appeal."

We cannot deny that Mr. Louis Sherwin in the Globe was right when he wrote:-

"The first play to dramatize the prison reform movement that has begun to sweep over the United States - The most timely play of the season - Will reach a vast public that "Justice" could never reach - Another "Lion and the Mouse" - Holds attention from first to last - Appeals to a huge following - Not a single dull moment."

Nor have we any quarrel with the Morning Sun which says:-

"Powerful argument for prison reform - Good play and should last".

Nor with Mr. Frank T. Price who thinks in the Morning Telegraph, that "UNDER SENTENCE" is "staged with an eye single to realism and with the best balanced cast seen this season."

We appreciate very deeply this double barreled tribute from the Times:-,

"At concert pitch they keep the melodramatic scenes thoroughly interesting and do nothing to prevent the last act from being amusing - It is as though a play by the late Charles Klein had been finished by the late W. S. Gilbert."

Mr. Megrue admits that Charles Klein did write drama comparable to Megrue's and Mr. Cobb concedes that there were times when Gilbert was as humorous as Cobb is.

We do take issue with the statement of the Morning World that "these things (prison abuses) do not happen in New York." But really we haven't time, at the price Selwyn & Company pay for this advertising space to argue the matter now.

Also we desire to quote these additional remarks, all of which have our hearty approval:-

"A real play at last about a vital subject - should run all season at the Harris Theatre". -

Stephen Rathbun, Eveg. Sun.

POLITICAL CHANGES IN JAPAN.

Ordinarily a change of ministry in Tokio would be a matter of slight interest to the people of the United States. The Emperor's acceptance of the resignation of OKUMA and his request to TERAUCHI that he form a ministry are of interest to us now only because there are questions pending between the two Governments concerning which the Terauchi ministry may conceivably favor policies differing from those pursued by Count OKUMA. The very interesting interview with Baron SAKATANI, a Japanese economist of note and former Mayor of Tokio, a report of which was published in THE TIMES of Sept. 27, might be construed as an intimation that the negotiations concerning the laws of California in respect to alien ownership of land and some other matters as yet unadjusted between us and Japan may be resumed and perhaps pressed somewhat more insistently than the Okuma ministry was disposed to press them. Count OKUMA, a man of conservative views and eminently a man of peace, is a firm friend of America. His policies were vigorously opposed by a radical party in Japan, which for a long time sought his overthrow. General TERAUCHI is known to us for his firm, and, from the Japanese point of view, entirely successful, administration of affairs in Korea, where he was Resident General. He is of a very different temper from OKUMA, and his training has been that of a military man.

When Baron SAKATANI'S interview was published in THE TIMES, comments were made upon it by an Attaché of the Japanese Embassy at Washington which tended to confirm the belief that the Tokio Government was inclined to consider this an opportune moment for resuming negotiations about the California land question. The sentiments expressed were of sufficient importance to call forth an immediate disclaimer from the Embassy. It was said that, like the Sakatani interview, the comments were in no sense official and were not to be construed as reflecting the views of the Japanese Government. What instructions the new Japanese Ambassador will receive from the new ministry is at present, of course, purely a matter of conjecture, and that is true also of the policies which the Terauchi ministry may choose to adopt.

Baron SAKATANI, in the interview to which we have referred, urged the justice and necessity of the repeal of the California land laws which the Japanese regard as discriminating against them; he dwelt upon the feeling of the Japanese that we should be willing to remove any restrictions imposed upon them which are not applied to the citizens or subjects of other foreign countries. Every American will cordially share his belief that the long-existing friendship between the United States and Japan will enable the two countries to reach a common and just understanding. There will be a difference of opinion as to the opportuneness of the present moment for a resumption of the negotiations. It should be said in all frankness that the intentions of Japan concerning China are not clearly understood in this country, that there is a good deal of doubt, and also some misgiving, about them. Japan has assured us that her new treaty with Russia in nowise unfavorably affects our interests in China and that we are prepared to believe. Nevertheless, the manner in which the Japanese demands were pressed upon China some months ago and the evidence of the recent affair in Mongolia, showing that the Tokio Government appears to be persisting in its policy of exercising a very considerable control over internal administration in Chinese territory, make it desirable that our people should have time to observe the progress and outcome of this policy before we are asked to take up anew the question of extending to Japanese in this country privileges they do not now enjoy.

When the negotiations are resumed, it is desirable that nothing should stand in the way of their speedy advance to a mutually satisfactory settlement. We fear that so long as we are in doubt about the Japanese intentions toward China, so long, indeed, as we are very much in the dark as to what she is seeking to accomplish, there would be a state of public feeling in this country that might prejudice the happy issue of the proceeding. It is evident that the state of public feeling here is not at all what it was when the question of the California land laws arose some years ago. Then there was a general disposition to censure the people of California for enacting local laws in seeming conflict with international treaties. In other words, public opinion here was divided. That division can hardly be said to exist so long as we remain in our present state of uncertainty concerning Japan's purposes in Manchuria, Mongolia, and in Peking itself. If it should be found that the sentiment of the people of the United States opposed the present wishes of negotiators representing Japan, that sentiment would be one of the whole people, not of a part. We should be happily reassured by such an issue of Japanese policies in the Far East as would leave China really independent, enjoying that integrity of territory for which Mr. HAY successfully contended, and free from external restraint or interference. If there is present doubt about these matters, it is because we lack the information needed to form a just conclusion.

Unfortunately there are some influences here, more or less actively at work, which would tend to affect the friendly relation between the two countries, and we know that there has for a long time been an active anti-American party in Japan which has criticised with great severity the reasonable and friendly policies of the Okuma ministry. These influences of evil, comparable to those which have sought to disturb our relations with Mexico, will have no material to work with as soon as we have become convinced that our commercial and other interests in China will not be imperiled by any acts of Japan. With the coming into power of a new ministry in Tokio, the arrival here of a new Ambassador, and with the relations between Japan and China not yet determined, there will necessarily be a period of some uncertainty, which we should suppose the Japanese Government would consider to be unfavorable to the taking up afresh of questions pending with the Washington Government. The reasonable postponement of the matter would in the circumstances undoubtedly be wise, and we imagine the new Japanese ministry will be persuaded to adopt that course.

REGRESSION OF A SOMETIME PROGRESSIVE.

The Hon. MILES POINDEXTER, a Senator in Congress from Washington, was a Progressive and is a Republican. In his canvass for renomination he was opposed by Representative WILLIAM E. HUMPHREY, the best friend Washington lumber and shingles ever had. The main charge which Mr. HUMPHREY brought against Mr. POINDEXTER was that he voted for the Underwood tariff. In spite of that offense he won in the primaries. The Humphrey supporters murmured and threatened dark things. Whereupon Senator POINDEXTER, ready to do all in his power for Republican harmony and his election, reverses himself agilely, promises, if re-elected, to "bring in a tariff bill carrying out "the policies of the Republican Party "as expressed in its recent platforms "and distributing uniformly the benefits of protection."

That uniform distributer of protection benefits will wear millennial wings. The Hon. MILES POINDEXTER needs no pinions. He can fly from a tariff for revenue to a tariff for protection with all convenient speed.

MR. SEABURY'S CAMPAIGN.

The voters are in a serious mood this year. They are deeply interested in the campaign and unusually anxious for light. They are not getting much of it from Mr. HUGHES and some other candidates, but they are eager and thankful for whatever they do get. There never was a time when they were more desirous to get what they want by means of their ballots and to find out where to get it. They are not interested in the morality of GEORGE W. PERKINS or NATHAN L. MILLER, or other persons not candidates for office. They are interested in putting an end to the disorderly, unbusinesslike, helter-skelter kind of government they have been getting at Albany, which has been getting more and more chaotic every year and under Governor WHITMAN and Controller TRAVIS has reached what we hope is the last word in expensive inefficiency.

Mr. SEABURY announces his purpose to reduce the expenses which every one knows to be too high even for a well-managed government, and altogether too high for the kind of government we have been paying for through all these years. He does not content himself with promises. He lays before the people a definite program of reform in the system. He proposes a budget system in which the responsibility would be laid squarely on his shoulders as Governor, in which he would initiate the expenditures and in which his responsibility would not end with initiation. Under his system the Governor could cut swollen appropriations, cut them in individual items, and it would take a two-thirds vote of the Legislature to restore them.

Year after year the people of New York have suffered a costly, wasteful, inefficient government at Albany. The responsibility has been not only divided but scattered. They have turned Republicans out at one election, Democrats at another, in the hope of getting some sort of relief by a change of parties, and have not got it. The present administration has added Mr. WHITMAN'S own conception of government as a thing to advance one's personal ambitions to the faults that are inherent in the system, and has made the last two years seem on the whole rather worse than the two years of any other recent Governor.

We believe Mr. SEABURY to have the capacity and the intention to bring about better things. He does not, however, ask any one to take him on trust; he not only outlines but amplifies a full and positive program, and asks the voters to accept that or to find fault with it if they can. It is a stand which should commend itself to the voters of New York, tired and deadly sick of mere promises and generalities. If he makes his campaign on that line he will be telling these voters things they long to hear, and his welcome will be warm. But he should refrain from telling them that Mr. PERKINS and Mr. MILLER and other persons in whom they have no present interest are bad men, he should dismantle the private Rogues' Gallery he threatens to unveil, and should guard himself from mixing up a statesmanlike program of reform with birdshot at personalities.

TWO SYMBOLS.

As the Colonel entered the Temple of Republicanism Tuesday night, he must have grinned internally as well as externally. How many worshippers at that shrine of highly respectable, conservative Republicanism voted for him in 1912? But he was there to discharge, among other duties, including that of listening to a speech by Mr. HUGHES, the solemn function of shaking hands with Mr. TAFT, the "receiver of stolen goods" in 1912. The Colonel's mighty right hand, accustomed to the palms of bosses, laid in fealty in the hands of Mr. QUAY and Mr. PLATT in the good days of an undivided party, shook heartily the harmonious flippers of reformed "burglars" and "crooks." Tenderly it pressed the hand of Mr. PENROSE, tenderly that of Mr. CRANE, while the Colonel listened intently to the faint susurrus of that unreformed "porch climber." Although Mr. BARNES came late to the feast of unity, he, too, might have had a shake, if not a clasp; but Mr. BARNES has too little feeling for the sentimentalics and great moral shows of politics.

The shake which every eye was waiting for, at the thought of which each candid ocean of shirtfront heaved and crinkled with anticipation, why was it shaken in huggermugger, so to speak? Why were the reporters secluded, confined in a room apart from the affecting ceremony, disprivileged from observing scientifically, timing, measuring, recording the experiment in harmony? Was it feared that eyes which have seen so many things would be blurred by tears? The awful, the glorious moment passed. History would have to guess if she depended on the Reception Committee, a member of which was deputed to tell the incredulous reporters that Mr. ROOSEVELT and Mr. TAFT had shaken hands "with the greatest cordiality." Never was such a smile seen on the Colonel's face and Mr. TAFT was likewise rident beyond parallel.

Only a highly romantic temperament could see the thing in that light. A dozen other instant dramatizations were put in circulation. THE TIMES found out the fact of all this poetry. Mr. TAFT put out his hand. Mr. ROOSEVELT took it. "THEODORE" and "WILL" had forgotten even each other's surnames. Some sublime remark like "How d'e do?" winged the air. The inventor of morality laughed and jested with Mr. PENROSE, but to Mr. TAFT only the briefest formal greeting was given.

This is as it should be, and the incident wouldn't be worth dwelling on had it not been so perfectly consonant with the Republican campaign of humbug. Mr. TAFT and Mr. ROOSEVELT hate each other. The reasons, the provocations, are obvious enough on both sides. In the back of Mr. ROOSEVELT'S mind may lurk the sense of a greater injury than the crime of 1912. What too subtle finesse in the White House, what density of Mr. TAFT and his friends in 1908, prevented the Colonel's renomination? They are not all cynics who esteem that Mr. TAFT'S "ingratitude" began then, in Mr. ROOSEVELT'S estimation.

Was it worth while for the Republican managers to stage this "reunited" party scene, which did but exhibit the leaders of the two factions as irreconcilable enemies? And what must be the effect on sturdy Armageddon men, for some time doubtful if Mr. ROOSEVELT was ever a sincere vessel of Progressivism, to find him hobnobbing gayly with his own and their once most shuddered-at Apollyons of reaction, Mr. PENROSE and Mr. CRANE? Onward, Christian and heathen soldiers, for the Grand Old Party and the offices! Principles be bothered! Once heaven's first law and the supreme duty of decent citizens was "Beat TAFT." Now it is "Beat Wilson."

The Union League handshake was a piece of symbolism that failed. In St. Anthony, Idaho, just about the same time, a full-grown Bull Moose appeared, fled from the slaughterhouse, lingered, a symbol always, under a clump of weeping willows, eluded horsemen and hunters hot to rope him, and made for the open country. The St. Anthony school of symbolism is chuck full of meaning. The Union League school is merely comic.

NICARAGUA AND THE TREATY.

The election in Nicaragua was a quiet one, with the exception of a quarrel at the polls in the capital, where a nephew of ex-President ZELAYA killed four supporters of General CHAMORRO, the winning candidate. The latter, who for three years has been Nicaragua's Minister at Washington, had no voting opposition. Dr. IRIAS, nominated by the Liberal Party, withdrew some days before the election, saying that our Government would not recognize any successful candidate who had been connected with ZELAYA'S Administration. His disapproval of our new treaty with Nicaragua had been commended by the Governments of Costa Rica, Salvador, and Honduras. It is reported that they have protested at Washington against what they say was the use of military and naval force by our Government to insure the election of CHAMORRO.

There is no evidence thus far that the influence of the United States was exerted in this way. Two ships had been sent to the Pacific Coast of Nicaragua, but it does not appear that marines were landed from them. Rear Admiral CAPERTON, in command, said in a message sent to Washington: "Many misleading statements are being made. Our position is that the election should be "honestly and openly conducted. The "action of those who are refraining "from voting is unjustifiable." One of these misleading statements was the published assertion that our Minister, Dr. JEFFERSON, had given notice that no one formerly associated with ZELAYA would be permitted to be a candidate. It is said that tales of this kind led the Liberals to refrain from voting. But they had no candidate, and this explanation of their inactivity is not needed.

It is unfortunate that all parties were not represented at the polls, for the result and the false reports that are published and circulated tend to support the claim of some Nicaraguan Liberals and the three neighboring republics that our influence was unjustly and forcibly used in the interest of the treaty, which the Liberals and these republics oppose. When that treaty was negotiated by Secretary BRYAN, agreements with Costa Rica, Salvador, and Honduras concerning the grants in it should have been sought. So far as the canal route is affected, Costa Rica has a good case, and Salvador and Honduras, having coast lines on Fonseca Bay, should not have been wholly ignored in the establishment of the naval station. It is not too late to satisfy them and the Central American Court of Justice by new agreements. These might prevent revolution and war.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Interpreted the Law, Not Reason.

In substance the decision of the Court of Appeals in the Cole case is that the trial court erred in charging the jury to consider only whether the defendant, a Christian Science "healer," was engaged in "the practice of medicine." The higher tribunal held that he was so engaged, and that, being wholly unqualified for such practice, the charge would have been sound and the conviction valid were it not for the fact that the Medical Practice act specifically excepts from its provisions those who in the treatment of human ills follow the tenets of any religion.

As the statute does read that way, of course the Court of Appeals was obliged to decide as it did, and the responsibility for the decision rests—and in the opinion of all sane people rests very heavily—on the legislators who, partly in ignorance and partly in fear, inserted this absurd and dangerous exception in an otherwise excellent law. It is charitable, though difficult, to assume that the men who did it had been misled by the specious plea that the Christian Scientists heal, or try to heal, by prayer, and that, therefore, their ministrations should not be forbidden, no matter what disease they may attempt to cure. The truth is, and nobody who has read their books or heard their talk can doubt it, that the followers of Mrs. EDDY make no use whatever of prayer.

They allow their lawyers thus to describe their treatment in court whenever it serves the purpose of deceiving Judges or juries, but their method of employing the power of suggestion is entirely different from the invoking of divine assistance. It consists, invariably and wholly, of reiterated assertions of the unreality of disease—the solemn telling of the patient that there is nothing the matter with him really, and that it is only by an "error of mortal mind" that he thinks himself ill. Of course this is not prayer, and it has no remotest resemblance to prayer.

If better educated, our legislators would have realized that by permitting the practice of any religious tenets they authorized not only such things as polygamy and promiscuity, but the human sacrifices which have been an essential feature of many religions, and still are one of not a few religions with millions of devoted and thoroughly conscientious believers.

To Guard Against the Dagger.

For some reason or other, and "about this time," as the old almanacs used to say, there comes to mind a remembrance of the origin ascribed by folklore specialists to the custom of handshaking. These Wise Ones assert that it began in the days when war was the usual occupation of all adult males. If, by some strange chance, a man of one tribe or village that met one from another tribe or village in conditions that made it judicious for them to suspend for a while their natural inclination to kill each other—usually it was when they wanted to combine forces in the killing of somebody else—they approached with caution for the conference and they felt safe only when the right hand of each was so held that it couldn't draw the knife with which each had thoughtfully provided himself in view of probable contingencies.

If this theory be true, and no ethnologist or anthropologist denies its plausibility, the handshake of the good old days was far less a manifestation of esteem than of deep distrust.

The Chinese, a really peaceable race, have not to this day learned to shake hands—the hands of other people, that is. Instead, they shake their own hands and let it go at that. Just why they do this they have not clearly explained, and foreign observers have not discovered the secret. It has been suggested that the explanation lies in a feeling that in personal contacts there is a certain loss of dignity, while another theory is that fear of contagion from such contacts is the key to the enigma. Neither view is entirely satisfactory, for the Chinese are familiar with all the contingencies incidental to living densely crowded together, and they are not noted for meticulous observance of sanitary and hygienic precautions. Perhaps they shake their own hands merely to be different from the outside barbarians.

Over here we might—but there, these remarks have no relevance to current events or modern instances, and lest they should be suspected of it they must be brought to an immediate close.

Troublesome, but Not Discouraging.

Two more escapes of privileged convicts from the bonds of honor as now imposed on Sing Sing's inmates are sure to revive the chorus of "I told you so," which the opponents of prison reform—especially in the matter of contracts for supplies, and the other matter of salaried jobs for small politicians—are so fond of raising. They will forget, of course, that escapes were more numerous under other Wardens than they have been under Mr. OSBORNE, and they will condemn his "system" because its percentage of successes is less than 100.

That is to be expected. These occasional failures of convicts to prove wholly trustworthy should not cause, however, either great exultation on the one hand or great discouragement on the other. Perfection cannot be demanded of Mr. OSBORNE any more reasonably than from the rest of us, and his full justification lies in the marked improvement of prison conditions which, by the admission of all unprejudiced observers, has followed his management of the prisoners.

The only just, the only decent, criticism that can be made of him is the far from serious one that he tends to be too optimistic as to the responsiveness of all his charges to trust and good treatment. There is such a thing as irremediable defectiveness. In theory Mr. OSBORNE admits that fact, but in practice he sometimes seems to ignore it—with results, now and then, that are intensely satisfactory to his enemies. But this excessive confidence is a fault of his qualities—probably a necessary and inevitable characteristic of them—and it is so much preferable to an excessive distrust of convict and human nature that it can be counted a merit, and not a fault at all.

For the one unreformable criminal that now runs away from Sing Sing, and stays away, that institution in the past turned out hundreds and thousands of worse men at the expiration of their sentences.

The Law on Sweeping Sidewalks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES of Sept. 28 contained a communication signed "James F. Starek," under the caption, "When to Sweep the Sidewalks." For the information of Mr. Starek and others who may be interested, attention is called to the second paragraph of Article II., Chapter 22, Code of Ordinances, which reads:

> In the Boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn, and the Bronx, dust from the sidewalk may be swept into the gutter in the morning before 8 o'clock or before the sweeping of the roadway by the Department of Street Cleaning, if there plied, but not otherwise, and at no other time.

The Department of Street Cleaning has no jurisdiction over sidewalks, either directly or indirectly. Observance of the above-quoted ordinance would correct the nuisance of which Mr. Starek complains, and at the same time be helpful to this department.

Americans Fighting for Germany.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article quoted in THE TIMES from the Lokal-Anzeiger on the subject of American neutrality and complaining of Americans' activity with the allied forces strikes me—as most German protests do—as a huge joke. The German paper conveniently closes its eyes to the fact that the "Americans" fighting with the Allies are "Americans" of English, French, &c., origin. I fail to find any mention of the myriad of "Americans" who are fighting in the German ranks—men of German origin, but none the less "American" citizens. But then, of course, that's different! EDWARD EMERY.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 30, 1916.

A WASTEFUL GODDESS.

Sea, when a blue haze hides October hills,
How prodigal she is, in fields and lanes
Strewing wild asters with a lavish hand,
And goldenrod, while pensive Autumn reigns.
Vermilion velvet heads the sumac rears,

Now elderberry clusters nod and sway,
The nuts, impatient in their prisoning burrs,
The scarlet barberries in myriads glow;
Above stone walls the apple boughs bend low.

The song of birds is mute, but insects hum,
And there is gladness in the mellow light,
The shocks of grain, the gardens' bounteous yield,
The twining clematis, all feathery white,
The woodbine and the brier in tints so gay,
Where thistledown floats airily away.

Fair Goddess Flora, wandering thus a-field,
In her autumnal largess beauty strews,
While I, here, in the city's brick and stone,
Her bounty of the woodland pathways lose.
The commonest blossom that, unnoticed, dies,

GERMANY AND AMERICA.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have no doubt that evidence of Germany's attitude toward the United States in the recent past, like that which has been accumulating lately in letters to THE TIMES, can be largely increased. One line of evidence exists in the columns of the newspapers of Germany since our Spanish war, and it is especially interesting evidence because it throws a good deal of light on the underlying causes of the present war. Before our war with Spain the bitterness against England, which had been growing in Germany for nearly twenty years, had not been extended to us. Our success in the Spanish war and our occupation of Spanish colonies made at once a decided change. We began to be classed with England and the same savage things began to be said about us and the same attacks made on the honesty and morality of our motives. American visitors in Germany began to notice a difference of feeling on the part of considerable classes of Germans, particularly if they let their interest in international affairs be known. There is abundant evidence of this change in the files of the German newspapers, unless these have all disappeared because of the wretched paper on which they were printed. Whenever the United States, since that date, has taken any step to influence the conduct of other States, as in the West Indies, and in Central or South America, there has been a new editorial outburst of criticism and denunciation. This attitude of the press is especially important when it is found, as it generally can be, in papers which are understood to speak for the Government. To cite a single example, the Berliner Lokal-Anzeiger, in its issue of Dec. 17, 1909, made a most bitter attack on our Government for the policy it was then following in Nicaragua, accusing the President and the State Department of fomenting a revolution in that country in order to get it under our control.

The reasons for all this are not far to seek. The natural enthusiasm and sense of power of the new German Empire began to lead, about 1880 or perhaps a little earlier, to dreams of a German world empire and on the other side to the fear of an inevitable decline in relative power and international importance if there could not be obtained an opportunity for colonial expansion. Almost first of the nations, Germany began to see that the time had passed when predominant power in Europe meant predominant power in the world. This is what the Germans have really meant by a place in the sun; such a position in the world as a whole, only to be secured by colonial expansion or by vast continental area, as would make her a dominating world power as she was a dominating European power. It was because the Germans saw, when this ambition had been born, that the British Empire was the chief obstacle in the way of its realization that a bitter hatred of England grew and strengthened until it became so violent in the time of the Boer war that unsuspicious England could no longer fail to notice it. And so it was that the conviction grew up that only the overthrow of the British Empire could secure for Germany the opportunity which she needed. In 1885 in Leipsic, I said to a friend who had rather provoked me by the ambitions he freely revealed: "What are you going to do about it? The Anglo-Saxon race has possession of all the portions of the world best suited for colonization. What are you going to do?" "Oh," he said, "a war can change all that. Look at South Africa. The English got that by a war and they can lose it by a war."

This feeling, however, in this form, did not include us until we became a colonial power, but the moment we laid our hands on the Spanish possessions, which had no doubt been marked out as easy to be acquired when a general upset should come, we came in also for the same bitter reproaches and began to be regarded as an object of attack when opportunity should serve. I do not think that any one who understands what feelings and ambitions lay in the background can doubt that the Manila incident would have meant actual fighting if the German commander at the critical moment had not believed himself too weak.

Three times at least in the present century Germany has been near to bringing on a general war, and would have done so if she had not either obtained her demands, as in reference to Bosnia and Herzegovina, or found herself, as she did at Manila, in too weak a position as the case developed, which was what prevented extreme action in the two Morocco incidents. In the present case Germany was forced to follow her policy to the bitter end by the fact that only by a war, if she did not obtain her demands, could she keep under her control the Balkan road to Asia, where she believed her best immediate opportunity was to be found. If Germany should by this war obtain her coveted world position, it would not be long before some issue of serious difficulty would arise, to all appearances very naturally no doubt, between Germany and the United States, and we should be compelled either to yield to Germany's demands or to try the issue of another war. As the evidence accumulates this is the conclusion to which we shall be brought, for Germany has not yet changed her ambitions nor her plans for their realization.

GEORGE BURTON ADAMS.
New Haven, Sept. 30, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

MAY I through your valuable columns entreat all Irishmen who fervently at heart desire the good of their country to refrain from patronizing the so-called "Irish Bazaar" which is to be held at Madison Square Garden Oct. 14 to 22? All real Irishmen desire to see their country liberated, but it seems to me that it is far better to have the "devil" we know rather than to have to thank the exponents of German Kultur for any assistance in this direction. If our countrymen are really in need of financial assistance, it is far better that it go through direct Irish channels. A. HYNES,

High Cost of Musical Comedy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have lived long enough in New York to disregard the $2 a seat box office myth, but on being informed at a theatre ticket office that the best I could get for a musical comedy was two seats in the ninth row for $4 apiece, I decided that for the future I would stick to the movies, where prices are fixed. From Mr. Spooner's Chauffeur.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In looking over your paper this morning I was reading the account of Senator J. C. Spooner's son's attack on a taxi chauffeur. You mentioned that the Senator's chauffeur was colored. I will ask you to correct this, as my name is James W. Riley. I do not think the public will need any further information, if they see my name, as to what color or nationality I am. JAMES W. RILEY.

MUST TELL POLITICAL GIFTS.

Louisville & Nashville Loses Fight with Commerce Commission.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Justice Stafford of the District of Columbia Court rendered a decision today requiring Milton H. Smith, President, and other officials of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad to answer questions propounded by the Interstate Commerce Commission regarding its political contributions.

The court held the commission had the right to know about such contributions, not because of the political nature, but because they affect questions of the reasonableness of rates, and important questions of railroad accounting.

Mr. Smith refused several months ago to answer questions of Joseph W. Folk, counsel for the commission, in an inquiry into the affairs of the Louisville & Nashville, and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railroads based upon a Senate resolution.

Recourse to the courts was had and both the commission and the Louisville & Nashville presented briefs and argued the merits orally. The commission contended that it was a matter vital to proper enforcement of the law to regulate commerce that it have authority to obtain full information regarding a carrier's expenditures. The railroad said the commission obviously was not concerned in a carrier's political activity, and asserted that the investigation was inspired by political reasons.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 4.—No statement was forthcoming at the general offices of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad here today regarding the decision of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia requiring officials of the road to answer questions propounded by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The impression was gained, however, that the question would be taken to the United States Supreme Court.

WHITMAN'S DAY COACH TRIP.

Governor Will Forego Pullmans in Seeking Up-State Votes.

A day-coach campaign is being arranged for Governor Whitman by the Republican State Committee for the last three weeks preceding Election Day. It will begin on Oct. 16, when Mr. Whitman will return from the Middle West, where he is to make speeches in Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, and possibly Ohio under the auspices of the Republican National Committee.

The Governor's itinerary for the first week of his active campaign was made public yesterday. He will start from Buffalo in a special train on Oct. 16 and arrive in New York on the morning of Oct. 21. Later he will make another tour.

The Whitman campaign special will be very unlike the special train de luxe which carried the Governor, his military staff, and a select company on the famous cross-continental junket to the Panama-Pacific Exposition last year. Democratic simplicity will mark the campaign trip, due largely, it was said yesterday, to the scarcity of funds in the Republican campaign coffers. The train will carry nothing but day coaches, and there will not even be dining car service. Governor Whitman will make nearly twenty rear-platform speeches.

Oct. 16.—Leave Buffalo 8:30 A. M.; arrive Tonawanda 8:50, Niagara Falls 9:40, Lockport 10:50, Middleport 11:40, Medina 11:55 P. M., Lockport 6, Spencerport 1:37, Penn Yan 3:50, Geneva 6:15, Seneca Falls 7:30, Auburn 8:45.

Oct. 17.—Leave Auburn 9 A. M.; arrive Moravia 9:30, Groton 9:45, Ithaca 10:30, Owego 12:40 P. M., Waverly 2:15, Elmira, 3, Corning 4:30, Olean 7:45.

Oct. 18.—Leave Olean 8:30 A. M.; arrive Bath 11:45, Cochten 12:42, Mansville 1:25, Mount Morris 2:50, Geneseo 3:50, Leroy 4:16, Batavia 5:10, Buffalo 7:30.

Oct. 19.—Leave Buffalo 6 A. M.; arrive Dunkirk 9, Jamestown 11, Salamanca 12:20 P. M., Friendship 2:15, Hornell 3:10, Addison 4:45, Binghamton 7:30.

Oct. 20.—Leave Binghampton 8 A. M.; arrive Cortlandt 9:15, Cheango Forks 10:30, Norwich 11:10, Sidney 12:30 P. M., Oneonta 1:35, Cooperstown 2:46, Worcester 4:15, Cobleskill 5, Schenectady 6:15, New York, Oct. 21, 5:05 A. M.

For the later stages of the Whitman campaign the managers expect to arrange an itinerary in conjunction with the Republican National Committee which will bring Charles E. Hughes and Mr. Whitman together on the same platform for one or more meetings upState.

TO QUIT TAMMANY OFFICES.

Alphonse Koelble Prompted by Decision Not to Support Wilson.

Alphonse Koelble, who has been prominent in German-American agitation in the city, announced yesterday that he intended to resign as Secretary of the General Committee and Chairman of the Manhattan Borough Committee of Tammany Hall. He said he was prompted to take this action by his decision not to support President Wilson for re-election. He stated that he did not desire to remain officially connected with any organization that was supporting the President.

"There is no truth that I am resigning because the powers that be in Tammany Hall objected to my criticism of President Wilson at the meeting of the Irish Bazaar Committee on Sunday," said Mr. Koelble. "The fact is I notified Charles F. Murphy of Tammany Hall last August that I intended to resign. Tammany Hall would be tickled to death to have me remain. The single reason for my resignation is that I do not intend to support President Wilson for re-election."

Asked if he intended to support Mr. Hughes, Mr. Koelble said:

BACK SEABURY TICKET.

ALBANY, Oct. 4.—Representatives of a faction of the Progressive Party, headed by John J. O'Connell of New York, adopted resolutions here today urging all members of the party to vote for "designees on our original Progressive primary ballot whose names will appear on election day ballot." The ticket thus indorsed was named as follows:

For Governor, Samuel Seabury; Lieutenant Governor, L. Bradley Dorr; Treasurer, Frank P. Tucker; Attorney General, Robert H. Elder; Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, Almet F. Jenks; Associate Judge, Cuthbert W. Pound; United States Senator, Bainbridge Colby.

A resolution also was adopted requesting all Progressives to enroll this Fall, so that the identity of the party might not be lost.

Board of Child Welfare Complete.

Mayor Mitchel announced yesterday the appointment of four members of the Board of Child Welfare to fill existing vacancies. Henry Bruere was appointed for an eight-year term to succeed Commissioner Kingsbury; William M. Chadbourne, for a seven-year terms to succeed Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, and Miss Ruth Morgan for a six-year term to succeed Mrs. Rogers H. Baker. William H. Matthews was reappointed for a term of nine years.

BAKER SAYS WILSON SAVES HUMAN LIVES

Secretary of War, in Speech to Women, Praises Peace Policy and 8-Hour Law.

BELIEVES NATION EXALTED

Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, defended the eight-hour law at a meeting of the Women's Bureau of the National Democratic Committee in the Music Room of the Biltmore yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, who had just returned from her Summer home in Maine, presided. She introduced Mr. Baker, asking the women to rise as a tribute to him. Before the introduction she said:

"I have to apologise for the way Maine has been acting. I understand it is going to be better in the future. I live on an island in Maine, and I would like you to know that all of my island went Democratic."

"I have been in Maine," Mr. Baker began. "I don't know whether I stayed too long or didn't stay long enough."

He said America was suffering from distortion of vision caused by a near view of things. From the edge of the moon, he said, one would get a right perspective of the terrible conditions abroad and the peace and prosperity on this side of the water. With all the terrors of war about them, the people abroad wear praying for peace, he declared, while here in this country we were printing pamphlets to see if we needed a chance in administration. He continued:

"There has not been an hour since the beginning of the European war then it would not have been easier to have gone into it than to have stayed out. The pull is in. Roosevelt has said that no one could insult Mr. Wilson and make him go to war. I am glad they could not. It was not his business to get his dander up and sacrifice half a million men. When he set his face against the invasion of neutral nations he did more than if he had gone into war. There being this great neutral nation at the close of the war to speak for the rights of man will be a great service to the world."

Mr. Baker then took up the Eight-hour law. He said he spoke as the son of a country doctor who was a railroad surgeon. He said President Wilson had advocated passing the eight-hour law because the stopping of the trains threatened "the starvation of the nation."

Mr. Baker told of one train accident in his home town, investigation of which was forstalled by the engineer confessing he had been asleep. He said: "I had been in my cab twent yhours continuously."

"Many nights a man with a lantern on his arm would come to my father to tell him that there had been a railroad wreck," said Mr. Baker. "We in this country used to kill on the railroads seventeen times per 100,000 more people than Germany did. We killed in a year more than were killed in the battle of Verdun or in the battle of the Marne. If we had gathered those people in a ten-acre plot—if we could have done it—the American people would not have stood for it.

Has not every safe advance been made in the face of railroad opposition? Were not the cuppler and the air brake forced upon them? When you ride on a railroad train you do not want the man on the engine to be asleep?"

Mr. Baker closed his address with a text: "Rightness exalteth a nation," and said that "Woodrow Wilson represented the heart, mind, and character of America."

Dudley Field Malone was another speaker and Mrs. Elizabeth Glendower-Evans of Boston also spoke, saying:

"Women are part of the country, and what effects the country effects them. That the women have been asked to help two great political parties show that this is a woman's day."

She spoke of the Administration of President Wilson as being extraordinary and unprecedented in its results, and said the Progressive Party was championing now what it had considered a disgrace to live in the world with four years ago.

"Woodrow Wilson is our champion," she said, "because he is the people's champion. He has kept this country in peace and with honor. I congratulate you upon this being the woman's hour. Make the most of it."

DEFENDS THE 8-HOUR LAW.

Assistant Secretary Post Says Shippers Will Get Better Service.

The Adamson eight-hour law for railroads, passed recently by Congress, will benefit the shippers as well as railroad employes, according to Louis F. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor, who conferred yesterday with Chairman Vance McCormick of the Democratic National Committee. Mr. Post says he believes the act will give the shippers better service, and

MISS BAIRD WEDS G. F. BUTTERWORTH

IN ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S

The wedding of G. Forrest Butterworth, Jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Forrest Butterworth, of this city and Norwalk, Conn., and Miss Isabel Imlay Baird, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart Baird, of New York and Cornwall-on-Hudson, was celebrated at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in St. Bartholomew's Church, Madison Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, by Bishop David H. Greer, assisted by the Rev. Dr. John S. Butterworth, formerly rector of the American Church at Dresden, Saxony, but for eleven years of Summit, N. J., and an uncle of the bridegroom.

The church was decorated with palms and white flowers. A gothic arch covered with foliage and having baskets filled with autumn leaves and white chrysanthemums at the sides, marked the entrance to the nave. Masses of tall palms banked the chancel and vases of white flowers were on the altar.

The maid of honor and the bridesmaids entered the nave from the vestry and walked down to the archway to meet the bride, the ushers parting to let them through, and then the ushers led the way back to the chancel.

The bride, who walked with her father, wore a gown of soft white satin draped very full in both back and front, and duchesse lace formed a diagonal drapery across the front of the skirt, falling from the drapery. The corsage had a square neck and wide plaited girdle and the sleeves were wide and full to the elbow and from there down formed close fitting cuffs of duchesse lace. The long train was embroidered in leaves that formed a border, and the full tulle veil was held in a close cap over her coiffure, and hair was finished with an edge of pearls. Fluffs of the tulle were caught at each ear, like flowers, and the veil fell to the end of the train. She carried an extremely large bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids, and wore the bridegroom's gift, a diamond bar, on the corsage of her gown.

Miss Charlotte Chalmers, whose engagement to Truman Handy was announced some time ago, was the maid of honor, and was in apricot colored taffeta, cut in one of the latest designs. The short skirt showed the apricot silk hose and cloth of gold slippers, and hung in straight full lines. The back was laid in two plaits of triple plaits, the tops rising far above the waistline. The space between them showed a plastron of silk running below the waistline in a point and ending some distance above the ruched plait top in a square effect. The corsage was of brown tulle over white, and formed a cape effect, the sides being draped into sleeves and the top finished with a collar of gold lace standing out from the neck at the back and sides, and gold bordered the edges. Her poke hat of apricot colored silk had a cluster of gold fruit at the front. She carried an armful of sunrise roses and farleyance ferns.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Hilary Thomas, Edith Wellman, Mildred Boody, Helen Adams, Geraldine Frost and Catherine Farrelly. They were gowned like the maid of honor and also carried sunrise roses and ferns, but instead of poke bonnets they wore huge mushroom hats of brown tulle with draped crowns of brown velvet, finished at one side with twisted velvet ends.

Mr. Butterworth's best man was William J. Demorest and the ushers were Francis H. Geer, Austin Knight Neftel, Henry G. Hotchkiss, Samuel Murphy, Paul McQuillan, G. Ross Kenyon, and Kenneth Walser. Truman Handy and G. Farnham Kunhardt, who were to have been ushers, are still at the Texas border with the United States troops.

There was no reception after the wedding owing to mourning in the bride's family, but a breakfast was served to the bridal party and the two families at the town house of the Bairds, 125 West Eighty-fifth Street. On their return from their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Butterworth will live at 129 East Eighty-second Street.

The engagement was announced in April, 1914, while Mr. Butterworth was a student at the Columbia Law School. He was graduated from Columbia University the previous June. Mrs. Butterworth, who came out three years ago, is a sister of Mrs. Max Roesler and Mrs. Austin Knight Neftel.

Dr. George Alexander of the University Place Presbyterian Church and the Rev. Dr. Henry Evertson Cobb of the West End Collegiate Church.

The house was decorated with yellow chrysanthemums, and none except the families and a few close friends were present. The bride, who had no attendants, wore a white georgette crêpe frock and a tulle veil, and carried lilies of the valley. A breakfast at 1 o'clock followed the ceremony.

Terhune, better known to the reading public as Marion Harland, and Christine Terhune Herrick, another writer, is his aunt. He was a student at the New York University and was graduated from the School of Journalism.

JEWISH HARMONY RESTORED

New Plan for Congress Limits Conference Representation.

Harmony among Jews in the United States was restored last night by the adoption of a new plan for the long sought American Jewish Congress to demand equal rights for Jews in European countries. The plan was ratified by representatives of the Conference of National Jewish Organizations and of the Jewish Congress Organization at a meeting in Aeolian Hall.

A plan previously accepted by representatives of the two bodies was recently rejected by a referendum vote. The plan just agreed upon limits the number of delegates to be elected by the conference to 25 per cent. of the entire representation, thereby removing the charge of the "democratic" associations that the conference was trying to obtain control of the Congress.

Magnates Say New York Team Tried to Beat Robins, but Manager Was Overwrought.

The baseball scandal which was launched by Manager John J. McGraw of the Giants in Brooklyn Tuesday, when he quit the team after accusing the players of not trying to play their best against the Dodgers, was somewhat quieted yesterday when McGraw left town and went down to Laurel, Md., to get a taste of his pet pastime, playing the ponies.

Secretary John B. Foster of the Giants had breakfast with McGraw yesterday morning, and Foster said yesterday that the Giant leader did not discuss the baseball situation, save to say that he would stand back of what he said about the Giants after Tuesday's aggravating exhibition. McGraw will not be with the Giants in Brooklyn today.

The National Commission, which is now meeting in this city, was badly jarred by McGraw's charges. President Ban Johnson of the American League said yesterday: "Personally, I think it is an outrage, and had it occurred in the American League there would have been the deuce to pay. It is a matter for the National League to settle. If they are not big enough to handle it they should go out of business.

Herrmann Thought It a Joke.

August Herrmann, the Chairman of the National Commission, had little to say about the incident. "This is the first I have heard about the matter," said Mr. Herrmann. "At first I thought it was a joke." He declined to say whether the commission would take any action on the charges when it meets in Boston tomorrow afternoon.

It is almost certain that McGraw's charges will be laid at rest, because President John K. Tener of the National League said yesterday that as far as he was concerned, it was a closed incident. President Tener said, "I have not talked with Secretary Foster, Manager McGraw or with any member of the New York team about the stories which intimate that the Giants deliberately laid down in Tuesday's game. McGraw's action means simply that the wild Irish in him rose to the top when he thought his athletes were not doing their best.

"Personally, I believe that every man was fighting tooth and nail to win. I am not going to present the matter to the National Commission, and I don't believe that Johnson or Garry Herrmann will do so. It is a closed incident as far as I am concerned."

Hempstead's View of Matter.

Harry N. Hempstead, president of the Giants, gave out a statement last night in which he said that the present season had been one of mingled exhilaration and discouragement. He remarked that the opening game in Philadelphia this season showed the weakness of the New York club, and that the vulnerability at third base made the team look like a joke. President Hempstead said that on the third home series the Giants began to win and compiled a remarkable record. He went on:

"Owing to the unusual standing of the clubs at the beginning of the Brooklyn series, the crux of the whole year's play seemed to centre upon the Giants' winning or losing to the Brooklyns. If we beat Brooklyn four straight Philadelphia might win the pennant; if we lost Brooklyn might win the pennant, and it was much talked about that the Giants must win the games because if they did not the public would feel that the team wanted Brooklyn to win. Many of my personal friends spoke to me of this last week and said we must win all four games.

"It was no wonder, therefore, with this burden to carry, that Mr. McGraw yesterday during the game was much upset by the loose playing of the team, because apparently the burden was all on his shoulders, owing to his intimate relations with Manager Robinson. If, however, I was asked to nominate any one club that Mr. McGraw would rather have beaten, I certainly would have picked Brooklyn. When he asked to be relieved from the management during the balance of the game I felt that he was right, and perhaps the team might pull itself together and win.

"There is no doubt that the game was indifferently played, but the six runs that the Giants made showed great effort on the part of the players to win."

May Not See World's Series.

That Manager McGraw meant sincerely what he said is shown by the fact that he refused to go to Brooklyn yesterday to pilot his club, and instead went to Baltimore to attend the races at Laurel. To his friends, McGraw said that it was doubtful whether he would come back to see the World's Series, as he had arranged a hunting trip to Chesapeake Bay for next week.

The players of the Giants' club predict that Manager McGraw will get over his grouch in a day or so, and will return to New York and see his friend Robinson, of Brooklyn, battle for the World's championship.

Squire Ebbets, of the Brooklyn club, revived the rumor yesterday that he was ready to quit baseball. Mr. Ebbets is somewhat of a business man, and the conditions under which he will quit are that he shall get the price he asks for his club.

After winning the National League peunant prospective buyers are hereby warned that the Dodgers can not be bought for a song. If anyone puts up the right amount of kale, Mr. Ebbets will sell out. Otherwise, no.

There has also been some talk to the effect that McGraw might quit the Giants to manage the Chicago White Sox next season. Both Secretary Foster and President Hempstead stated yesterday that there was absolutely no truth in this rumor, and that McGraw would be in his same old post as pilot of the Giants next season.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 4.—Otto Rettig, the sensational pitcher for the Paterson Silk Sox, the local semi-professional team which shut out the New York Giants, 2 to 0, here on Sunday, allowing them only three hits, will report to John McGraw on Thursday morning, when, it is understood, he will be taken into the National League.

PHILLIES WIN DRAB GAME.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—Their pennant aspirations shattered by the Braves on Tuesday, Pat Moran's Phillies braced themselves yesterday and foiled the plans of the Boston outfit to relieve them of second place by squeezing home on the long end of a 7 to 5 score in a listless and uninteresting game.

A Shibe Park crowd viewed the clash, about 500, this number including the scorers and substitute players. It was a dull day and enthusiasm was notably absent. Both managers did considerable manoeuvring, and at the conclusion of the conflict the old scorebook looked like an elongated Chinese laundry check. The game just dragged along.

Al Demaree and Lefty Allen were the opposing pitchers when the battle began, but the former was relieved of his position in the fifth, while Stallings's first pitcher was forced to retreat in the following round. Bud Weiser played left field for the Phillies in place of George Whitted. Whitted broke his ankle Tuesday and left yesterday for his home in Carolina. Weiser did not show anything astonishing, but took care of all chances that came his way and rapped out a single at Allen's expense.

Barnes, who relieved Allen in the sixth, did not seem to have anything besides a part in his hair and fancy wind-up. He was bumped for a triple and double before he silenced the Phillies' bats in the winning inning.

Kantlehner substituted for Demaree with the bases filled in the fifth and all three runners scored before the third out was accounted for. Kantlehner was lifted in the sixth to allow Cooper to hit for him. Oeschger twirled the seventh and eighth and part of the ninth, Grover Alexander being rushed to the peak with Connolly on third base, Maranville up and two on the Rogers Hornsby route to first. Connolly forced Maranville at second, two to one.

Second place in the National League standing was at stake when Hank O'Day sent the clubs on their way, but it didn't add any stimulus to the efforts of the players. The Phillies won the game by bagging two runs in the first inning, but the Braves overtook them in the fifth, forging to the front by 5 to 3. The lead wasn't held for long, the runners-up in the National pennant race clouting Allen and Barnes in the sixth for four markers, putting the game on ice. The score:

SPEEDWAYS BODY PLANNED.

Officials of the Country's Various Tracks to Meet Here Tomorrow.

Officials of the various speedway organizations throughout the country will meet in New York tomorrow in an endeavor to found an American Speedways Association. The association will be limited in its membership to fully constructed and financed speedways only, and the prime purpose will be to promote aggressively the sport of automobile racing as a national pastime. This brings to a head a matter which from time to time has been agitated.

President Reid of the local Speedway Association has been notably active in his endeavor to bring this about, and the New York meeting is due primarily to his efforts in this respect. While it is doubtful if any association will be formed so as to be in active working order before the Great American races, to be held at the local track on Sunday, October 15, it is hoped to have it in such shape as to influence 1916 events.

Some such arrangement, it is believed, would cure the Speedway circuit of its major, not to mention minor, evils. At the outset there would also be a considerable saving in money involved, a saving made possible by economies in management, operation, more equably distributed racing dates and standardization of the entrance fees and forwarding charges incidental to each race. The christening of definite racing teams to represent Speedway cities would go far toward heightening local interest in the participants and key the public mind up to the degree of mental exhilaration of the ordinary baseball fan when he finds his favorite nine standing a fair chance to be a pennant winner.

In the organizing of the proposed Speedways Association it is not planned to sever connections with the American Automobile Association. The speedways will still be governed by A. A. A. rules and supervision as at present. However, by securing some modification of the present rules so as to permit each speedway city to have its resident A. A. A. representative, the speedway managers believe the A. A. A. contest board would be spared certain special expenses which now prevail and both annual and sanction fees could be materially reduced.

GIANTS LISTLESSLY DISPOSE OF ROBINS

By Way of Playing Out Schedule, McGrawites, Minus McGraw, Beat Dodgers, 7 to 3.

Now that everybody knows that Brooklyn has won the National League pennant, no one cares particularly what is going to happen until the formal end of the season. These Dodgers can't lose the flag, so what's the idea of traveling way over to Flatbush just to see them play out the schedule? If you are curious about the matter, it might be said that the Giants beat the Dodgers over in darkest Flatbush yesterday by a score of 7 to 3. Several persons saw the deed.

It wasn't a tussle which would bring out any great amount of enthusiasm. No one got excited. Brooklyn tried out some substitutes. The Giants were ruled yesterday at Ebbets Field by Charley Herzog, because the much perturbed Manager McGraw packed his grip and went down to Maryland to see the ponies gallop.

New York lost no time in getting into the run column. In the first inning, with one gone, Herzog got as far as second when O'Mara made a wild toss to first. Robertson skied to Hickman and the great Zim pounded a single to centre, scoring Herzog. Zim then cautiously stole second, but before he was able to proceed further Mike Doolan fanned and ended the session.

In the second inning the Giants added another run. Benny Kauff rapped a triple to left and Holke was tossed out at first by Cheney. McCarty got a great reception from the Brooklyn fans, and he banged out a single to centre against his old teammates and scored Kauff. Another Giant run drifted across in the next inning. Davey Robertson banged a home run through the exit gate in right centre.

In the last of the third the Dodgers got a bit of such enthusiasm as there was and gobbled up a couple of runs off Sallee and gave the Giants a scare. With one gone, Johnston beat out a hit and Merkle got a pass. Hickman forced Merkle at second and Johnston traveled to third. Hy Myers rapped a hit to right centre and Johnston counted. Then Hickman also traveled home on Robertson's wild toss to third.

The Giants renewed their activity in the fourth, and when Cadore, a recruit flinger, supplanted Cheney, Kauff flied to Johnston. Holke rapped a single to centre, and Lew McCarty gave his old teammates a severe blow when he tripled to the right centre corner and sent Holke home. Burns doubled to right and sent Slim Sallee to third. Sallee had been safe on a grounder when McCarty was out at the plate. Burns ended the inning by lifting a foul to Zack Wheat.

Brooklyn added its last counter in the last of the fifth. Johnston singled through Mike Doolan and Merkle popped a foul to Lobert. Miller banged a triple off the right-field wall and Johnston romped home.

In the seventh the Giants took the matter up again. Burns beat an infield hit and Herzog filed to Johnston, who threw wild, enabling Burns to reach second. Burns went to third on a passed ball, and he counted when Robertson was tossed out at first. Furthermore, the Giants made a glorious ending of the pastime in the eighth inning, when they shivered a whole lot of latent enthusiasm and banged in two more runs. The score:

YANKS FINISH VICTORIOUSLY

Close American League Season, Beating Senators Twice.

The Yankees bade adieu to the baseball season of 1916 at the Polo Grounds yesterday, and celebrated their farewell appearance by taking both games of the double-header with Washington. This achievement firmly intrenched the local American League team in the first division, and the faithful 500 fans who saw the closing battles seemed well satisfied at the outcome of the league race, during which the Yankees have suffered more than any other team from accidents.

The team gave promise of better things to come by playing first-class ball, taking full advantage of all opportunities to score, and beating the visitors by 4 to 3 in the opener and by the more liberal margin of 5 to 1 in the valedictory encounter of the American League season.

A certain amount of hilarity was noticeable, perhaps on account of the fact that the players would have nothing to do tomorrow. Every one was in rare good humor, and even the sting of a double defeat did not sour the spirits of Nick Altrock, the Washington humorist. While on the coaching line this versatile artist stimulated the crowd to merriment by imitations of a tight-rope performer, a wrestler in action, and a juggler going through the motions of a balancing act.

So far as the playing went there was an entire absence of the loose work that characterized the farcical game which went eleven innings on Tuesday and necessitated the double-header. The Yankees started Russell in the first, but he had little on Shaw, who represented Washington on the mound. The victory of the Yankees was largely due to activity on the bases, Hendryx leading in this respect by pilfering on three occasions. Hits were scarce on both sides, the Yankees gathering seven to six credited on the opposite side.

Sawyer scored the first two runs for the visitors, the first one in the fourth after he received a free trip to first base, advanced to second on Menoskey's sacrifice, and scored on Smith's single to right. In the sixth, he singled after Leonard had struck out and then stole second. Menoskey fanned, but the reliable Smith again singled and Sawyer brought the second run home. Rice was guilty of the final run in the closing frame, when he caught one of Russell's squarely and sent the ball sailing to right field for a home run.

The Yankees followed the pace set by Washington in the fourth. After Baker had fouled out Hendryx walked and promptly stole second. Gedeon filed out, but a timely single by Walters scored Hendryx. In the fifth Baker struck out, after Magee had flied out, and he also pilfered the second bag, meandering to the plate when Peckinpaugh doubled to right.

Shaw held the Highlanders helpless in the sixth and seventh, but in the eighth Peckinpaugh and Pipp drew the ire and Walters grounded to first.

The former singled to left, and Pipp dropped one into the right field stand for a home run, deciding the issue right there. Both Baker and Hendryx walked, but the former was caught stealing and Hendryx was thrown out at the plate, Burns ending the inning by lifting a foul to Zack Wheat.

Shocker put a brilliant touch to the last game of the season by holding Griffith's men to three hits, two of which were bunched in the third for Washington's only run. The Yankees quickly more than offset this venture by rolling up three runs in their half of the third. Gedeon singled to centre and Alexander followed with a safety through short. Miller, lately retrieved from the Yankees' team, showed his value as a hitter by tripling to left field, scoring both. Later he reached the home plate himself when Pipp singled to centre.

The Yankees scored two more runs for good measure, one in the fifth and one in the eighth. The last two runs were made off Jamieson, carded as an outfielder, but who did well as a pitcher after he relieved Ayres, who started the game. The scores:

AMHERST 'VARSITY LIGHT.

AMHERST, Mass., Oct. 4.—Numerous changes were made in the Amherst eleven during today's practice in an effort to add weight to what is expected to be the lightest Amherst team in years. Widmeyer, last year's center, has been shifted to end, and Schmidt has taken his place. Knauth has been changed from the backfield to a tackle position, and Davis, a fast man and a good punter, has gone in at left half back.

The scrubs were unable to cope with the first team in a scrimmage which lasted nearly an hour. Given the ball they made a scant twenty yards in as many minutes, while later Davis, quarterback Bodenhorn, and Captain Goodrich tore through the second string men for long gains. Goodrich showed up especially well in line plunges, his speed enabling him to elude the secondary defense. As the eleven stood at the start of practice today, its average weight was a bare 154 pounds. Hobart, the heaviest man on the squad, weighs but 184, while Goodrich, Davis and End Washburn tip the scales at 135.

Eighty Men for Columbia Crew.

More than eighty men had signed last night for the first practice of the Columbia University crews this afternoon on the Hudson. Varsity men and veteran oarsmen will be sent out for short spins in the shells, but the novice candidates for the eights will use the barges for a few weeks. No attempt will be made to schedule a Fall race this year.

BOSTON PREPARES FOR WORLD'S SERIES

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—Enthusiasm over the opening game of the world's series scheduled to take place at Braves' Field on Saturday afternoon is running riot throughout the Hub. Announcement by the Red Sox authorities today that every one of the 27,000 seats available for reservation at Braves' Field has been covered by applications is evidence of the popularity of the Sox and of the coming series. The demand for reserved tickets is so tremendous that many thousands of dollars will have to be returned by the American League club through inability to fill orders for the coveted pasteboards.

The royal rooters are once more on the job, and will be at Ebbets Field as well as at Braves Field. John McKilleen, leader of these ardent enthusiasts, who have rooted the Sox to two world's championships, reported today that President Ebbets of the Brooklyn Club had promised an adequate supply of tickets for the Boston party which will follow the fortunes of the team throughout the series.

There has not been much betting on the series thus far, for the good reason that there is no Brooklyn money to cover the thousands held by Boston commissioners and individuals. Odds of 10 to 7 are being offered on the Red Sox, and though it is a baseball axiom that no team is ever a 2 to 1 proposition, it is quite probable that the odds will soar to that height before the first game on Saturday.

Manager Bill Carrigan's remarkable pitching staff is responsible for the lack of confidence by those who wager on the ability of the Robins to come through in the championship series. When the great trio of Boston twirlers—Leonard, Shore and Ruth—are considered there are few who would be willing to take their chances against them.

It appears very likely that Jack Barry, the veteran second baseman, and one of the coolest and most successful ball players who ever took part in a world's series, will not play against Brooklyn. When the Sox took the field at Braves' Field for practice this afternoon, Barry toyed around second base, but his injured hand was still weak, and he took no chances on further decreasing its prospects of recovering by Saturday.

Barry may prove an incalculable loss to Carrigan. Throughout the season he was a mainstay in the Sox infield, and when he quit through the injury the team seemed to fall off somewhat in its play. Barry is not a wonderful hitter, nor a spectacular fielder, but he is remarkably steady, and in the pinches there is no better man in the national game. In the world's series he played as a member of the Athletics, and is always rated high in batting and fielding averages. His chief success lies in his cool, collected judgment.

Should it be that he will have to remain out for the coming series Brooklyn Barry's place at second will be filled by Janvrin, a youngster, who has had a lot of experience, but who might not be able to stand up under the strain as well as Barry.

Most of the members of the team are in wonderful condition. They were all out at Braves' Field this afternoon, where for several hours Manager Carrigan put them through a stiff workout.

The outfielders spent considerable time chasing flies, to accustom themselves to sunlit spaces and the shadows of the park.

Tomorrow a team of Red Sox under Captain Barry will go to Worcester, where they will play a benefit game with the Philadelphia American League team. The proceeds will be turned over to the memorial fund for John H. Gaffney, a former National League umpire. The team will be composed chiefly of substitutes. The regulars will be put through another workout at Braves' Field today.

All ticket distributions prior to the opening game will be made from the club box offices at Fenway Park. To prevent the congestion which interfered with traffic in the vicinity of Braves Field last year, new arrangements were made by the police and club officials today. Sale of admission tickets at $1 and at 50 cents will be made from offices on the side of the grounds opposite the grand stand entrances, thus eliminating the crush which kept many holders of reserved seats from games last year.

These new gates will be opened at 9 o'clock on the morning of the games. Purchasers of tickets must move into the grounds at once and the gates will be closed as soon as the 15,000 rush seats are filled, according to the plans.

To make these arrangements at such an early date, and to make possible the playing of the opening games here while the Brooklyn park is being placed in readiness for its first world's series, the Boston club has had men at work day and night for more than a week. Secretary Edwin Riley collapsed under the strain and his physician said today that he would be unable to see the team in action in the big games.

The average of the Brooklyn players is 27 1-3 years while that of the Boston combination is 27¼ years. Although the Boston team has the advantage of experience the Brooklyn squad is heavier and taller. The average weight of the Robins is 178 pounds and the height an even 6 feet. Fifteen of the National League representatives bat and throw right-handed and five bat and throw left-handed.

WASHINGTON AND LEE READY

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 4.—Washington and Lee's football squad of 28 men will leave here tomorrow for West Point, where the team will, on Saturday, meet the Cadets in the first intersectional game of a schedule marked by six similar contests. Coach Elcock announced at the conclusion of practice today the names of the men to make the trip. They are: Ends—Larkin, Graham, Adams and Wadsworth; tackles—Ignico, Johnson and Scovell; guards—Moore, Bryan, Bethel and Evans; centres—Pierotti and Gardner; quarter backs—Bagley and Crowell; halves—Captain Young, Kehoe, Fain, Till and Paxton; full backs—Borrello and Crile.

The team will be accompanied by Head Coach Elcock, Assistant Coach Donahue and Mr. J. W. H. Pollard, Faculty Supervisor of Athletics.

Practice during the whole week has been devoted to the development of the offensive work of the ends and backs, and to forward-passing. Captain Young and Ignico have been giving attention to kicking. Although Washington and Lee expects to win the Army game, Coach Elcock has not permitted the squad to engage in scrimmage this week, not wishing to take a chance of the possible injury of his men.

STERLING GOLF IS PLAYED BY WOMEN

FAVORITES COME THROUGH

Mrs. Hucknall and Mrs. Auchincloss Metropolitan Survivors—Miss Stirling Wins Handily.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—Playing with a brilliance seldom seen in women's golf competitions, Mrs. W. A. Gavin of Taconic, Eastern champion, won her way today into the third round of match play in the national championship tournament by defeating Mrs. Leila C. Stockton of Somerville 4 up and 2 to play, over the links of the Belmont Springs Country Club. The winner's medal score was 83. Even with a bad 7 on the eighth hole she reached the turn in 44 strokes and made the inward journey in 39.

Long and straight from the tee, accurate through the green, with an occasional lapse in putting over the tricky Belmont greens, the play of Mrs. Gavin was a revelation to the large gallery that followed the match, and also to many of the other players in the tournament who had finished their matches and were watching the wonderful inward journey of the little Englishwoman.

It cannot be said that there were any upsets in the second day's matches. The most prominent player to meet defeat was the women's Western champion, Mrs. F. C. Letts of Cincinnati, but as she was eliminated by Miss Mildred Caverly, Philadelphia champion, and one of the most promising players in the tournament, there was little surprise manifested when the Philadelphia girl won out on the nineteenth green after a close battle.

Younger Players to Meet.

Miss Alexa Stirling, the young Southern champion, showed signs of returning to her true form today in defeating Mrs. G. Henry Stetson of Huntingdon Valley by 5 and 4, and though her tee shots were not what they should have been, her recoveries with her irons enabled her to hold a comfortable lead during her round of the links. Her opponent tomorrow in the lower half of the draw is Miss Elaine Rosenthal, former Western champion, and as both are brilliant exemplars of the playing of the younger set, the match will be the feature of the day. Miss Rosenthal won her way into the third round by defeating Miss Edith Cheseborough of Burlingame 4 up and 2 to play.

Mrs. C. C. Auchincloss of Piping Rock will be the opponent of Mrs. Gavin in the other match in the lower half of the draw. Mrs. Auchincloss and Mrs. T. Hucknall of Forest Hillls are the sole surviving representatives of the metropolitan district in the tournament. The Piping Rock player won a rather easy victory over Miss Mildred Smith of Evanston today, 4 up and 2 to play, but Mrs. Hucknall had her hands and both arms full of trouble to defeat Miss Ethel M. Caverly of Philadelphia 1 up on the twentieth green.

Tomorrow Mrs. Hucknall is to encounter Miss Laurie Kaiser of Flossmoor in the first match in the upper half of the draw, and Miss Caverly will meet Miss Caleb Fox, the veteran of the tournament, in the other match in that division. Mrs. Fox eliminated the last of the Bostonians today in defeating Miss Alice Sargent of Brookline by the wide margin of 5 and 4. Mrs. Fox was 2 up at the turn in 42 strokes, and increased her advantage steadily on the way home.

Great Exhibition of Golf.

Lured from comfortable beds on a crisp October morning by the hope of seeing a great match between Mrs. Gavin and the conqueror of Miss Hollins, a fair sized gallery followed the match from the first tee to the home green, and stuck to the little English woman as she played out the bye holes in the sheer pleasure of watching an exhibition of golf as it should be played.

On her very first drive Mrs. Gavin gave an inkling of what was to follow by hitting out the longest ball of the day from that tee, straight up the hill past the flag. Mrs. Stockton hooked her drive into a trap and reached the green in 3. The English woman won the hole in a par 4 with conventional putts, and then placed a long drive on the mound to the left of the second green. Her opponent fell short into a bunker, but came out just short of the green, chipped up to the hole and took a 4. Mrs. Gavin had a short putt for the hole, but putts of the like are more easily missed than made, especially on the tricky Belmont greens, and no one was surprised, least of all Mrs. Gavin, when the ball rolled by the cup, and the hole was halved in 4.

From the third tee the English woman hit a beautiful drive right for the pin, but it had an extra long roll and ended up in a trap that somehow or other happened to be right in the way. There are very few traps on the course, and those that are in evidence seem to have been placed in singularly inappropriate places for a women's tournament. Even with this handicap the hole was halved, as Mrs. Gavin extricated herself well, and took a 5. The long fourth hole found the Eastern champion 2 up, Mrs. Stockton hooking her second shot so that she found it "teed up in a hole" among the rocks, and then taking three putts, when she made her delayed arrival at the green.

Mrs. Gavin Makes It 3 Up.

The fifth was halved in 4. Mrs. Gavin took three putts and Mrs. Stockton was short on her tee shot. Then the English woman made it 3 up on the sixth with a long drive, a finely placed iron to the hillside green, and two easy putts for a par 4. The seventh was halved in 5, and then came the worst hole of the day for the Taconic golfer.

The second shot on the eighth hole is aimed at a green far above the players on a shelf in the hillside. If the shot fails to reach the green and stick there, it generally trickles down the hillside to some location not far distant from its starting point, and the process may be repeated until one of three things happens—either the player abandons it in despair, her opponent grows old and gray and decrepit while waiting for her turn, or else the ball accidentally sticks near the top of the slope, where it may be pitched to the green with a reasonable chance of staying there.

In Mrs. Gavin's case, she adopted as her motto "if at first you don't succeed try half a dozen times again," and finally lost the hole in seven strokes after a weary and arduous ascent. In spite of missing a two-foot putt on the ninth green, she won the hole with a 5 and was 3 up at the turn in forty-four strokes.

Mrs. Stockton cut down the lead by one hole on the tenth green with a short approach that ran up dead, giving her a 4, but Mrs. Gavin regained her advantage on the thirteenth green by repeating this performance. Both players were going at a tremendous pace through this part of the match, and one brilliant shot followed another in steady sequence.

Deciding a Knotty Point.

"Time out" was taken by the players on the fourteenth green while Lewis F. Crosby, member of the Executive Committee of the United States Golf Association, debated the question, "When is a stroke?" In walking on the green, Mrs. Gavin accidentally touched her opponent's ball with her putter, hence the long conference on the debated point.

To save the ladies from embarrassment Mr. Crosby argued both sides of the question and drew diagrams on the ground to convince himself. He was about to grant a decision in favor of the plaintiff, Mrs. Stockton, but, after he had questioned her caddie and found that the ball had never moved from its position, he announced a decision for the defendant, Mrs. Gavin, and the match was resumed.

The next hole was halved in par 4, and the English woman clinched the victory by 4 and 3 on the sixteenth green, where Mrs. Stockton took three putts and lost the hole. Mrs. Gavin played out the bye holes in perfect style and got her 83.

Mrs. Hucknall of Forest Hill has upheld the prestige of the Metropolitan district in a truly remarkable manner. Yesterday she jumped to fame by eliminating the medalist, Mrs. J. V. Hurd, former national and international champion. Today she was apparently defeated coming to the home hole, but she squared the match with Miss Campbell at the eighteenth and went on to the extra holes.

Miss Campbell in Bad Luck.

On the nineteenth green the Philadelphian missed a short putt that would have settled matters, and the players went to the twentieth tee. The Metropolitan player got the better drive and reached the edge of the green. Miss Campbell chipped up on her second, however, and ran an approach putt up within a few feet of the hole. Mrs. Hucknall approached poorly, but put her third shot exactly where it cut off Miss Campbell's avenue of entrance to the cup. Miss Campbell surveyed the positions from three different points of view, standing, kneeling, and finally sitting right down on the grass to think it over. There was no way out of it, however, and she lost the match when she failed to get around the ball into the cup.

The other metropolitan player, Mrs. C. C. Auchincloss of Piping Rock, had an easier time in winning her match against Miss Mildred Smith of Evanston, being 2 up at the turn in 46 strokes, and eventually winning by 4 up and 2 to play The summaries:

UPPER HALF.—Miss Laurie Kaiser, Flossmoor, defeated Mrs. T. E. Forrest, Knollwood, 4 up and 2; Mrs. T. Hucknall, Forest Hill, defeated Miss E. M. Campbell, Philadelphia, 1 up, (20 holes;) Miss Mildred Caverly, Philadelphia, defeated Mrs. F. C. Letts, Cincinnati, 1 up, (19 holes;) Mrs. Caleb Fox, Huntingdon Valley, defeated Miss Alice Sargent, Brookline, 5 and 4.

MAKES FINAL HOLE IN ONE.

Chicago Golfer's Mashie Shot Clicks Into Cup on 165-Yard Hole.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—What is claimed here today to be the first time in golf history when a player won a match by making the final hole in one is recorded in the contest for the W. J. Jackson trophy at Beverly Country Club. Playing in the final, Harry R. Shollenberger and William F. Neilson came to the eighteenth tee all square. The hole is 165 yards, and Shollenberger's mashie shot rolled up to the hole and rested against the pin. When the pin was lifted the ball fell in. Neilson holed his putt for a two, but it did him no good.

DOWLING IN TROPHY FRAY.

Scarsdale Golf Pro Qualifies to Play for Wanamaker Trophy.

Jack Dowling, the Scarsdale golf professional, was a belated qualifier yesterday on the Englewood links, for the championship competition of the Professional Golfers' Association of America. Twelve men from the metropolitan district had already gained the right to compete for the Wanamaker Trophy, but a representative of the northwestern section dropped out, entitling this region to another entrant.

Three players were entitled to a shot at the coveted position, but Macdonald Smith arrived at the Englewood course too late to participate in the fray. Dowling's rounds were recorded in 72 and 75, for a total of 147, figures which snowed under his sole rival, Clarence Hackney of Atlantic City. Hackney registered 84, 81—165.

RECORD SHATTERED BY LEE AXWORTHY

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 4.—One world's record and two season's records were broken at the Kentucky Horse Breeders' Association meeting here today. The world's record fell when Lee Axworthy, 2:00, in an effort to break the track record of 2:02 for trotting stallions made by Peter Volo last year, lowered his own world's record to 1:59½.

Lucile Spier, the world's champion mare on a half mile track, went to beat 2:05 and trotted the mile in 2:03¾, which is the season's mark for trotting mares, and Roan Hal, in winning the Board of Commerce stake for 2:00 pacers, went the second mile in 2:00¾, which is the season's mark for pacing geldings. All the races today were decided in straight heats.

Lee Axworthy never faltered in traveling his mile, though for an instant he showed signs of tiring at the sixteenth pole. His fastest quarter was the third, which he trotted in 28¾ seconds. A stiff wind almost full up the stretch hindered him in the last quarter. The champion was paced by two runners.

In the Board of Commerce stake Single G., the favorite, was off to a bad start in the opening heat and finished second, Roan Hal winning the heat handily. Roan Hal also won the second and deciding heat easily.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 4.—Coach Robinson sent the Brown 'Varsity team into another long scrimmage this afternoon, an eleven which will probably line up against Trinity on Saturday, working against a strong second team for over an hour. Following the long scrimmage of Tuesday, when things did not go any too well, a decided improvement was shown in the line from end to end, in spots where weakness was in evidence last Saturday.

Marshall, a big tackle on the scrubs last year, has been tried as an end this week, and may have the call for the position left vacant by Butner's failure to return to college, although Ormsby, who has had previous 'Varsity experience is again out for the team.

Brown is going to be particularly strong in its backfield this year, for in addition to Pollard, Jemail, Conroy and Hillhouse of last year's 'Varsity, there are several new men who are showing exceptional ability, including Annan from Kewatin Academy, Brooks and Armstrong from Blair Academy, and Devitalis from Exeter. Purdy and Murphy, the 'Varsity quarter backs, are not likely to be replaced.

In experiments designed to strengthen the left side of the line, Spagna at guard and Williams at tackle have looked good in scrimmage, and may start the game Saturday, replacing two of the regulars. In the scrimmage this afternoon the first team scored several times on the second team, which was using the Trinity formations.

HUNT CLUB RACING NOTES.

The one-day racing meeting which was to have been held on the estate of T. De Witt Cuyler at Bryn Mawr, Penn., Oct 23, has been abandoned. Mr. Cuyler found that it would be impossible to get the new course, which he is having constructed, ready by that time, and the event will be postponed until next Autumn. The Huntingdon Valley Hunt Club has applied for this vacant date and the Stewards of the National Hunt and Steeplechase Association have granted the permission.

The White Marsh Valley Hunt Club at Erdenheim, Chestnut Hill, Penn., will hold a two-day meeting under the sanction of the Hunts Committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association. The dates assigned to the club are Oct. 25 and Oct. 28. There will be six races each day.

LET UP IN YALE PRACTICE.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 4.—Believing that the Yale football team has been driven hard during the last week and that in the game with Virginia next Saturday it faces a stubborn contest, Head Coach Tad Jones this afternoon let down the work, ordering less than an hour's drill and devoting all but fifteen minutes to practice in the fundamentals. The entire coaching squad hammered away at improvement in tackling, blocking and interfering, all of which have been below standard in the work of the Yale team all this season.

More than half the regulars were laid off and the 'Varsity eleven which was formed for the afternoon was unable to make much headway. It was twice held on downs by the scrubs and it failed to register a touchdown. Ross, Freshman centre last year, was given that position today. Redfield, a third-string candidate, was used at right end and Stewart and Neville, of the second team, as half backs. Stewart has advanced from the reserve material rapidly in the last fortnight, chiefly because of his phenomenal defensive play. Jacques was again at full back, his line boring being the most successful ground gaining of the regulars. John Field was the only visiting coach.

Coach Jones has ordered a vigorous drill for tomorrow, closing scrimmage work in preparation for the Virginians. The portals of the bowl have been opened all this week, but the practice tomorrow will be secret until three o'clock. Today's line-up was as follows:

Columbia's Quarter Now Has Leg in Cast—Cannot Play Saturday.

Not only will Howard Miller, Columbia's quarter back, be unable to play in Saturday's opening game with Hamilton College on South Field, but it is extremely doubtful if he will be in the lineup for the second game on the schedule with the University of Vermont team on Oct. 14. Trainer Gus Petersen announced last night that Miller had water on the knee and that his right leg had been put in a cast. This leaves Columbia without an experienced field general and without a drop kicker.

Practice yesterday consisted almost entirely of signal drill in the plays that will be used in the curtain raiser Saturday. Columbia will make use generally of the straight formations, attempting the forward pass infrequently. Henry Munroe will play at his usual position of full back.

With two of the best players on the squad unable to report because of the injuries received in Tuesday's practice and with Caddell and Conklin, the acting captain, slowed up considerably by the treatment they received from the hard fighting scrub team, Frank Gargan, the Fordham coach, changed his arrangements for another hard scrimmage yesterday and devoted all his attention to preparing new plays for the opening of the home season against Western Maryland on Saturday. Both Mulcahy and Morcaldi, who were unable to get in uniform yesterday, are suffering from wrenched shoulders.

Caddell was badly bruised in the Lafayette game when he stopped a bad line charge, and it is not probable that he will be in shape for work this week. The last twenty minutes of yesterday's practice saw the 'Varsity in a short workout against th scrubs trying out new plays. Again Dempsey was used as the keystone of the whole attack and scored the first touchdown, Cantwell, the Maroon full back, getting another. The scrubs were powerless without Mulcahy, their best lineman.

N. Y. U. BACKFIELD SHIFTED.

In an effort to strengthn the 'Varsity, Coach Eustis used several substitute backfields during a hard scrimmage yesterday at New York University. In addition, the scrub line was changed from time to time, and only Captain Bernstein of the regular backfield used at all during the day. The scrubs succeeded in putting the ball over the goal line three times, each time after starting from the twenty-yard line. The tallies were made by Berghorn, Finley, and Hilbert.

The 'Varsity succeeded in crossing the scrub line once, when Manly broke through tackle from the one-yard line after Mackenzie had advanced the ball to that point by line bucks. During the course of the afternoon Captain Bernstein and Horigan practiced placement kicking in preparation for the first game on Saturday with Rensselaer. The work with the bucking machine, tackling dummy, and blocking dummy was continued. Sokolower, Varsity line man, and Fraser, a quarter back, were both hurt in tackling. Sokolower's injury was in the knee, and will probably prevent his appearance in the line-up Saturday.

Vermont Eleven Wins Easily.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 4.—The University of Vermont defeated the St. Michael's team of Winooski at football today by the score of 33 to 0.

MICHIGAN ELEVEN HAS EASY VICTORY

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 4.—The University of Michigan won the opening game of its football season here today, easily defeating Marietta (Ohio) College, 38 to 0. Coach Yost of Michigan made numerous substitutions during the game, getting nearly his entire squad into action before the contest ended.

Michigan's ground-gaining was done through continuous hand-smashing assaults upon the Marietta line, with Captain Maulbetsch, Sparks, and Raymond taking turns at scoring. Marietta used open plays throughout and successfully executed a number of short passes. Their numerous attempts at long ones, however, failed.

QUAKER BACKFIELD SHIFTED

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 4.—Bob Folwell, announcing that the Pennsylvania football squad must show its wares, this afternoon shifted his backfield and executed a stiff scrimmage. He started Light at quarter back, put Ross and Derrin in the half back positions, and Williams at full back. Loucks also got a trial at half back and Quigley was used at full back. Folwell appeared well pleased with their work, and will give them another try-out tomorrow. Loucks and Ross were not sent through the scrimmage.

Folwell is rerouting his aerial attack, and the Penn eleven, before the Franklin and Marshall game Saturday, will have some new forward passes.

Howard Berry will join the Red and Blue team Monday at Franklin Field. When asked where the pentathlon champion would play, Folwell said: "Berry will have to settle that for himself. I have not seen him play, and cannot say just where I will use him. I want this made plain: He is a mighty welcome man. What he did in the past is with the past. If he can make a place on the team I am for him. It's all up to Berry."

SHAKEUP AMONG CADETS.

Ford Shifted from Fullback to End and Other Changes Made.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 4.—The predicted shakeup in the Army eleven was in evidence today, when Ford, veteran full back, was shifted to end, and Harmon and Wycks, substitute backs, were sent in to carry the ball for the 'Varsity. With Gerhardt at quarter and Oliphant at full back the soldiers' offensive looked strong today. Oliphant did all the punting for the 'Varsity.

Vidal, the South Dakotan, still favoring an injured leg, did light work. His most strenuous exercise consisted in drop kicking. Everything inside the thirty-five-yard line was seemingly easy for him. A scrimmage lasting twenty minutes was productive of one score, but the make-up of the elevens saw only few of the headliners in action. The 'Varsity had a long defensive drill on some new formations, which may or may not have had any significance with reference to the Washington and Lee style of attack. It is certain that the Army expects a hard game Saturday, when W. and L. come here for the first of their intersectional contests. Redfield is still on crutches and will be unable to get in the gam Saturday.

BUZZ LAW DRILLS TIGERS.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 4.—Buzz Law, Captain of last year's baseball team at Princeton and member of the 'Varsity football team, arrived here today to assist Head Coach Rush in drilling the Tiger squad. It is not yet known whether Law will remain with the 'Varsity squad or will be assigned to coach the freshman team. Cruishank, the former Washington and Jefferson star, who is now in the Princeton Theological Seminary, has been coaching the entering men so far, but it is possible that he will be shifted over to the 'Varsity squad to take care of the men in the centre of the line.

The regulars did not have any scrimmage in this afternoon's practice. Hard work was just as much in order, however, as it has been in all the practices this week. There was a long drill in practicing the new Princeton forward pass with both Haren and Driggs on the throwing end.

Rush is spending a great deal of time on his offensive game, but the defensive play is not suffering as a result. Bullin, All-American tackle two years ago, is coaching the linemen on the defensive game, while the ends and backfield men are drilled on the covering and the handling of punts. The work in this department has been especially good. Haren and Freck, two candidates for backfield positions, are being drilled by the coaches in placement and drop kicks in addition to Tibbott, who has been showing deadly accuracy in his attempts. Haren put over six straights from scrimmage formation today, while Freck made several nice placement kicks.

Several of the regulars were kept out of the workout this afternoon by slight injuries. The hurts are not serious, however, and will probably not keep any of them out of Saturday's game.

SCRIMMAGE FOR VIRGINIA.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 4.—Virginia's final scrimmage before the Yale game revealed both good and bad football. Several of the regulars retired early in the fight for fear of injury and after that the freshman team ran up a total of 12 points. Deckert scoring a touchdown and Lecand two field goals. Three touchdowns were registered by the 'Varsity on straight football, and Carrigan landed a field goal.

White, who put up a clever game at end against Yale two years ago, has been switched from quarter to his old position. He has been replaced by Carrington, Berkerley's understudy last season. In the absence of Thurman, last year's star punter, the brunt of the punting Saturday will fall on Carrington. In today's scrimmage the youngster landed a field goal from the 35-yard line at a difficult angle.

Head Coach Evans has spent most of his time this week in an effort to strengthen the defense and has met with some measure of success. The coaching squad was augmented today by the arrival of Dr. Burnley Lankford and Billy Word, Thurman, who secured his release from the French Army and sailed last Wednesday for this country, is due to reach New York tomorrow. He may arrive here in time to accompany the squad to New Haven.

PITT FRESHIES SHOW FIGHT.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Oct. 4.—The University of Pittsburgh football squad was put through a strenuous drill today by Coach Warner, who is not allowing anything to stand in the way of getting the men down to best weight and efficiency, notwithstanding the fact that the Westminister game is not regarded as dangerous. The practice today was marked by the unexpected battle put up by the Freshman team against the 'Varsity.

The former is getting ready for its annual tussle with the East Liberty Academy team, on Saturday, and it smashed the line of the regulars this afternoon in a surprising manner.

A slight change in the officials of the opening game Saturday was announced today. Originally they were Ewing, Rafferty of Princeton, Cadigan of Syracuse, and Morrow of Washington and Jefferson, but owing to the fact that Rafferty is serving as Lieutenant of his regiment at El Paso, the board announced today that Knox of Yale will serve as field judge. Cadigan taking Rafferty's place as referee. Morrow will be umpire.

HAUGHTON VIEWS HARVARD PRACTICE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 4.—Percy Haughton, Harvard's head football coach, made his first visit to Soldiers' Field this Fall today, and although he did no coaching, was an interested spectator. He will not start coaching for another week, but intends to keep closely in touch with the developments of the eleven from now on. In addition to Haughton, Bertram G. Waters, Captain of the 1898 team, who was once a head coach, but who has not worked with the line for years, was out showing the guard and tackles some old school football. He will get right into the team if any one can.

The scrimmage today was a hard one, but several of the regulars were held on the side lines. Captain Dadmun, Harte, Harris, Flower, and Caner did not play, five substitutes, Snow, Lovell, Thorndike, Wheeler, and Phinney, being on the rush line. Moseley Taylor was out in playing clothes, but did not participate in the scrimmage, while both Batchelder and Davis, two of the crippled tackles, were also on the field. They will be ready for hard work the first of the week.

The play today was hard enough, but did not compare with yesterday's drive. The 'Varsity scored twice, making some long advances, and at the end Bond and Burnham scored touchdowns. The scrubs scored twice. Ginn kicked a short field goal, and a touchdown was made by Ellison, but the second team in each case was given the ball on the 'Varsity 20-yard line for a start. Late in the afternoon Ellison made a 50-yard run back of a kick, and then the scrubs drove through the first team's line to the goal. Their last play crossed the line, according to the players, but the manager referee stood by the 'Varsity and would not allow the score.

GREEN HAS HARD WORKOUT.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 4.—After two days of light work the Dartmouth squad was put through a long scrimmage today. For forty minutes the first and second teams battled fiercely, and when Coach Cavanaugh sent the men to the locker rooms the score stood: 'Varsity, 14; second team, 7.

On a lateral pass play Gerrish ran thirty yards for the first touchdown scored by the 'Varsity. This only seemed to infuse new fight into the second team, and in a series of brilliant rushes by the second team's back field the ball was carried to the 'Varsity forty-yard line. Here Youngstrom, centre on the second team, recovered a punt and ran for a touchdown. Thielscher got the final touchdown for the first team on a plunge through tackle.

Several men who have been playing substitute roles showed by their work today that they are destined for first-team positions. Coggswell, at end, tackled with more force than has been seen on the Dartmouth field since the days of Bobby Hogsett. Several times he went down under punts with amazing speed, dodged the interfering half backs cleverly, and got his man before he had a chance to advance the ball a yard. Youngstrom, substitute centre, opened up holes through the 'Varsity at will, and on the defense broke up play after play before it hit the line of scrimmage.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 4.—For the first time since the Cornell 'Varsity reported for work, last week, Dr. Sharpe today ordered a rest. The order came as a result of the hard scrimmage between the scrubs and the 'Varsity yesterday, in which several regulars received minor bruises. Shiverick is nursing a swollen eye today, and Ryerson is limping slightly.

Dr. Sharpe announced tonight that from now on the hardening process and endurance tests would be under way. The team has had the hardest first week of practice that a Red and White eleven has ever experienced.

Two ends showed up today in Ellenberger and Galbraith, and Vanorman thinks he has two likely candidates for wings in them.

Charley Barrett, the all-American quarter last year, will not play professional ball in Cleveland this Fall, as announced in the West, but, according to Manager Lally will come back to Ithaca next week to resume studies in the university and aid the coaches in developing the 'Varsity backfield.

TAG PLAY FOR LAFAYETTE.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Penn., Oct. 4.—The practice on March Field for the Lafayette squad this afternoon became a game of tag. There was a scrimmage, but instead of tackling, the various players tagged the men from whom they were responsible in each play. The scrub team was in Scranton, and accordingly the size of the squad was considerably reduced.

Weldon and Pardee, the members of the team who joined it after the preliminary season, are now in the best of physical condition. Lehman, a Princeton Prep player who entered the college this year, is looking better every day as a lineman. He is particularly strong in the defensive plays, which Coach Crowell has emphasized all week.

SWEDEN HOLDS FAST TO HER NEUTRALITY

Dictated by National Considerations, Says Premier, and Will Be Maintained.

ASSAILS BRITISH BLACKLIST

He Bespeaks America's Aid in Resisting Its Operations, Which He Holds to be Unjust.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 4, (via London.)—"Sweden proclaimed her attitude of neutrality at the very outbreak of the war," said Premier Hammarksjold in an interview today. "All her actions since that time have borne out that proclamation, and all rumors or accusations that she has done or intends to do anything inconsistent with this attitude are due either to failure to comprehend her situation or to some less creditable reason. And whenever Sweden has taken any step displeasing one or other belligerent power her action has been dictated solely by considerations of the kingdom's own necessities and of its future welfare, and not by any partisan reasons. We hope sincerely that the belligerents will not make it impossible for us to maintain this attitude to the end."

The Prime Minister of Sweden, in the course of his interview, laid constant stress on his Government's desire to follow the policy of nonpartisanship thus far observed.

He referred to measures of the belligerent Powers, mentioned in the official communication issued on Sept. 22, after the conference of the Scandinavian Ministers at Christiania, saying:

"The blacklist is objectionable, not only because of its present operation, but because it will affect the future of the victims. We feel that it constitutes an unjust attempt to deprive certain of our citizens of heir rights, and we do not like to see any Swedish subject lose any of his rights as a citizen unless by judgment of the courts.

"We are glad to know that the United States has taken steps in this matter, and we have welcomed other steps by the American Government in defense of the rights of neutrals and for the upholding of the rules of international law. I may perhaps say that before our conference at Christiania we had striven to keep in touch with the United States in regard to action in this direction.

"The Christiania communiqué lays stress on the desirability of more extensive and, at the same time, more intensive collaboration of neutrals. We hope that the traditional politics of the United States will not prevent it, in the present exceptional circumstances from interesting itself in such collaboration.

"It is impossible that the greater part of the rest of the world should continue indefinitely in the present unnatural and chaotic condition without America suffering also.

"Restrictions which are felt in comparatively small measure by the great America may strike at our very vitals. We are convinced that in our situation the Americans, who appreciate as much as we do the independence of a country and the legal right of its citizens, would feel and act exactly as we do."

After remarking on the impossibility of Sweden's offering mediation and referring to America's steps to secure observance of the rules of international law, the Minister said:

"America is in the fortunate position that she is the greatest of all neutrals, far removed from the strife, and with great resources. She really does not need to be greatly concerned about whether this or that step does make her unpopular with the one or the other belligerent."

ROOKIES CONTINUE RETREAT

Reach Cadyville on the March Back to Plattsburg.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Oct. 4, (by Courier from Cadyville.)—Leaving a small rear guard and a concealed motor truck on Lyon Mountain, a few miles south of the scene of yesterday's battle at Ledgers Corners, the Tenth Training Regiment, supported by the cavalry, constituting the Blue Army, retreated further southeast to Cadyville, where it took up a defensive position at a pulp mill behind a barrier thirty feet high.

The Blues made a stand at Ledgers Corners, but when it was seen that the enemy had received large reinforcements during the night, the main body of the Blues descended the mountain on the Dannemora side, passing through that township and on to Cadyville.

A courier on a motor cycle was then rushed back to the Dannemora Mountain with instructions for the rear guard to make its escape over highways by motor truck. The scout returning ahead of the guard said that he found it engaged with the enemy from the trench, but that all managed to get aboard the motor truck and escape. They reached the camp a short time afterward.

The actual assessed valuation of New York City's realty, including the realty held in corporations, as given out by the Tax Department this week is $7,833,875,536. This includes the five boroughs, all of which show an increase over their assessed values for 1916 with the exception of Manhattan, where the total decline in real estate values for twelve months is $47,253,725.

A study of the table prepared by President Lawson N. Purdy of the Tax Department shows that the actual real estate decrease in Manhattan for the year was $122,072,820. Set off against this is an increase due to new building construction of $43,926,800, and in addition the real estate taxed in the holdings of corporations has been enhanced $7,798,695. These two elements of increasing values have brought the total Manhattan realty decrease down to a little under $50,000,000. The increase for new buildings represented the construction of 284 structures.

The following table shows at a glance the assessed realty values for 1916, the increase or decrease for 1917, and the total realty valuation of the city as prepared for taxation assessment in 1917.

It will be seen that Brooklyn furnishes the largest increase of any borough, a total of over $48,000,000. The greatest proportion of increase is along the lines of the new rapid transit development. The Eastern Parkway district shows an increase of nearly $5,000,000, of which about $4,000,000 is for new buildings. The Bay Ridge and Prospect Park sections show increases of about $4,000,000 each. The rapid transit development in Queens is responsible for the great advance in values in that borough.

"While the old sections of New York, below Fourteenth Street, may never come back to their high values of a few years ago," said Commissioner Purdy yesterday, "the new zoning and building restriction act is bound to stabilize values in the districts where the greatest changes have taken place. We are hardly likely to see such radical decreases in the future, and as the uptown apartment house sections build up, values for Manhattan Island will soon show an upward tendency. Within a few years the realty value of the entire borough will not only equal, but exceed its highest figures of the past."

23 NEW PARALYSIS CASES.

Total for Day Nearly Double that of Tuesday—Seven Deaths.

Although the infantile paralysis epidemic has been declared officially ended in New York so far as both city and Federal health authorities are concerned, the number of new cases reported yesterday jumped to nearly double Tuesday's total. There were twenty-three cases yesterday, as compared with twelve on the day before. Seven deaths were reported.

By boroughs new cases and deaths occurred as follows:

Manhattan, new cases, 10; deaths, 4; Brooklyn, new cases, 4; deaths, 1; Bronx, new cases, 6; deaths, 1, and Queens, new cases, 3; deaths, 1.

All Federal physicians engaged on the interstate travel inspection here reported yesterday to the Chief Surgeon, Dr. Charles E. Banks, and were assigned to their regular stations. normal supply, or more. When their records had been examined they found that they had received only 31 to 88 per cent. of their normal supply for the day. Other large companies reported about 60 per cent. of normal receipts.

The rumor that the Borden Company was trying to reach a separate agreement was put up to Commissioner Dillon, who first said he "did not care to comment on it at present, but might have something to say on it tomorrow," and finally acknowledged:

"Well, I will say that I had a brief talk with one of the Borden people in reference to the subject today."

Hears Law Is Violated.

Attorney General Woodbury arrived from Albany in the morning, attended the Mayor's conferences, held a conference of his own late in the evening with representatives of the Dairymen's League, and got Supreme Court Justice Nathan Bijur to appoint a referee to begin hearings on the subject in this city at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. Justice Bijur named ex-Judge William M. Dykman to conduct the investigation.

The Attorney General's inquiry will devote itself largely to an attempt to discover whether or not the so-called Donnelly Anti-Trust act has been violated either by the producers or by the distributers. Prosecutions may result from ex-Judge Dykman's findings, but men concerned in getting more milk into the city felt yesterday that it was hard to see how the inquiry could advance this purpose.

Meanwhile the milk shortage was felt here more acutely. Practically the shortage had been confined chiefly to the suburbs. Yesterday, however, standing orders of families with children were cut, and grocery store and delicatessen shops failed to receive any supply at all, and the prospect was that there would be greater cuts in the supply today.

WOODBURY EXPLAINS INQUIRY.

He Acted on Complaints Charging Monopoly Act Violations.

Attorney General Woodbury issued a statement after he had ordered investigating the milk situation yesterday, in which he outlined the purpose of his investigation. In it he said that complaints had reached him charging the Dairymen's League with violation of the Donnelly Anti-Monopoly act, and that countercharges had been made by the League members charging the distributers with violating the same act.

"In view of the serious results which might attend an increasing shortage in the milk supply in New York, and the vital necessity of preventing such a condition," the statement read in part, "the Attorney General is undertaking an investigation of the charges and countercharges thus made. The purpose of this inquiry is to determine, fairly and impartially, how far there may have been unlawful combinations in restraint of trade for controlling the price of this important necessary of life.

"To expedite his proceeding the Attorney General made an application to Judge Bijur for the appointment of a referee before whom the investigation is to be conducted. Judge Bijur has today appointed William N. Dykman as such referee. The order of reference will be promptly served upon the parties involved, and will be returnable on Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the New York City office of the Attorney General, 200 Broadway.

"The Attorney General has designated his first deputy, Merton E. Lewis, to conduct the examination of witnesses."

Mr. Dykman is a Brooklyn lawyer, the partner of former Chief Justice Cullen, and was a member of last year's Constitutional Convention. Mr. Lewis attended the conference and afterward called attention to the fact that "only two parties seem to have been represented at the conferences held thus far. It seems to me that, apparently, nobody has given much thought to the interests of the third party to the controversy, and the price at which milk is to be sold to the consumer. I take it that it is the duty of the Attorney General to see that the public is not required to pay prices that are not justified by the cost of production and distribution."

Attorney General Woodbury said that the complaints that had reached him had included one that State Commissioner Dillon had exceeded his authority in leading one faction of the present fight, but that he had not yet had an opportunity to form any opinion on this subject.

DEFENDS FARMERS' BOYCOTT.

R. D. Cooper Cites Government Records to Support Higher Prices.

The position of the dairy farmers who have united to increase their receipts from milk was set forth for THE TIMES last night by R. D. Cooper, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Dairymen's League, and who is head of a dairy company in Little Falls.

"Agents of the Department of Agriculture in Washington have made a thorough investigation of the cost of producing milk that will meet with the Health Department requirements in New York," said he. "The statistics that they compiled show that it costs 4.6 cents a quart on the average to produce this milk. At present the Borden Company, for example, is paying the farmer approximately 4.5 cents a quart. The statement issued by this company some weeks ago said that the average payment a quart to the farmer the year round was 3.69 cents. The rates, of course, vary according to the season.

"The rapid increase in the price of feed for cattle, the extraordinary expenses incurred in building new and modern barns, and in other ways meeting the sane but nevertheless expensive requirements of the New York Health Department, and particularly the greatly increased wages that it has been necessary to pay for farm labor during the last year, have depleted our resources. There are other factors entering into the increased cost of producing good milk. They include the increased cost of machinery, or horses (on account of the war demand) to draw the wagons, of equipment generally.

"Farm Bureau records show that one farmer in this section, for instance, has been losing on the average of $21 a cow in his herd each year. The farmer now receives between 9 and 10 cents an hour for his work, and he must get up at 3:30 o'clock to meet the morning milk trains, and he must work fifteen hours a day.

"The consequence of these conditions is that it is impossible for the dairy farmer to last in the vicinity of New York under the present conditions. This condition is already producing serious results. The Agriculture Department's records show a decrease of nearly 4,000 cows a year in New York State alone at the present time. The population of the cities and the demand for milk are increasing rapidly; the supply is decreasing.

"The prices that the Dairymen's League, which is a legal corporation under the laws of New Jersey and comprising about 17,000 farmer stockholders, is asking for its product at present is hardly sufficient to cover the cost of milk production.

"There is one more point that we should like to bring before the public. It is that the farmers have no spirit or desire to 'starve' infants and invalids while trying to get more money for their output. We are prepared today to supply any hospitals in New York that may find themselves without milk."

SEES LOSS TO DISTRIBUTERS.

President R. E. Van Cise, of the Mutual-McDermott Dairy Corporation, one of the three big milk distributing companies of this city, explained last night the reasons for the position the distributers are taking in the present fight. "The distributers can make only meagre profits under present conditions," Mr. Van Cise said, "and some have declared no dividends for two years."

"We would welcome an impartial investigation of the whole situation," he said. "The Wickes food price investigation committee, which is now holding hearings among food producers upState, held one hearing in New York City some time ago and, I understand, is to renew its hearings hereabout the middle of October. Its accountants are now going over our books to ascertain whether we are making excessive profits out of our business of handling milk for the public.

"We would be willing to wait for this committee, or to accept any other committee that might be appointed by any of the authorities, but we do want an investigation by somebody before an effort to make a final settlement is reached."

Mr. Van Cise said that one of the principal distributing companies had figured the cost of its milk, and had found that the heaviest expense was that of city delivery, and that the profit left for the distributer was a quarter of a cent a quart.

LEAGUE TIGHTENS BOYCOTT.

Arrests Are Made and Feuds Develop Out of Milk Situation.

Dispatches from correspondents of THE NEW YORK TIMES in the principal milk-producing communities of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut indicated last night that the Dairymen's League was putting forth every effort to tighten its grip on the sources of supply, and that milk shipments to this city were still being reduced. In some rural communities the milk fight assumed a serious aspect. More pickets were reported at stations, and in a number of places deputy sheriffs were called on to protect shippers. In other places the fight has become such a serious thing with the farmers that family feuds have developed.

New Jersey towns in the vicinity of New York reported serious milk shortages yesterday. Below are some of the reports received last night from the milk-producing districts.

POUGHKEEPSIE—Sheriff Conklin and deputies guarded the Harlem Valley to prevent repetitions of disturbances growing out of the milk war. At Coleman's station they found 125 pickets, and a larger number at Pawling, where serious riots had been reported previously. Two spring houses of "neutral" farmers were raided last night and the milk dumped on the ground. Irving P. Waite, who was beaten on Monday by pickets and later appeared in court against them, was one of last night's victims.

NORWICH, N. Y.—Because Charles Banks is a member of the Dairymen's League, Superintendent Brown of the Borden factory at New Berlin told the employes who boarded with Banks that unless they changed their boarding place they could not return to work. The men changed.

MIDDLETOWN.—To insure the delivery today of a milk car containing six cans of milk consigned to New York, four Deputy Sheriffs guarded the car on the electric road between here and Goshen.

OSWEGO—Reports that agents of New York milk companies were endeavoring to secure individual contracts with farmers led to calling meetings of branches of the Dairymen's League at several points in Oswego County, at which resolutions pledging members to sign only through the Dairymen's League were adopted.

BINGHAMTON—Word was received by New Milford milk shippers from the Dairymen's League last evening that the New Jersey Milk and Cream Company of Newark had agreed to capitulate to the league. Milk houses near here were broken into during the night and the milk was destroyed.

MT. VERNON, N. Y.—Because striking dairymen held up drivers for the Willowbrook Dairy at Somers and dumped their milk in the highway today Manager Smith asked Sheriff Wiesendanger for protection. Night riders held up Manager Smith and tried to prevent him driving his automobile on his dairy farm.

NEWTON, N. J.—There was a slight increase in shipments of milk from Sussex County to small dealers outside New York. Twelve farmers from Layton were arrested by Sheriff Wilson for dumping thirty-five cans of milk out of a wagon. They were released on bail.

BRONX BUILDERS INDICTED.

The August Grand Jury in the Bronx, after five weeks' deliberation, yesterday handed to Supreme Court Justice Giegerich eight indictments growing out of the collapse on Aug. 23 of a building at Marion Avenue and 188th Street, in which two men were killed and sixteen seriously hurt. Five of the indictments are for manslaughter in the second degree, the other three for public neglect of duty.

Jacob Polstein, 26 years old, of 7 East 108th Street, and Alexander Loewy, 27 years old, of 486 Riverside Drive, who are under $10,000 bail each, having been held by a Coroner's Jury, were two of the three indicted for manslaughter in the second degree. Polstein and Loewy are partners and were constructing the building. Joseph Dunne, 39 years old, of 2,656 Decatur Avenue, Inspector of Masonry and Construction for the Bronx Building Department, is indicted for neglect of duty.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Giuseppe Creatore and his band will give a concert at the Hippodrome Sunday night, Oct. 29, and immediately after the concert will start on a tour that will take them across the continent and to Hawaii and Japan. Sunday concerts will be inaugurated as a regular feature this month.

One of the great disappointments of William Collier's life is that he cannot attend the opening game of the world's series Saturday. Since he cannot be present he has arranged to have a telegraph instrument installed in his dressing room at the Longacre and an operator will keep him posted on every play. Between the acts of "Nothing But the Truth" the comedian will announce the progress of the game to the audience.

Schuyler Ladd, who created the role of the Daffodil when "The Yellow Jacket" was first acted at the Fulton four years ago, has been engaged by the Coburns to appear in the part when the play is revived for a series of special performances at the Cort next month.

Belle Ashlyn will make her first appearance in a French speaking role in "La Folie" at the Garrick next Monday night. Miss Ashlyn recently returned from London and Paris after playing a season in the former city.

The first American performance of Feder von Zobeltitz's comedy, "Will und Wiebke," will be given tonight at the Bandbox. Heinrich Marlow will make his first appearance of the season in the comedy.

During the time the Lyric is closed after the departure of "The Flame" and before the coming of the Annette Kellerman picture, "A Daughter of the Gods," some revel changes in the interior will be made to create atmosphere for the film.

The first performance of George Broadhurst's play, "Rich Man, Poor Man," postponed from last week, will be given tonight at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre.

A new fourth act has been written for "Backfire" and substituted for the original one seen when the melodrama was produced at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre Monday night.

"The Show of Wonders" is the title selected for the new Winter Garden revue. It will be produced Monday night, Oct. 16, in New Haven and after two or three weeks out of town will succeed the current show at the Winter Garden.

Anna Held's new show, "Follow Me," will have its premiere in Philadelphia Oct. 25.

SON-IN-LAW FIGHTS WITH CHAS. F. DALY

ENCOUNTER AT TERMINAL

Willard R. Barnet got a new hat, and his father-in-law, Charles F. Daly, Vice President of the New York Central Railroad, got a summons in a suit for $25,000 damages for alleged assault and battery, because of a fight in the Grand Central Station yesterday morning when Barnet demanded that his wife, from whom he is separated, tell him the whereabouts of their young son. Mr. Daly then forcibly terminated the conversation.

Mr. Daly already is defendant in a $500,000 suit brought by Mr. Barnet, who charges that his father-in-law alienated the young woman's affections.

Mr. Daly characterized the whole affair at the Hotel Gramatan, in Bronxville, last night, as "a silly story," but Mr. Barnet, at the Hotel Biltmore, exhibited the new hat which he said he was forced to buy because of a blow from his father-in-law's fist, and talked freely about the case.

Barnet, with a suitcase in his hand and an overcoat over his arm, stood in the lower concourse at the Grand Central terminal, according to his story, and saw his father-in-law coming from a Bronxville train with his daughter, Mrs. Barnet. The son-in-law, who was Assistant General Passenger Agent of the road before he and his father-in-law disagreed, hadn't seen his little son, Charles Daly Barnet, since last July. A Supreme Court Justice at that time awarded to Mrs. Daly Barnet the custody of the child, but directed that the father be allowed to see it.

Barnet, according to his story, asked his wife where their son was. She did not answer, Barnet said, then Mr. Daly struck him on the side of the head.

Mr. Daly is 54 years old and his son-in-law is young and athletic. In the subsequent struggle, it is said, Mr. Daly fell to the floor.

Mrs. Barnet screamed, and attendants and railroad police separated the fighters. Some lifted Mr. Daly to his feet and others seized Barnet. It took the son-in-law a few minutes to extricate himself, and by then his wife and her father had disappeared.

TIRRELL GETS MORE PAY.

After an executive meeting of the Board of Estimate yesterday Mayor Mitchel announced that it had been decided to abolish the Bureau of Standards, and to create in its place what will be known as the Bureau of Personal Service, with George L. Tirrell in charge, with a salary of $7,500 a year.

When the Bureau of Standards was created there was also created a Bureau of Contract Supervision, of which Tilden Adamson was made Director, at a salary of $6,000. According to the Mayor's announcement, Mr. Adamson's salary will be raised to $7,500.

Both Mr. Tirrell and Mr. Adamson standardized the salaries and wages of city employes, and both made application to the Aldermen two years ago to have their salaries raised to $7,500. This request gave rise to a controversy, and the Aldermen refused to grant the increase.

Notice to Creditors of The Missouri Pacific Railway Company:

The following order extending time of creditors to file claims against The Missouri Pacific Railway Company with Special Master Honorable George C. Hitchcock, Room 811, New National Bank of Commerce Building, 415 Pine Street, St. Louis, Missouri, was entered September 30, 1916, by Honorable William C. Hook, United States Circuit Judge for the Eastern Division, Eastern District of Missouri, in the receivership proceedings against The Missouri Pacific Railway Company:

"ORDER

Referring to the order of this Court heretofore made and entered in this cause on July 1, 1916, entitled "Order referring claims of creditors to Special Master and fixing time for filing claims," and to the order of this Court dated August 28, 1916, and entered in this Court on August 29, 1916, entitled, "Order extending time to file claims to October 1, 1916," for cause shown it is hereby Ordered that the time for filing claims pursuant to said orders be and it hereby is extended to November 15, 1916, and that those having claims against the defendant The Missouri Pacific Railway Company, may file statements thereof in the manner prescribed in said orders, with the Honorable George C. NEW TEA TEST A SUCCESS.

Attempted Imports of Colored Teas Reduced to .0197 of 1 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The success that has followed the establishment of the test for teas on import and the prohibition of all colored, or "faced," teas is expressed by the fraction 197 tenthousandths of 1 per cent. Or, according to the report of the Federal supervising tea examiner, George F. Mitchell, made public today, only 2,163 pounds of colored tea was held up at the customs houses out of a total of 109,536,526 pounds examined for entry. There were rejections to the amount of 1,768,573 pounds because of being below standard as to cleanliness or because of being below quality.

The thoroughness with which the order against "faced," or colored, teas, coming into the country is obeyed by shippers is attested by the supervising tea examiner, who says:

"During the last fiscal year only three shipments, comprising 2,163 pounds of tea containing artificial coloring matter, were offered for admission. Only one of these shipments came direct from the country of production. The amount of coloring matter in this shipment was so small as to give room for a difference of opinion as to whether it should be admitted or rejected. It was admitted upon appeal to the United States Board of Tea Appeals.

"The regulations and standards prohibiting the importation of teas containing artificial coloring matter were put into effect May 1, 1912, and their proper enforcement has reduced the offering of such teas to the exceedingly small quantity above stated. This speedy and much-desired reform has been made possible by the 'Read test,' which, because of its simplicity and inexpensiveness as well as effectiveness, can be used by the buyers of tea when making purchases in foreign countries, as well as by the Government examiners when the teas are offered for importation."

SPECULATION IN WOOL.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"Sales of wool last week totaled 10,000,000 pounds. There were more buyers than sellers and more or less speculative buying on the part of the dealers who are anticipating higher prices. Territory wools predominated in the sales, and delains were also in demand. There was some business in crossbreds.

"Interest in the lightweight season of woolen and worsted goods has declined, largely due to the between-seasons period. The sellers of fancy worsted are not worrying about cancellations. Poplins and serges have been in good demand. The export trade is having an influence in the women's wear market.

"The cotton goods market is considered one of the most remarkable in the history of the industry. Sales are probably somewhat larger than the production, but what makes the situation remarkable is the demand for the goods, the radical advances in prices, and the prospect that present conditions will continue and be even more acute than they have been up to the present time."

MORGAN LABORER HAS AUTO.

Speeds in It and Goes to Jail Rather Than Pay a $25 Fine.

Angelo Lofresse, who said he was a laborer on the Long Island country estate of J. P. Morgan at Glen Cove, was charged yesterday with driving his automobile at excessive speed through Richmond Hill.

"Do all employes of Mr. Morgan own automobiles?" inquired Magistrate James J. Conway, before whom Lofresse was arraigned in the Jamaica court.

"Oh, yes, every man has his own car," said the laborer airily.

Spectators in the courtroom listened with interest and some commenced to figure out the railroad fare to Glen Cove. But then they heard Lofresse fined $25, with an alternative of two days in jail, and their dreams were shattered, for

"I'll take the two days in jail," said Lofresse.

New Yorker Who Died at Sea Had Wealth on Deposit Here.

Edward Brewis of 443 West Twenty-third Street, who died at sea on the steamship St. Paul on Aug. 17 last, owned securities worth more than $300,000, which were held for him by the New York branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. This was disclosed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday, when Public Administrator Hoes, appointed to take charge of the estate, summoned the bank to show cause why the securities should not be turned over to him.

In reply the bank submitted a letter received from London solicitors saying that Mr. Brewis left a will and th t proceedings to have it probated would be taken in England. The decedent has two sons in the English Army and a daughter in New South Wales. The Surrogate reserved decision.

Howard Gardiner Cushing, portrait painter, who died of heart disease on April 26, left an estate appraised yesterday at $257,945, all of which went to his wife, who was Miss Ethel Cochrane of Boston. The bulk of the estate consisted of securities worth $207,357. The decedent owned his home at 121 East Seventieth Street, but his wife had an interest of $29,000 in the property.

The contents of Mr. Cushing's studio in the Beaux Arts Building were appraised at $2,273. The contents of his home were valued at $6,000. The most valuable art objects were a pair of Chinese lacquer bird-in-cages worth $800, and a pair of antique wooden columns valued at $150.

GRAVEUR'S ESTATE $5,000.

Father Fails to Find Will in Search of Safe Deposit Vault.

An application for letters of administration on the estate of Joseph C. Graveur, the garage proprietor who was shot and killed in the Hotel Walton in Philadelphia on Sept. 27, was made in the Surrogate's Court yesterday by his father, Charles Graveur. Search of the decedent's safe deposit vaults in the 116th Street branch of the Colonial Bank for a will proved fruitless. The petitioner said his son left $5,000 in personal property and no real estate.

Tan Shades Not to be Found.

From various sources in the hosiery trade it would seem as if tan shades were almost impossible to obtain. One of the leading makers of branded merchandise is understood to have its agents scouring the market to obtain hosiery of this color, which they desire to put out under their own brand. The explanation given is that the domestic dye makers have specialized on only a few of the colors desired and tan does not happen to be among them.

Trading Down Now Advocated.

Although the policy of "trading down," as it is known, received for a long time severe criticism from the woolen trade, there are some in the dress goods trade who have changed their minds on the subject. They see, in the high prices that are being asked for merchandise, a possible restriction of demand from consumers not able or willing to pay the advances. One mill agent, talking on the subject, said that the buyers who purchased high priced merchandise lavishly may find it hard sailing to dispose of their stocks.

Making a Bad Reputation.

A selling agent for a number of hosiery brands says he cautions every exporter with whom he does business to open up packing cases and inspect goods before shipment. He advises this course because the mills in general do not seem to care what they send to the exporting trade. To use his words, "they pack up anything and send the worst kind of stuff to the other side." He has tried, he said, to bring home to the hosiery manufacturers just what they stand to lose by thus imposing upon the new found customers in Europe, but to little avail.

Clothing Salesmen Now Out.

Clothing salesmen who have far western and southern territories to cover have now left for their districts. Other men who have closer parts of the country to visit will leave shortly. No reports are yet available from those who have left. The manufacturers are perhaps more interested in the results to be obtained for the Spring season than in any past period. So many changes have been necessary, they say, on account of the rising prices of raw materials that it is hard to predict just how the salesman will come out.

Dress Goods Fairly Active.

There is a fair amount of activity in the dress goods trade, although it is mostly confined to goods that are wanted for this season's needs. The cutting up trade seemingly does not want to order in samples for the Spring. The reason given for this is that they are afraid some decline may come in prices. Such a contingency is scoffed at by the mill agents who look for nothing but continued advances. The coating end of dress goods has yielded more than fair results, and on account of this sellers have rather given up hope of improvement in the suit branch.

Many Advances on Chemicals.

An upward trend of prices throughout the past week, due to various factors, says Drug and Chemical Markets, resulted in some sensational gains in values covering numerous drugs and chemicals, the total far outnumbering the declines. Conspicuous rises in value occurred on octephenetidin, influenced by a more pronounced scarcity of stocks due to smaller output, and holders are asking $2 a pound above recent prices paid. Shortages of supplies of mercury forced up values $3 a flask of 75 pounds, leading selling agents to demand $77. A larger export and domestic demand led to rise of 5 cents a gallon on denatured and wood alcohol.

Duties Raised on Rosaries.

The troublesome question of the proper classification of rosaries, in chief value of beads, has brought out another ruling by the Treasury Department. Collector Malone recently proposed to the department a change in the return of these goods, and Assistant Secretary Peters in a letter received by the Collector stated that the department acquiesced in the new classification. It was decided that, thirty days from date, duty should be levied on the articles at the rate of 50 per cent. under Paragraph 333. The practice up to this time had been to classify the goods according to the component of chief value. The effect of the ruling is to raise the rate on many classes of rosaries.

Drawbacks on Hat Materials.

With the advent of larger markets abroad for American-made men's and women's straw hats have come increasing demands by domestic manufacturers for drawbacks. The Treasury Department has granted many of the applications, although the special agents investigating at the factories found that the materials entering into the makeup of the finished hats required considerable analytical study in order to determine the proper amounts of drawback due on each imported element used. In granting the allowance the department specified that it should not exceed the quantity of imported material used in the manufacture of the exported hats as shown by the abstract from the manufacturing record.

Color Card Out Soon.

The Spring color card of the Textile Color Card Association of the United States, Inc., 354 Fourth Avenue, will be issued on Saturday. It will contain twenty-one colors which the members of the committee representing the textile trades generally think will be most popular for the Spring. In addition to the new colors, there will be six or eight colors duplicated that have appeared in the former card. The colors featured will be new gray, tan, buff, and citrus. The pastel shades will be continued. All the colors that lead off the new card are said to be adaptable to the woolen trade. The card to be brought out will be the style card and not the standard card which contains merely the staple colors. The advance orders taken are reported to be considerably in excess of those on any previous issue.

Big Day for Gray Goods.

Buyers in the local gray goods market seem to be of the opinion that the sooner they can get orders in at the present quotations, even though they are high, the better. Consequently yesterday was a big day for the trade, and the volume of business reached high figures. Under the impetus of heavy buying practically all constructions advanced. Sales were made of 38½-inch 64-60s at 7⅛ cents and of 39-inch 56-44s at 5¾ cents. There were also transactions on 38½-inch 80-52s at 6 5-16 cents and 80-48s, 38½-inch, at 6 cents. The asking price on the latter construction was raised for the coming week, but business also fell to the lot of sheetings, and prices were shoved up generally a quarter of a cent. Closing prices were as follows:

39-inch, 68-72s...8c|38½-inch, 60-52s...6⅜c

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4.—The Western Maryland Railway Company today placed an order for 2,000 steel hopper cars with the Pullman Company. The new equipment will require an expenditure of approximately $5,000,000. The present order makes 5,000 new steel hoppers which the Western Maryland has purchased within the last eight months. The increasing coal tonnage of the Western Maryland made necessary the purchase of additional equipment.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Two years later, for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1916, Canada's toys imports were valued at $662,190, of which the United States furnished $476,881 worth, an increase both proportionately and actually.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Tally Registers and Weasands Among Articles Classified.

So-called tally registers imported by Oelschlaeger Brothers and Suesfeld, Lorsch & Co., were held yesterday by the Board of General Appraisers not to be "articles designed to be carried on the person." It was shown at the trial that the tally registers were used for recording the number of persons passing through a gate or similar place. Judge Sullivan reversed the Collector and sustained the claim for entry at 20 per cent. as manufactures of metal not specially provided for.

M. J. Hogan, Milwaukee, was sustained in the claim that artificial roofing slate was properly dutiable at 10 per cent. as a manufacture of asbestos or of which asbestos was the component material of chief value. The protest was originally heard in Chicago and was decided adversely to the importer on the ground that the testimony was not sufficient to overcome the presumption in favor of the correctness of the Collector's assessment. A rehearing was applied for and granted. Judge Hay said he thought it was established that asbestos in the slate or shingles predominated in value. The Collector was reversed in taking duty at 20 per cent as an earthy or mineral substance, wholly or partly manufactured.

Cowen, Heineberg & Co., San Francisco, invoiced goods as bamboo brooms which were assessed by the Collector at 35 per cent. as "brushes." The importers claimed 15 per cent. duty under the first part of the same paragraph specifying brooms. Judge Hay said that the case had been so unsatisfactorily tried that the board did not feel like reaching a definite conclusion as to the proper classification of the merchandise. The protest was accordingly overruled upon the presumption of law, without giving affirmative approval to the action of the Collector.

Merchandise described as "beef weasands," imported by Swift & Co. and others, was assessed by the Collector at Chicago at 10 per cent. under the provision for non-enumerated, unmanufactured articles. The protestants claimed free entry under Paragraph 419 reading "Bladders, and all integuments, tendons, and intestines of animal and fish sounds, crude, dried or salted for preservation only, and unmanufactured, not especially provided for in this section." The board sustained the protest on the ground that the merchandise fell within the specific provisions of the paragraph claimed. The other protestants besides Swift & Co. were W. White, Detroit; G. W. Sheldon & Co., and the Oppenheim Casing Company, Chicago.

The board decided that molded glass bottles containing lime juice, decorated with a design in the form of roses on vines, could not be regarded under the present tariff act as dutiable at 30 per cent. as "plain bottles suitable for use as containers of merchandise." The Collector was affirmed in taking 45 per cent. duty as glass bottles decorated in any manner. James P. Smith & Co were the protestants.

TELLS OF RAILROAD NEEDS.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 4.—Walker D. Hines, Chairman and General Counsel of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad Company, addressed the convention of the Investment Bankers' Association today on the "Needs and Opportunity of the Railroad Situation."

"The railroads need, and you need, and the public needs," he said in conclusion, "first, legislation which will provide an orderly and responsible method of settling railroad labor disputes as a substitute for the terrorism of the strike; second, legislation whereby State regulations reducing net income through reductions of rates and increase of costs will be superseded by national regulation, and third, legislation whereby the power to issue stocks and bonds will be derived from the nation, and the method of their issue will be supervised by the nation."

The convention at its morning session received the report of its Publicity Committee, which condemned the flamboyant advertising of "get-rich-quick" brokers and suggested, as a way to curb what the report termed "this type of promotion" that the American Newspaper Publishers' Association be notified of those who are doing this kind of advertising.

Latitude for Receivers.

An order permitting the receivers of the American Real Estate Company to organize a corporation with a nominal capital, with a view to acquiring property, either in foreclosure actions or otherwise, for the benefit of the creditors of the concern without the danger of being compelled to defend actions that might grow out of the acts of the receivers if they acted as individuals, was signed yesterday by Judge Hand in the Federal District Court.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

AMERICAN REAL ESTATE CO.—Judge Leonard Hand has authorized Walter C. Noyes and Alfred E. Marling, receivers of the American Real Estate Co., to organize a corporation, with capital stock of $500, to acquire title to real estate of the American Real Estate Co., whenever such action shall seem to the receivers due in the interest of the creditors, and for other purposes. It was stated that many mortgages which are about to mature will not be paid, and it may seem advisable to the receivers to acquire title by private sale in order to avoid the expense of foreclosure proceedings. The receivers did not desire to take title in their own names as receivers, and therefore suggested the corporation.

TALKING TOYS CORPORATION.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Talking Toys Corporation, manufacturer of phonographs and mechanical toys at 243 West Seventeenth Street, by these creditors: Kent Audit Co., $1,000; Gerry & Murray, $20, and William Rotter, $600. Judge Mayer appointed Alfred C. Coxe, Jr., receiver, under a bond of $5,000, on application of Geoghegan, Levin & Ball, who estimated the liabilities at $30,000 nominal assets in excess of that amount and actual assets $50,000. The company, it was stated, has $11,000 orders on hand which would require an issue of receiver's certificates of $7,500 to complete. The company was incorporated on Dec. 23, 1915, with capital stock of $350,000, to act as selling agent of the Talking Doll and Novelty Co.

TALKING DOLL AND NOVELTY CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Talking Doll and Novelty Co., manufacturer of dolls and novelties at 243 West Seventeenth Street, by these creditors: American Steel and Wire Co., $2,000; Hammacher, Schlemmer & Co., $182, and William C. Schwarz, $43. Judge Mayer appointed Alfred C. Coxe, receiver on application of Weil & Purvin, who estimated the liabilities at $40,000 and assets at $20,000. It was stated on information and belief that the company had recently transferred all its assets to the Talking Toys Corporation without consideration, to put them out of reach of creditors, and the place of business was closed.

EDWARD E. POHL of 230 East Seventy-ninth Street, formerly an importer of raw silk, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $48,884 and no assets. He has only two creditors, Paul Larsen, as assignee of August Fishel, $44,255, for money loaned at Vienna, Austria, in 1902; and Passaic Falls Throwing Company of Paterson, N. J., $4,600 for silk.

SUPERIOR JEWELRY COMPANY, INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Superior Jewelry Company, Inc., of 87 Nassau Street, by these creditors: Louis Lewitt, $278; Henry Goldblum, $25, and David Rothblum, $348. Liabilities are stated to be $10,000, and assets $1,000.

FISHGOLD BROTHERS.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Louis and Harry Fishgold, composing the firm of Fishgold Brothers, manufacturers of rompers and children's dresses at 128 Prince Street, by these creditors: Avon Mills Company, $534; Stahl & Cohn, $165, and Lewis Frank & Sons, $187. They made an assignment on June 30 to Frank Drucker, who has sold the assets for $875, subject to a chattel mortgage. Liabilities are about $2,000.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Railroad Issues Very Prominent —Reasons for Their Strength —Odd-Lot Buying.

On the first of this series of million-share days on the New York Stock Exchange, which began just a month ago, dealings in railroad stocks made up less than 11 per cent. of the total. Yesterday railroad shares contributed no less than 43 per cent. to the day's Stock Exchange business, which again exceeded a million shares.

The railroads were notable, not only for this activity, but also for the very decided strength which they displayed. There has been no sudden discovery of big railroad earnings, for railroad earnings have been big for months, and those who are distrustful and perhaps those who are merely very cautious will look upon the increased attention given to the railroad shares in recent days, and more particularly yesterday, as an indication of organized effort to keep the market active and strong in the face of large distributions for profit-taking purposes in other parts of the list. That might be granted without disproving either the prosperity of the railroads or the responsiveness of railroad shares to large scale buying.

Railroad prosperity is not a newly discovered phenomenon, but it is a phenomenon whose effectiveness as a market influence has been lately enlarged by the extraordinarily good monthly reports which have been coming to hand and which have supplemented encouragingly the annual statements which are now being issued by many of the country's important railway systems. Whatever the immediate motive of those whose operations are reflected in the enlarged activity in the railway group, the fact remains that they have made noteworthy progress and that despite the fact that throughout the past two years investors—for they were investors rather than speculators who bought the railroad shares—have been called upon to take back from Europe hundreds of millions of railroad securities which for many years had represented Europe's stake in the American transportation system.

In the face of this newly arrived supply of stock noteworthy advances in railway share prices could hardly occur were not the public itself confident of the future of railroad undertakings, notwithstanding the restrictions under which they are operated. This statement should perhaps be modified to the extent that in the present strength of the railway issues there is an element of politics in that some buyers are moved by the belief that the National election will change the political situation to the advantage of the country's transportation lines. That, however, seems to be far from being the controlling motive in the upbidding of railway stocks and in the spport which the public has extended to this upbidding, for the public has acquiesced in this movement by refraining from selling on any large scale, even if it has not actively participated in the movement.

New York Central was almost as active as Steel, and that was but one of a number of railroad stocks which were very active. The industrials did not lack representation among the day's substantial advances, but for the time being they have lost the prominence which was theirs for so long. Interesting inferences might be drawn from the technical aspects of this change in the direction of market effort but they would at best be inferences. Meanwhile, taking the market as a whole, the public seems to be buying many stocks. The odd-lot business continues large, and includes, according to report, a good deal of outright buying in small amounts by those who are investing rather than speculating, or who, if they are speculating, prefer to do so through temporary outright ownership rather than through operations on margin.

LONDON MARKET IMPROVES.

Dealers Now Believe That Recent Decline Was Overdone.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Money was in better supply and discount rates were quiet today.

The steadier close of the stock market yesterday developed into a general improvement today on the idea that the recent decline was overdone. The government supported gilt-edged securities and bargain hunters bought fairly freely. Consols showed the most improvement and home rails hardened without much business, but the sentiment was decidedly better. Speculative and industrial issues varied but little. Rio Tintos were in good demand following the declaration of an interim divident of forty shillings. American securities were quietly firm with Canadian Pacific and United States Steel the best leaders.

Prices Heavy on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Prices were heavy on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 61 francs 80 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 27 francs 31½ centimes. Five per cent. loan 90 francs.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Evidence that the railroads expect to see great pressure on the steel mills for many months to come is presented in contracts for rails calling for delivery as far ahead as the first quarter of 1918. It is learned that the Steel Corporation has sold in the last few days 50,000 tons of rails for 1918, although the contracts provide that if it is found possible to make deliveries late in 1917 the buyers will accept the rails as fast as they are sent from the mills. This situation, according to steel men, is not exceptional in times of great activity in the market, although the carriers do not make a practice of placing contracts more than a year ahead. In effect contracts of the sort bind the manufacturers to deliver rails as fast as they are able, inasmuch as the mills are "sold up" until well into the last quarter of next year.

The Curb Reorganization.

Curb market authorities say that the plan for reorganizing the outdoor market will be taken up again next week, after six months of delay. The proposal was made to the Curb Association members last Spring, but certain features had to be altered when opposition on the part of a number of Stock Exchange houses arose. The active market in recent weeks has worked to distract the attention of Curb members from the plan, but now the special committee appointed for the purpose is preparing to act. There is a committee of members of Stock Exchange firms also in existence to inquire into conditions on the Curb.

Metal Issues Mark Time.

The market this week has been marked by a breathing spell in the steel and copper stocks. The steel issues, including Steel common, have backed and filled without losing ground to an appreciable extent and also without gaining any. The coppers have been inclined to soften, with sufficient buying at all times to prevent more than fractional declines. If yesterday's business had found need to depend on the metal shares, there would have been a decided falling off from the conventional million share session. The railroads stepped into the breach when interest in the others lagged. There have been few other days this year in which the carriers had so prominent a part as yesterday.

Biggest Day in Bonds.

The turnover in bonds on the Stock Exchange yesterday, amounting to $6,678,500, was larger than for any day since the current series of big markets began. Of the total $5,396,500 were railroad and industrial issues, and the trading list was larger than in any preceding session of the bull movement. On other active days a large part of the bond totals has been supplied by foreign Government bonds. The fact that transactions in these was subordinated to trading in home issues indicated the increased interest of investors in the funded obligations of the carriers and industrial concerns.

Canadian Loan a Success.

The recent offering of $100,000,000 of Canadian bonds for war expenditures met with a popular response from investors, it was announced yesterday. Telegrams received in the financial district by houses interested in the bidding reported that subscriptions up to $25,000 would be allotted in full. Subscriptions for more than that amount are being allotted the first $25,000 asked for, and from 30 to 40 per cent. of the additional amounts subscribed for. There were a number of very large subscriptions, and the fact that these had to be cut down indicates that the demand was well in excess of the $100,000,000 offered.

A One-sided Loan.

The United States Legation at Bogota, Colombia, reports through official channels that a contract for a loan of $5,000,000 to the City of Bogota has been signed by the American International Corporation. The loan, according to the Minister, was unanimously approved by the council. The proceeds are intended to provide for an extension to the municipal street railway system, improvement of the water works, and the erection of a new market and slaughter house. When the report was shown to executives of the American International Corporation they appeared greatly surprised. A representative has been in Bogota, but it was said that no loan had been under discussion, and the officials were at a loss to explain the consular report on the transaction. A very prominent officer of the Corporation, whose approval would have to be received before any loan was made, said that there has been no negotiations looking to financing, and that he had never heard of the proposal.

Railroads and the Industrials.

A wealthy trader who carries a large investment in stocks said yesterday, apropos of the strength in the railroad shares, that he intended to stick with the industrial companies. He said that he was one of a group that believed this was no time to take part in a three-cornered fight for a fair return on investments in rails. With the Government setting the price at which transportation must be sold, and aiding the unions in fixing the price at which railway labor must be paid he regards the position of the third interest in the controversies over rates and wages as being in an unhappy position which he does not care to share. The industrial companies are faced by demands for increased wages similar to those recently forced on the carriers, but they have the privilege of putting their backs against the wall for a fight whenever they think the demands unreasonable.

Yesterday's advance carried the average price of the active railway stocks to a new high record, at 83.97. The previous top for these issues was 83.31, made on Sept. 27. The industrials did not fare so well. Their average price at the best figures made yesterday was 108.82, which is about 1.05 under the highest point reached on this movement. For the fifty active stocks, railroad and industrial, yesterday's average fell .8 under the record for this market, made on Sept. 29 at 96.42. Bonds also made a new high record yesterday, establishing an average price of 87.54, which compares with the previous record of 87.40, made Tuesday.

TALES OF LIFE TOLD AT BANKERS' SMOKER

Morris Plan Managers Swap Stories of How Wage Earners Are Financed.

$20,000,000 LENT IN A YEAR

Young Doctor Enabled to Buy Auto; Cash to Pay for Weddings and Funerals Provided.

The Morris Plan bankers, assembled at a smoker in the Hotel Astor last night, told many human interest stories about men and women who had escaped loan sharks and the humiliation of appealing to charitable institutions by borrowing money at a discount rate of 6 per cent., with character as the basis of credit. Fifty-three Morris Plan banks now operating in the United States, it was said, are making loans amounting to $20,000,000 a year, and averaging between $100 and $125 each, to persons whose weekly income varies from $10 to $100 a week.

The story telling was informal, representatives of the banks mere swapping accounts of how this man or that woman had saved self-respect and economic independence with the aid of the banks.

The representative of the Springfield (Ohio) bank told, for example, of how the father of ten children, who earned $12.50 a week, had cleared up pressing obligations amounting to $120 and had "got on his feet." The banker from Syracuse told of how money had been provided for the transportation of a Russian immigrant mother and four children from Seattle to the husband and father in Syracuse.

Arthur J. Morris, father of the Morris Plan, told how the New York bank in the Equitable Building had lent the purchase price of an automobile to a young doctor who had promises of an extended practice, dependent upon his obtaining a car, but whose capital was not sufficient to cover the initial cost of even the cheapest automobile.

"And that's the kind of loan I like to make," said Mr. Morris, "for it furthers a constructive and productive purpose. If a man wanted an automobile as a luxury, we wouldn't lend him a cent, but we've even lent money for the purchase of a piano in a case where some one in the family had musical talent and wanted to develop it."

The smoker was part of the program of the second annual convention of corporations operating the Morris Plan banks which began at the hotel yesterday morning. In the course of the day it was reported that some of the reasons furnished by borrowers for asking for loans in the last year were: To repay "loan sharks," for pawns and chattles, miscellaneous debts, illness and births, deaths, weddings, to begin housekeeping, house improvements, personal expenses, education, to begin business, and to expand business.

The rapid growth of the business in the last year, both in lending money and in disposing of investment certificates, has so encouraged the executives of the Industrial Finance Corporation, the parent organization, which institutes the Morris Plan banks, Mr. Morris said, that they were planning to put into effect a scheme of industrial insurance.

There will be sessions of the convention today and tomorrow, with a concluding dinner at the Hotel Astor tomorrow night, at which the speakers will be Eugene Lamb Richards, the State Superintendent of Banks; Thomas Mott Osborne, Warden of Sing Sing; George F. Canfield, Vice President of the State Charities Aid Association, and Joseph P. Moran, President of the New York Patrolmen's Association. Brief remarks are expected from Mayor Mitchel, Theodore N. Vail, Percy Straus, Bishop Greer, and others. Herbert L. Satterlee, the toastmaster, will be introduced by Clark Williams, President of the Industrial Finance Corporation.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Union Pacific sold on the Consolidated Stock Exchange as high as 152⅝, and New York Central sold at 114½. They were features of afternoon strength, leading the railroad list upward. Fresh attention was directed to the recent fine railroad earnings statements. Norfolk & Western made the largest gain among the rails. The industrial list failed to participate in the railroad advance, and was apparently subjected to profit-taking under cover of the strength in that department.

$975,000 DEFICIT WIPED OUT.

International Agricultural Corporation Has Surplus of $1,034,000.

The seventh annual report of the International Agricultural Corporation shows gross profits of $2,793,000, and a surplus for the year, without allowing for general depreciation of the plants, of $1,034,000. This extinguishes the deficit of $975,000 with which the company entered the year and leaves a balance of $59,000.

The only reference to the troubles between the International and the Tennessee Copper Company is the following paragraph in President Fleming's remarks:

The direct yield at the current rate of exchange is 5.70 per cent.

Metropolitan Petroleum Corporation

This Corporation has acquired oil rights in approximately 323,000 acres in the best petroleum-producing fields of Mexico, and controls the most comprehensive concessions ever granted by Mexico for pipe line facilities and terminals.

Considering its low capitalization and superb management, we know of no oil stock which offers such prospects for substantial enhancement of value.

BROKERS IN A FEUD OVER CURB STOCKS

"BUCKETING" CHARGE HEARD

Promoter, Attacked, Buys Emma Issues, Squeezes "Shorts"—Swann May Get Dispute.

The Curb experienced yesterday one of those episodes which occasionally cloud the brow of responsible brokers who try to improve the business ethics of the outside market. Two mining stocks, Emma Copper and Old Emma Leasing, were the centre of such wild trading that talk was heard after the close of business of an appeal to the District Attorney's office to inquire into charges of "bucketing" and "washing" of stock on a scale not heard of since laws were passed imposing severe penalties on such operations.

George Graham Rice, who figured in 1910 in the failure of B. H. Scheftels & Co. and afterward wrote a book about his adventures with other people's money, and who also served a sentence on Blackwell's Island, took a prominent part in the day's work, but this time on the side of the people. The Emma Copper and Old Emma Leasing properties have for months had the backing of Rice and his associates. The public who dabble in mining stocks had heard many good things about the companies and steady buying carried the former up from 60 cents to more than $4 a share, while the latter rose from 10 cents to 85 cents. Yesterday selling orders in the stocks appeared in so great a volume that quoted prices melted down helter-skelter.

Rice Frustrates Attack on Stock.

According to the story on the Curb, the stocks were offered down from several sources which seemed to be acting in concert. Rice appeared in the midst of the deluge and bought steadily, paying cash for all offerings made by recognized houses. Here is where an extraordinary feature of the day developed. It was reported that while Rice was paying $3 a share for Emma Copper it was being offered at $2.50 in other parts of the crowd. When Rice was taking for cash Old Emma Leasing at 82 cents quotations not in his immediate vicinity were 50 cents bid and 60 cents asked.

Rice is associated with William Barrett Ridgely, former Controller of the Currency, in the Emma properties. From time to time of late reports of the striking of good values in the mines have reached the Street, with a consequent upturn of prices for the stocks. Orders for the purchase of the shares have been filled by many houses, and other orders, the Street heard yesterday, which were to have been filled were not executed. In other words, there was considerable "bucketing" by irresponsible brokers who found themselves getting into a bad situation with the market constantly rising and customers clamoring for stock which they had paid for and desired to put into their safe deposit boxes.

The only way out for these brokers, as the Street explained it, was to force the stocks down to a point where they could be bought without carrying a heavy loss. Persons in touch with Curb activities said that plans to this end were evidently laid last week, for on Sept. 30 a sheet containing a vicious attack on Rice, printed in red ink and advising speculators to sell Emma Copper and Old Emma Leasing as fast as possible, was mailed broadcast. The attack on the properties and their sponsor was so violent that the prediction was made when it appeared in the financial district that somebody must be in difficulties. Yesterday's developments appeared to bear out this forecast.

Panicky Shorts Spurned by Rice.

The outpouring of offerings caused more excitement in the mining crowd in Broad Street than had been seen before this year. It was evident that heavy short selling was going on, but all the time Rice stood ready to take stock which was real and deliverable. Owing to the various prices heard it was difficult to keep a clear idea of the market, but Rice's prices were accepted as authentic quotations, and the effort to beat the stocks down met no great success. In consequence, he stood in command of the market at the close with a number of nervous shorts wondering how they would get out of the net. Several approached Rice, it was said, with a proposal to settle for the stock they were short of at 50 cents on the dollar. As far as could be learned the offer was refused. Later developments probably will occur.

The Emma Copper mine was famous in the mining world fifty years ago. It is in Arizona, and it was with this property, so the story goes, that the late Marcus Daly made the beginnings of his fortune. In a few years several million dollars' worth of silver was taken out, and then the vein was found to be cut in two by a fault in the rock formation. For years engineers tried to find the other part of the vein, but without success. Rice has reported that the vein was recently found and the rise of the stocks has had its basis in this report.

UNION PACIFIC EARNS $104,717,000 GROSS

Increase of $17,759,000 Over 1915 and $11,079,000 Over Best Previous Year.

SURPLUS IS $38,789,000

Advance Due to Business Revival Shows Profits on Common Stock Equivalent to 15.65 Per Cent.

For the first time in its history the Union Pacific Railroad Company reports annual gross revenues in excess of $100,000,000. The statement for the year ended June 30, 1916, made public yesterday, shows operating revenues of $104,717,000. That is an increase of $11,079,000 over the previous best year, which was 1913, and of $17,759,000 over the earnings of the preceding year, when the general business depression kept down the amount of freight moving.

The result of the big business done last year was a divisible surplus, from all sources, of $38,789,000. That provided for the dividends of 4 per cent. on the $99,543,000 of preferred stock and 8 per cent. on the $222,293,000 of common, with a balance of $17,025,000 remaining, of which $3,524,000 was set aside to provide for additions and betterments. The surplus for the common stock was equivalent to 15.65 per cent., comparing with a surplus of 10.98 per cent. in 1915 and 13.25 per cent. in 1914.

A very considerable share of the Union Pacific's net income comes from its treasury holdings of stocks and bonds. Transportation operations alone showed a surplus sufficient for the preferred dividend and 10.3 per cent. on the common stock. In dividends and interest the company received $11,751,000. It is expected in Wall Street that eventually a plan will be worked out under which the company will divest itself of the remainder of the investment issues acquired by the late E. H. Harriman when head of the system, after which its earnings will reflect more faithfully the ups and downs of the transportation business.

Judge R. S. Lovett, chairman of the Union Pacific board, calls attention to the fact that the income from transportation operations, before the deductions for interest charges, was $40,918,000 last year, which he says is equivalent to only 7.17 per cent. upon the investment in the railroad property from which the income was derived, namely, $570,636,000. He adds:

"It is interesting in this connection to note that the percentage of return from transportation operations upon the investment in railroad property has been as follows in the last five years: 1915, 5.32 per cent.; 1914, 5.63 per cent.; 1913, 6.32 per cent.; 1912, 5.87 per cent.; 1911, 7.15 per cent.

"This indicates that even in the most prosperous years the return upon the property employed in transportation service is not large; and, considering the absolute necessity of expending large amounts out of surplus each year for improvements classed as additions and betterments by the Interstate Commerce Commission, but which do not appreciably increase revenue or reduce expenses in the net return, the capital investment is certainly not an excessive price for the public to pay for the use of these properties."

The extraordinary increase in revenues last year was due to the business revival affecting all lines of traffic, which set in about Oct. 1915, and the curtailment of shipping through Pacific Coast ports to Europe and the Atlantic ports on account of the withdrawal of ships to more profitable lines as a result of the European war and the closing of the Panama Canal. These conditions still exist.

FOREIGNERS' CLAIMS BEFORE COMMISSION

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 4.—The American and Mexican joint commission in session at the Hotel Traymore today took up for the first time the question of the claims and demands of European nations after the war. The matter was discussed only in a general way. If an agreement is reached on this subject, it probably will not be committed to paper, as the subject has not been admitted by the Mexican commissioners to be within their jurisdiction. The American commissioners, however, hope that a full discussion of the point may result in a broader foreign policy on the part of the Carranza government, even though no agreement on the subject is reached by the commission.

This subject is of profound interest to the government of the United States, because of its bearing on the Monroe doctrine. A failure on the part of Mexico to satisfy the European demands for damages and for guarantees of security would involve the foreign policy of the United States. A similar situation in Venezuela and in Santo Domingo forced on this country the choice between allowing European intervention and accepting responsibility for satisfying legitimate European claims.

It has been urged that, if Mexico is to escape a similar choice, it is necessary for the Carranza Government to adopt without delay a liberal and reasonable policy in dealing with European investments. A large number of complaints on the part of Europeans regarding damages to property rights in Mexico have been laid before the Mexican commissioners to illustrate the various grievances and claims which have been brought to the attention of the State Department.

Consuls and diplomatic representatives of European nations are said to have advised their nationals in Mexico that the United States is legally committed to the payment of claims for damages, because those nations, at the request of former Secretary of State Bryan, surrendered their right to protect their own interests with the understanding that the United States was to have fredom of action and full responsibility in Mexico. One estimate puts the European claims for damages since this country undertook to eliminate Huerta at $412,000,000.

The American commissioners were pleased because Luis Cabrera, Chairman of the Mexican section, and his associates showed a lively sense of the importance of the subject. Dr. L. S. Rowe, Secretary of the American commission, composed the official communiqué, which is as follows:

The morning session of the American and Mexican Joint Commission was devoted to the presentation to the Mexican Commissioners by their American colleagues of the importance of giving consideration to certain questions which have a distinct international bearing because of their effect on the status and the rights of foreigners resident in Mexico and of foreigners who have invested their capital in Mexican enterprises.

The position taken by the American Commission is that the satisfactory solution of these questions is an integral and necessary part of a general program the purpose of which is to assure to Mexico the resumption of her normal position among the nations of the earth.

Reject Lu Chen-Tsiang as Minister.

PEKING, Oct. 4.—The House of Representatives has refused to ratify the appointment of Lu Chen-Tsiang as Foreign Minister because of his monarchical leanings. Premier Tuan-Chi-Jui personally addressed the House in his favor, but his plea was in vain. Lu Chen-Tsiang was Minister of Foreign Affairs in Yuan Shih-kai's Cabinet during the monarchical movement.

GRAND JURY ON STRIKE.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Oct. 4.—Rebelling at a law brought to the attention of the Suffolk County authorities by State officials, the October Grand Jurors have struck, refusing to do any work at night.

Heretofore Suffolk County has paid its Grand Jurors $3 a day, with $1.50 added for night work. The State decided that these payments were illegal.

A little investigating brought out the fact that, instead of getting the work done for $1.50 in one night's session, the county would have to pay $3 a juror for an extra day's session. Court officers were disgruntled also when they learned they were to receive only $3 a day for court work hereafter. Sheriff Charles Odell was not worried when he was informed that Court Officers Tennenberg and Stephani had struck.

"We shall find men enough to do the work," said the Sheriff. "The strike will not be serious."

Urges Early Hearing for Marshall.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Robert Gordon, Sergeant-at-Arms of the House, filed a motion today to advance for early hearing, in the Supreme Court, the appeal of United States Attorney H. Snowden Marshall from a Federal Court decision dismissing his plea for a writ of habeas corpus to prevent his removal to Washington to be dealt with by the House on the charge of contempt. Mr. Gordon urged that unless the case was heard before the present Congress expires, March 4, the House would be deprived of its right to try Mr. Marshall.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Hasco Company Secures Plot on West Seventy-second Street for $1,000,000 Apartment House—The Paternos Enlarge West End Avenue Site—Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., Leases His Home.

West Seventy-second Street furnished an important deal yesterday, rounding out a large apartment house site, which will be improved with one of the finest structures in that part of the city. The old four-story residence at 242 West Seventy-second Street, 20 by 102.2, was bought from the Relvax Realty Company by the Hasco Building Company, Lorne A. Scott, President.

The buyers owned the adjoining four houses at 244 to 250, and now control a plot of five twenty-foot dwellings having a total frontage of 100 feet by 102.2, the westerly line being 112. The plot is about in the centre of the block between Broadway and West End Avenue, on the south side of the street. The realty investment represents about $350,000, and the projected apartment will cost $600,000, bringing the new operation up to a valuation of about $1,000,000.

Mr. Scott is planning his new structure for suites of eleven rooms, and they will rent for an average of $5,000 a year. The big apartment on the Seventy-first Street corner of West End Avenue, erected a short time ago, and a few others on the west side have some large suites renting for that price, but the number of this type of apartments is scarce contrasted with those on the east side.

Brokers have noticed a demand for suites of this type, and the new Seventy-second Street house will be. If plans are carried out as contemplated, the only one in that part of the city exclusively devoted to large suites of the more expensive kind.

Enlarges West End Avenue Apartment Site.

Commissioner John J. Dillon of the Bureau of Foods and Markets, who is now engaged in supporting the farmers in the milk strike, has sold his residence at 903 West End Avenue, adjoining the northwest corner of 104th Street. It figured in a transaction yesterday in which Joseph and Anthony Paterno acquired three additional houses at that point to enlarge the site recently purchased for a tall apartment house. The Paternos, in addition to buying the Dillon home, purchased the corner house at 901 West End Avenue from Mrs. Mary A. Goodwin, and the adjoining dwelling at 903 West 104th Street from Sarah F. Kimball. Last July they bought the three houses at 905 to 909 West End Avenue, and now control a plot of 100.11 on the avenue by 115 on the street.

The site will be improved by the 905 West End Avenue Corporation, of which Anthony Paterno is President, with a thirteen-story apartment house. The brokers in the transaction were Earle & Calhoun, who acquired the other houses for the owners.

Deal on East Eighty-ninth Street.

Cross & Brown Company, in conjunction with Duff & Conger, has sold for J. M. Salzberger the five-story and basement apartment house 110 East Eighty-ninth Street, on a plot 26 by 100, near Park Avenue.

The property was sold to M. A. Kelly, with whom the same brokers recently effected the sale of 112 and 114 East Eighty-ninth Street for D. P. Bassil and M. Reilly in exchange for property at Deal, N. J. The new purchaser now has a plot 76 by 100.

Granville T. Emmett Buys Residence.

The property consists of a four-story dwelling, on a lot 20 by 100.5, located midway between Park and Madison Avenues.

Buyer for 8 Gold Street.

Cammann, Voorhees & Floyd sold for Lucius H. Beers the five-story building, 21 by 75, at 8 Gold Street, 110 feet from Maiden Lane. John W. Brist is the purchaser.

Stephen C. Clark Buys Additional West Side Property.

Stephen C. Clark has increased his holdings on West Seventy-third Street by the purchase of the three-story dwelling 113 from Marie W. Caldwell. Mr. Clark holds title to the property on either side of 113, and the Clark family controls the dwellings from 101 to 149 West Seventy-third Street, with the exception of 121 and 145, title to which stands in the name of Louis D. Friess.

Heights Apartments Held at $250,000 Figure in Trade.

An investor has purchased from the Dayton Realty Company the five-story apartment house on the northwest corner of Northern Avenue and 178th Street, 50 by 75, and a similar structure, 50 by 125, at the adjoining southwest corner of EDUCATION NOTES.

Bernard Suydam, member of the Board of Education from Flushing, L. I., will move at the meeting on Oct. 11 that the resolution calling for alterations and equipment in P. S. 45, Queens, for the duplicate school plan, be rescinded. He says that to make physical alterations in that building during the school year, while sessions are in progress, would create unnecessary interference in the normal progress of the school work. It has been claimed that the changes would allow for the accommodation of forty-four classes. At present there are twelve classes, second and third grades only, on part time. The principal reports that he can place these pupils on such a schedule as to give them a five-hour day. The principal of the parents claim that this is a more satisfactory arrangement than to place the pupils of all grades on the irregular schedule of the duplicate school.

Teachers hereafter must be at their schools at 8:40 a. m. or 20 minutes before classes begin, or they will be marked as absent.

Isadore Montefiore Levy, of the Board of Education, in a recent talk with Acting City Superintendent Straubenmuller on the questions for excusing without pay Jewish teachers for absence from school on Jewish holy days, asked him to obtain statistics regarding the absence of Jewish children from the schools on those days. Mr. Straubenmuller has just submitted to Mr. Levy statistics showing the register and attendance on Oct. 2, 3, and 9, 1913, and Sept. 21, 22, and 30 and Oct. 1, 1914. No statistics could be obtained for 1915, as the Jewish holy days fell on registration days. The statistics show that on the Jewish holy days the attendance was only 49 per cent. of the normal in Manhattan; in the Bronx, 57 per cent. of the normal; in Brooklyn, 62 per cent. of the normal; in Queens, 66 per cent. of the normal, and in Richmond, 95 per cent. of the normal, and in the entire city, 59 per cent. of the normal.

NEW YORK FACING WAR FOOD PRICES

BREAD INVESTIGATION SOON

The era of near-war prices that was only headed off at the outset of the European war by the combined struggle of every local agency concerned, is apparently coming back to New York—this time possibly to stay.

Here are some comparative price figures given out yesterday by the State Department of Foods and Markets, the first cost figure being that of the even period last year and the second the prevailing price yesterday: Fancy creamery butter, per pound, 30 cents, 37 cents; best large colored State cheese, per pound, 15½ cents, 21 cents; white hennery eggs, per dozen, 48 cents, 52 cents; brown hennery eggs, per dozen, 38 cents, 45 cents; fowls, per pound, 14 cents, 21 cents; Long Island potatoes, per barrel, $2.25, $3 to $3.50; other potatoes, higher in proportion. Meats, onions, cream are random items that were climbing the price scale yesterday.

Dealers predicted still higher prices and were inclined to shrug when asked: "How high and how long?"

The Childs restaurants raised prices on many staple items yesterday, and other chains of moderate price eating places intimated similar intentions. Proprietors and managers of more expensive eating places thought they would have to follow suit if the cost of raw material kept on going up. No hotel manager could be found who would admit a definite intention of raising the figures on the menus, but some feared they might be forced to do so before long.

Deputy Assistant District Attorney Morris Eder, who is handling the investigaion of the rise in the price of bread, yesterday received a number of letters from housewives complaining of the small size of the loaves now being sold. One letter was from an east side grocer, who stated that because he had continued selling rolls at 10 cents a dozen—the new wholesale price—the "Board of Managers of the Bakers' Trust" had conspired to supply his competitors with rolls at 5 cents a dozen. Mr. Eder will make an investigation of the grocer's complaint.

Action to recover $5,500 in penalties for alleged shortage in weight of loaves of bread has been instituted against the Shults Bread Company, which has its principal bakery in Jamaica, in the Municipal Court in Long Island City by the Corporation Counsel, acting on the request of Commissioner Hartigan of the Mayor's Bureau of Weights and Measures.

Oscar H. Alexander, who lives at 220 West Ninety-eighth Street, and is head of the stock brokerage firm of Oscar H. Alexander & Co. of 41 Broad Street, was sued in the Supreme Court for $30,000 damages for breach of promise by Miss Margaret G. Sullivan, a show girl, shortly after he had married another woman. This became known yesterday when Mr. Alexander filed two motions to be heard before Supreme Court Justice Pendleton this morning. One of them asks the court to discontinue the suit on the ground that he has paid her $50 and has received a general release. The plaintiff denies this. Her complaint alleges that Alexander is worth more than $50,000 and that he has an income of $5,000 a year and upwards. Miss Sullivan says he promised to wed her in May, June, July and August, 1913, at various times in 1914, and on Jan. 2 and 29, and Nov. 28, 1915, but that instead he married another.

Movie Producer and Actress Wed.

Frederick T. O'Neill and Florence Sutter were married last evening at the Church of the Transfiguration, in East Twenty-ninth Street, by the Rev. Dr. George C. Houghton. They obtained a license at City Hall in the afternoon. Mr. O'Neill said he was a motion picture producer, and gave his age as 31. His bride-to-be said she was an actress, aged 25, and both gave their address as 623 West 113th Street.

TO HEAR DANISH COLONISTS.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 4.—The commission appointed to consider the sale of the West Indian Islands today requested the complete diplomatic correspondence on the subject, and sent telegrams to the two West Indian Colonial Councils, communicating the commission's wish to confer with delegates from the councils, so that divergent opinions, if such exist, may be discussed. The commission expressed its willingness to defray all the expenses of the West Indian delegates, who are expected in Copenhagen by the beginning of November.

L. C. Helweg Larsen, formerly Governor of the Danish West Indies, will arrive in Copenhagen on board the Hellig Olav on Oct. 26 and will appear before the commission. The next meeting of that body will be held on Monday. As soon as the members have studied the documents in the case the commission will call on certain officials and private persons to appear before it and give evidence.

MUTUAL-McDERMOTT DAIRY CORPORATION

OUR POSITION IN THE PRESENT MILK CONTROVERSY

At present the milk consuming public of New York City is suffering by reason of the fact that the Producers and Distributors are unable to arrive at an amicable understanding of certain conditions effecting their relations.

The position of our Company is this: The Producers' Organization, known as the "Dairymen's League," has appointed the State Commissioner of Foods and Markets their Selling Agent. They demand through him an increase of 1 cent per quart or 45 cents per hundred pounds over the corresponding prices of one year ago. WE HAVE OFFERED TO MEET 70% OF THE INCREASE DEMANDED. This concession the Producers, acting through their Selling Agent, have refused.

It has been charged by the State Commissioner of Foods and Markets that we are making excessive profits. This subject was already under investigation by a special committee, known as the Wicks Investigating Committee, appointed by Governor Whitman. We testified before this committee and were glad of the opportunity to open our books to its accountants. These accountants are at present compiling information from our records from which this committee will determine whether or not our profits are excessive. All this we did willingly, but until such time as the Wicks Committee submit their report we do not feel the Commissioner of Foods and Markets can justly charge us with making an excessive profit and force us to pay the Producers more for their milk than we can afford. To do so would force upon the public an additional burden.
